Gastroenterologist Plants His Roots Here

by JUDY COVELLI

He jumped from doctoring plants to doctoring people, and now has a little time for plants again.

He is Dr. Thomas P. Thomas, an Elk Grove Village doctor of internal medicine who lives in Arlington Heights.

Thomas, Thomas P. T., or Thomas Parakunnathu Thomas, depending on whether you're an American, an Indian student or a government official, settled his internal medicine-gastroenterology practice in Elk Grove in October.

For the short, mustached doctor from India, settling down is something new. Since moving from India in 1960 he's been all over the United States, Canada and the world.

HE WAS A doctor for two years in India before coming to Canada and then the U.S. to practice. The rest of his travels were "because I like to leave town and visit places I've never seen before."

Thomas explained that he studied to become a lawyer in college, changed his mind, and two months later entered medical school.

He credits his love for plants, his midwife grandmother and doctor grand-uncle for influencing the change in plans.

A large green plant in his office attests to the 36-year-old doctor's horticultural interests, which he said he had since his childhood.

Commenting on the local water system, Thomas told how he moved his plants from Chicago with loving care, taking several car trips, keeping them all alive only to have many of them die from the tap water in his apartment.

"I USE distilled water now," he said.

Now that Thomas has settled down in a community to raise plants, and a family, he said his traveling will probably be limited to short visits.

But before he decided to locate in this area, he, his wife and 7-year-old son took a tour of the world. He said he investigated many cities before moving here to practice.

Why here? Thomas said he likes the Chicago area best of all, preferring the city, but moving to the suburbs to make it more convenient for his wife and child.

"THERE'S ONLY one thing I dislike about Chicago," he said. "The cold weather."

Thomas, unlike many who come to the U.S. does not believe it is the only land of opportunity. "I can create my opportunity wherever I go. It depends on how you go at it," he said.

He explained that it also depended on what was meant by opportunity.

"If you're a teacher, it's different than if you're a doctor. And if you think it means to make money, that's different too. If I wanted to make money there are other ways. Being a doctor would be the last thing I'd choose if I wanted to make money."

"It doesn't really matter where you are if people need the service and you can give it to them," he said.

COMMENTING ON the people in America, he said, "They don't know how to make use of medical facilities." He added this wasn't special to Americans alone, and that's worse in many other areas.

He explained that many people are not aware of what facilities are available.

"If they get sick, they call the fire department. This should not be the fire department's job, even though they are nice in helping people."

Thomas, who said he is the only doctor of internal medicine in Elk Grove and the only gastroenterologist in the northwest area, said there is a need for more doctors in the community.

QUOTABLES

"We knew it was there but we didn't know there were any people living there," said Marvin Davis, Cook County building inspector, after finding some building code violations in a mushroom house in Elk Grove Township. "We acted only after getting a complaint," he said.

"WARM PEOPLE," commented Dr. Thomas P. Thomas about the suburbanites in the area. "People are more impersonal in the city. It probably has something to do with the environment," Thomas lives in Arlington Heights and practices at 60 Turner Ave., Elk Grove Village.

Replaces Coney, Who Resigned

James O'Brien was appointed Tuesday by the Elk Grove Village Board to fill a vacancy on the seven-man governmental body.

O'Brien, of 187 Basswood Court, replaces George Coney who resigned in December to accept the $17,000-a-year job as village director of finance. Coney, also village treasurer, was a trustee for five years.

EMPLOYED ASHA sales manager for Mosstype Corp. in Centennial Industrial Park,

O'Brien has lived in the village with his family for six years. He attended Northwestern University and has a degree in business from Purdue University.

O'Brien was one of eight candidates for the board. Others were Alvin Krasnow, Donald Koprovski, Donald Walker, Dr. Curtis McKim, Lewis Smith, Edward Kenna, Robert Lindahl. Another candidate, who later dropped out of the running to become chairman of a task force on housing, was William Koretko.

Asked why he submitted an application for trustee, O'Brien said, "I became interested because not too many people are. You need someone to fill the position."

"I HAVE NO preconceived ideas. I just want to represent the people, but before I do that I have a lot to learn."

O'Brien will serve on the board until April 30, 1971.

He is active with Elk Grove Boys Baseball and a past director of the Jaycees. A former staff sergeant in the Air Force, O'Brien is originally from the West Side of Chicago. He graduated from Jefferson High School in Lafayette, Ind.

O'Brien is currently chairman of a village task force on budget and electronic data processing. He will be paid $25 a meeting as trustee.

Trustee Eugene Keith abstained when the vote to appoint O'Brien was taken.

KEITH SAID HE could not participate in all of the interviews of the candidates, and that he felt it only fair to abstain.

He added: "I'll know more about Mr. O'Brien when I see what independence he takes in board actions."

Village Pres. Jack Pahl later appointed O'Brien to the judiciary, planning, and zoning committee and the capital improvements committee.

Trustee Ronald Chernick also was appointed chairman of the capital improvements committee.

Pahl said the board would act as a committee of the whole in proposing the new budget.

Hearing on Wild Oaks Complex is Tonight

A public hearing on a proposed apartment complex to be known as Wild Oaks will be held at 8 p.m. today before the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission in the village hall. The apartments are to be located on 10 acres northeast of Oakton Street and Wildwood Road. The developer is James Carroll of 795 Cosman Road.

4-Way Stop Approved

The intersection of Berkshire Lane and Wellington Avenue in Elk Grove Village will become a four-way stop.

The village board directed its attorney to prepare an ordinance calling for stop signs on Berkshire. Wellington presently has signs.

The board acted after a resident complained Jan. 6 and again Tuesday that the intersection, near the Admiral Byrd School, has been the scene of several accidents in which children were injured.

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

The President's Coming

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Hanover Park to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County. Republican party leaders have been

Here's Where Nixon Copter Will Land

Directions for persons not living in Schaumburg Township: Follow Golf Road west to Roselle Road; take Roselle south to Devon Avenue; take Devon west to Irving Park Road and follow that west (northwest) to the airport.

Seeks Nixon's Housing View

If Jack Pahl has his way he's going to get President Nixon in on the housing issue.

Pahl, Elk Grove Village president, will be going to the Schaumburg airport tomorrow morning to join the Nixon bandwagon when he comes to look at the sewage treatment plant in Hanover Park.

"If I get the chance I'm going to ask for a commitment on the housing goals that Congress set," Pahl said.

He explained that he felt the housing act of 1968 was never funded properly, causing delays.

Pahl has been involved in the problem of low income housing in the suburbs which was sparked recently by the condemnation of 13 shacks in Elk Grove Township. The families living in the shacks have since been seeking low income housing, which apparently is not available in the area.

Clean Drinking Water Turned to Murky Glob

"Help Save Yourself, Stop Pollution!"

This sign and others line the corridors of Grant Wood School, Elk Grove Village, attesting to the concern which the fifth grade students have developed over pollution.

More than 60 parents came Tuesday night in sub-zero weather to share this concern by their attendance at a Parent-Teachers Club meeting on water pollution. The meeting was highlighted with a skit and a speech on water pollution.

The skit was presented by 27 fifth graders who supposedly came "to visit from south of the border." Phrases from the Spanish-accented song provide an idea of the skit's purpose:

"TURN ON YOUR tap and get hot and cold running crud." Or, "Use the latest toothpaste and then rinse your mouth with industrial waste."

The fifth graders in their sombreros and ponchos were crying out, "Something has to be done about the condition of our water."

Following the skit was Mrs. Arthur Brady of the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area League of Women Voters, speaking less humorously on the same serious topic — water pollution.

Her talk, "Water — Is it fit to drink and will there be enough of it," was based on the league's 10-year study of water pollution.

Mrs. Brady urged more stringent regulations on pollution control, thus advocating a higher standard of water purity.

Not placing blame on any specific industry or area, Mrs. Brady by means of a small container of water, showed the many things that caused water pollution. Adding laundry soap, oil and mud, she changed the clean water to a murky glob.

SHE EMPHASIZED that pollution was caused on the personal level as well as industrial. Merely changing from one detergent with a high phosphate count to one with a low count or none at all "is a beginning," she said.

"It's these little blue crystals that don't dissolve that help cause pollution," she explained.

"People should know their water area and plans for sanitation improvement," she said.

She also urged writing legislators and asking for help.

COMMENTING ON the topic, Mrs. Jerry Caron echoed the audience reaction when she said, "It just frightens me that every time I turn on the water I'm drinking that stuff."

Mrs. Robert McKim of 941 Cedar told how her daughter was becoming more concerned with the topic of pollution since the school science class began studying it.

Mrs. Brady's final comment Tuesday night was, "I tell my children what pollution is — I hope in a few years I can tell my grandchildren what pollution was."

What's Going On At Housing Meet?

For the second consecutive week, an Elk Grove Village resident has questioned the secrecy of the meetings of a task force on housing.

Mrs. Susan Myers, of 1240 Dover Lane, told the village board: "We'd like to know what's going on. We're concerned."

The task force, has been meeting weekly in closed session. It was formed by Village Pres. Jack Pahl to find housing for 17 Mexican-American families in addition to developing a plan for moderate income housing in the area.

MRS. MYERS, speaking before the village board Tuesday, said it was a source of discomfort that the meetings were closed. She added that she did not believe the task force was doing anything detrimental.

Mrs. Myers asked that the task force give periodical progress reports to the community.

Last week Mrs. Marvel Jacobson, also at the board meeting, questioned the closed meetings, saying the task force "did not have one lousy person who comes from the other side."

The 11-member task force has had about four closed meetings since it was formed last month.

William Koretke, chairman, has said a majority of members of the force are sensitive to publicity. He also has said that the meetings will continue to be closed as long as discussions revolved around the salaries and employment of the families involved.

KORETKE'S COMMENTS last week were the only ones made so far by the task force.

Discussion of the task force arose when Trustee Eugene Keith said he would like to know "what low and moderate income housing was?"

Trustee Charles Zettek, said moderate income housing applied to persons earning $6,000 to $10,000 a year.

Jack Pahl, village president, said he had never used the word "low" income housing.

PAHL EXPLAINED that the purpose of the task force was to come up with a program for moderate income housing, but that the board would have the final decision on anything the task force proposed.

In other business, the board authorized that bids be sought for a 7,000 linear foot 12-inch water main which would serve the area near Oakton, Busse, and Higgins roads.

The area is unincorporated but many of the owners of commercial locations there have verbally agreed to annexation.

The board also approved payment of several large items: $4,420 and $31,577, to Chicago Bridge and Iron Co. for work performed on reservoirs 7 and 8; and $12,420 to Ruby Construction Co. for work performed on the village municipal complex.

KIM KOHNKE, 4-year-old animal lover in Elk Grove Village, is only one of the many youngsters who come to see the animal display at the Elk Grove Public Library. "About 70 per cent of books for pre-schoolers are written about animals," Mrs. Evelyn Schmidt, librarian, said. The library has been featuring these animal books lately, she added. Kim, cuddled up here in the stuffed animal display, lives at 109 Tottenham Lane.

Nixon, Atcher Are Expected To Take 'Ride'

A helicopter ride with President Nixon is in the makings for Mayor Robert Atcher of Schaumburg.

Atcher said yesterday that efforts are being made to allow him to come from downtown Chicago Meigs Field to Schaumburg Airport with the nation's chief executive.

Nothing definite was arranged at the time. "We're working in the dark," Atcher said.

Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker hopes to greet the presidential delegation at the Metropolitan Sanitary District plant and possibly tour the plant with the Nixon party.

"We're proud and happy that he's coming to our community," Baker said.

"This is the first time a president has ever come to Schaumburg," Atcher said, but he gave credit where it is due. "The trip is expressly to visit the pilot reclamation plant. We will plan a welcome, but we can't make too much of his coming to Schaumburg."

"WE JUST FEEL fortunate to have an airport that the president can arrive at," Atcher added.

Atcher is the republican candidate for Cook County Clerk. Efforts to arrange the helicopter ride are being made by Floyd Fuller county central committeeman for the Republican Party.

Hoffman Estate's Mayor Frederick Downey said he intends to be on hand at the airport to welcome President Nixon. "I will express an official welcome if the opportunity arises, he said.

Downey added that plans for a welcome will be made Thursday evening when he meets with trustees for a public works committee meeting.

Security to be Tight

Tight security measures have been arranged for Friday's visit by President Richard Nixon when he arrives at Schaumburg Airport for his visit to the tertiary treatment plant.

The President arrives in Schaumburg Airport where Chief Martin Conroy has coordinated protection with Cook County Sheriff's police, DuPage County Sheriff's deputies, federal officials and state police.

"I will have my full manpower out," Conroy said yesterday. Schaumburg police will primarily cover the airport area.

"NO ONE WILL be able to get to the airport without credentials," he added. There will be special areas roped off for official visitors and members of the press.

Conroy added that regular protection of the village itself will be maintained.

The President will then travel over an undisclosed route covered by full security precautions, according to Chief Sam Polotto of Hanover Park.

Polotto's men will also be working with the cooperation of state police, Cook County Sheriff's Police and with the assistance of men from the Streamwood Police Department.

"We have all the necessary precautions. They have been taken to make the area secure," Polotto said.

"INTERSECTIONS AND the immediate area where the president is going will be covered," he added.

No one will be allowed to enter the Water Reclamation Plant where Nixon will go unless they have proper credentials, he added.

"This will in no way effect regular patrol of the village. Regular precautions will stay the same," Polotto said.

Dignitaries to Line Up

Among the dignitaries greeting President Richard Nixon when he arrives at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning will be Illinois State Representatives David J. Regner and Eugene Schlickman of the Third District. Rep. Eugenia Chapman said yesterday she had not yet been invited.

The Third District includes Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover and Barrington townships, and parts of Northfield and Maine Townships.

"I plan to be at the airport about 8 a.m. Friday for the President's arrival," Regner said. Regner lives in Mount Prospect.

"I just received the message that the president was visiting the Third District, and I didn't know what president it was. I was really surprised the President of the United States was coming here."

"I'M VERY GLAD the President is visiting the Third District again," Regner remarked.

"It's quite an honor having Mr. Nixon visit the Third District for the second time in a little over a year," Regner added. While campaigning for the Presidency, Nixon addressed a Republican Party rally at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect in October 1968.

"I got to shake hands with Mrs. Nixon at the party rally at Prospect High," said

Rep. Schlickman. "However, I didn't shake hands with the president-to-be."

Schlickman said that he understood that only persons issued passes would be able to have access to the immediate landing area at the airport.

SCHLICKMAN ADDED that most of the crowd Friday would probably be Republican party workers "doing their thing" rather than persons present due to sheer enthusiasm.

"President Nixon's reappearance is an acknowledgement of the importance of the population and growth in the area. I have to compliment who ever placed the visit to the tertiary treatment plant on the agenda. This is a new development and is something worth having the President see," Schlickman said.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman said she was not invited to welcome President Nixon but that her feeling are not hurt.

"Certainly the President is welcome whenever he wants to visit the area. I'm glad he's discovered pollution and that he's going to do something about it."

"I am sure the Metropolitan Sanitary District has something worth seeing," she said of the treatment plant.

Public Works Chief Sought

Elk Grove Village is seeking a director of public works and engineering.

The director will be responsible for the overall village public works program.

Some of his duties include directing the street, water and sewer, and building divisions, making final inspections of water and sewer construction, and reviewing of subdivision plans.

QUALIFICATIONS include graduation from a recognized college or university with a degree in civil engineering and five years of progressively responsible engineering work including one year of municipal engineering work.

Candidates must also have a professional engineer's license issued by the state.

Candidates should contact Charles Willis, village manager, 439-3900.

Early Childhood Unit Sets Meeting Today

The Elk Grove Association on Early Childhood is meeting today at 8:02 p.m. in the Grove Junior High School library, Elk Grove Village.

The association brings together parents and educators and attempts to unite them in a common "undertaking," according to Mrs. Patricia Peacock, secretary.

"It is our charge as a parent, to become informed — to participate in those activities that will be of benefit to the children of our community. It is the continuing desire of our educators and community leaders to provide answers to our questions and quite possibly solutions to our particular problems — be it the need for more day care centers, more opportunities for early educational experience, or additional parent information meetings," she said.

Membership is open to any individual or organization who has expressed concern for childhood development and education and who resides or functions within the boundaries of the Elk Grove area.

Scottish Folk Song Program for Students

Students from Dan Cook and Ridge schools in Elk Grove Village will see kilts and dulcimers Friday when Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong present their Scottish folk song program.

The Armstrongs, who have performed in School Dist. 59 previously, are being sponsored by the Parents Art Council's cultural program.

A WILMETTE couple, the Armstrongs have written several children's books. They will appear in Dan Cook School, 711 Chelmsford Lane, at 1 p.m. and in Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave., at 2 p.m.

JAMES O'BRIEN was sworn in as an Elk Grove Village trustee Tuesday in a brief ceremony. O'Brien, a sales manager for a local firm, lives at 187 Basswood Court with his wife Joan and their three children, Patrick, 11, Kathleen, 10, and Eileen, 8.

DAVID REGNER, State Representative from the 3rd Dist.: "At first, I didn't know which president was visiting."

THE EXPERIMENTAL PLANT operated in Hanover Park by the Metropolitan Sanitary District will be visited tomorrow by President Richard Nixon. Two million gallons of sewage can pass through the plant each day and come out 99 per cent pure. Third stage (tertiary) treatment using a $98,000 micro strainer is responsible for the effluent's quality. Above is a shot of the plant's interior which the President will tour.

Treatment Plant Reason for Visit

A tertiary waste treatment facility in Hanover Park is the reason for President Richard Nixon's visit tomorrow. "We are very much flattered that the President has elected to inspect the Hanover Park treatment plant as we feel this plant represents the spirit that has guided the sanitary district from its inception," said John Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD). The $1.1 million facility was completed in the spring of 1968. Tertiary (third stage) treatment produces water from sewage that is 99 per cent pure. It is an experimental facility designed as part of a clean-up of all inland water ways in the MSD's jurisdiction. Water receiving tertiary treatment will be fit for uses including fish and wildlife habitation, irrigation, boating and swimming.

THE PLANT HAS the capacity to handle two million gallons of water a day. During the third stage a $98,000 micro strainer removes most solids remaining after the first two stages of treatment.

Original plans called for a $300-million expansion of tertiary treatment to get underway in 1971. Much of this will be offset by federal funds, a spokesman said.

Hanover Park is one of the MSD's eight small waste water treatment plants serving 15,000 persons in the northwest area of Cook County. It operates as a supplement to the district's three major plants.

The tertiary treatment of waste water, which empties into the DuPage River, will produce effluent that children can play in, a former MSD spokesman said.

The process involves chemical and filter treatment designed to satisfy the oxygen needs of water.

'Greeting' Crowd Will be Sizeable

Donald Totten, Schaumburg Township Republican Committeeman, plans to be at the Schaumburg Airport Friday morning about 8:30 a.m. to greet the President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, along with other township GOP organization members.

Mayors Frederick Downey and Robert Atcher of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, respectively, will also be at the airport Friday for the president's arrival by helicopter. Mrs. Kay Wojcik, Schaumburg Township Clerk, will be there, too.

A special area for spectators has been roped off at Schaumburg Airport, and special passes have been issued for entrance to this area, Totten said. The township committeeman was given a supply of passes for local Republicans.

"EACH PRECINCT captain in the township was given as many tickets as he wished," Totten stated.

"If the weather is nice, we should have a good crowd to greet the President," said the township committeeman. "And if everyone who has passes shows up, there may not be enough room for them."

Totten said that if President Nixon sticks closely to his intended schedule, then "I will just get to see him get out of his helicopter and get into a car, like the other spectators." President Nixon will inspect the Metropolitan Sanitary District plant in Hanover Park Friday.

"FROM WHAT I hear, the President has to be back downtown at 9:30 a.m. Friday," Totten said.

The township committeeman said that local party officials are not planning to present the President any gifts or souvenirs.

"It's not often you have the President of the United States visiting your township," Totten enthused.

The Lighter Side Blames Society

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI—Few events have stirred up as much controversy in this country as the recent conviction of an Indianapolis man on charges of shooting a vending machine.

At a dinner party that I attended the other evening, the guests talked of little else.

"I say he got just what he deserved," said Madge Clump, referring to the 10-day jail sentence and $180 fine imposed upon Robert Goines, the assailant.

"No one is ever justified in taking the law into his own hands, no matter what the provocation."

Madge's husband Claude disagreed. He sided with Goines, a service station manager who claimed the vending machine had robbed him and his customers of $25 over a two-year period.

"A man's service station is his castle," Claude insisted. "He has a perfect right to defend himself against predatory vending machines."

"Yes, but there are better ways to handle the problem," injected Millie Wafer. "If the machine had been sent to a repair shop, there is a chance it could have been rehabilitated."

"Nonsense," Clump snorted. "Statistics show that 90 per cent of all the vending machine crimes are committed by machines that already have spent time in the repair shop."

Millie's husband Sam cited the case as further evidence that Americans are violence-prone.

"There isn't a person in this room who doesn't have at least a subconscious desire to shoot or otherwise do violence to a vending machine," Sam said.

"Whether we admit it or not, all of us are to some extent prejudiced against them."

"That's true," chimed in Bruce Allsorts. "In many areas of this country it is almost impossible for a vending machine to get a fair trial. The very fact that Goines was convicted shows that we are becoming more civilized."

"The thing to bear in mind is that the vast majority of vending machines dispense their wares efficiently and always give back the correct amount of change," added Sally Allsorts.

"But the good vending machines are not the ones you hear about. The ones you hear about are the small minority who plug up their 'coin return' slots and otherwise cause trouble."

As for me, I hold neither Goines nor the vending machine responsible. I put the blame squarely on society.

Constitution Presented By Students

Eight students, two teachers and one administrator from Elk Grove High School traveled to Springfield Tuesday to present a constitution to the Illinois Con-Con.

And, judging from the adults that made the trip, the students were impressed by the delegates and the delegates were impressed by the students.

The group, traveling in two cars, left Elk Grove High School at 6:45 a.m. Local delegates Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and John Woods entertained the group at lunch, and the students then presented their model constitution to the assembled delegates.

The students then attended a one-hour session of the committee on the Bill of Rights, of which Mrs. Macdonald is a member. The group later presented a copy of their constitution to a representative of Governor Richard Ogilvie, and returned to Elk Grove.

"THEY ALL GOT such a thrill out of it, and we say so many phases of government in action," said Miss Marjorie Olson, division head for social sciences.

Robert Kaskell, the Elk Grove principal, said that the group attempted to see Ogilvie, but was unable to make an appointment, as members of a group from problem-plagued Cairo, Ill. were waiting, too.

Last week, the students presented a copy of the constitution to Dr. Edward Gilbert, High School Dist. 214 superintendent. Gilbert will present a copy of the document to district board members.

The document culminated a year of work under the direction of Richard Chierico, a history teacher. Chierico's students worked to build up voter interest for the Con-Con vote in 1968 and spent a large portion of the last school year writing and approving the document.

Chierico said student interest in Con-Con has not stopped with the presentation of the document to delegates. He said that a number of the students will participate in the Con-Con hearings at Arlington Park Towers, Arlington Heights, on Feb. 11.

Name School Year Study Unit Leader

Richard Bachhuber, veteran school board member, was approved unanimously as chairman as expected Tuesday night at the first meeting of High School Dist. 214's committee of 75 to study the extended school program.

George Ergang, a teacher at Elk Grove High School, and Dr. Roderick McLennan, the district's assistant superintendent for instruction, were unanimously approved as vice chairman and executive secretary. All three men had been listed by a steering committee of the group; no additional nominations were made from the floor Tuesday.

In the first session of the committee, which will study various means of extending the school year, eight committees were selected to study various aspects of the problem.

THE COMMITTEES and their chairman, who will serve on an executive committee, are as follows:

Staffing and curriculum — Donald Fyfe, assistant principal, Elk Grove High School.
Community resources — Herbert Laubenstein, teacher, Prospect High School.

Physical facilities — Harold "Red" Best, resident, Arlington Heights.

Transportation — Martin Hering, resident, Mount Prospect.

Human factors — Mrs. Walker Millner, resident, Arlington Heights.

BEFORE THE committee of 75 divided into subcommittees to select chairman, the persons in the group who went to Atlanta last fall to examine that city's quarter system spoke briefly. Bachhuber mentioned Atlanta as a city with the courage to do something about a problem; however, he cautioned, "Atlanta is not Dist. 214."

Dennis Olenik, a teacher at Hersey High School, said many residents in Atlanta were not aware of the switch to the quarter system. He said a committee such as the committee of 75 could speed communications to the public.

The executive committee will meet sometime next week. Some of the subcommittees will hold sessions next week also.

IT'S SATURDAY NIGHT at the dance for Anita, played by Mary Kane of Sacred Heart High School, and her boyfriend Tony, played by Paul Gorman of St. Viator High School. They are two of the 65 students from the two high schools who are jointly presenting "West Side Story" as this year's annual musical. The first of 10 performances begins Saturday.

by United Press International

Today is Thursday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1970 with 329 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1631 British clergyman Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.

In 1904 Russia and Japan broke diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

In 1945 the U.S. Army broke through Germany's Siegfried Line.

In 1965 an airliner crashed in Chile, killing 82.

In 1968 North Vietnamese forces opened an attack on outposts near Khe Sanh.

A thought for the day: George Payne Rainsford said, "Age is the most terrible misfortune that can happen to any man; other evils will mend, this is every day getting worse."

Sometime, Somewhere

REMEMBER the good old days of summertime? Remember warm, sunny afternoons when the air would become absolutely still as a prelude to a cooling thunderstorm? Even though the creek now runs through a concrete pipe, too polluted to add much to the countryside, and even though the trees have been chopped down for blossoming subdivisions, . . . well summer is still coming. Sometime. Somewhere.

'Water' Hearings Upcoming

The Illinois Division of Waterways will be setting a series of mid-February hearings on the allocation of Lake Michigan water to northeastern Illinois communities.

John Guillo, chief waterways engineer for the Division of Waterways, said Wednesday that probably seven would be held in various locations in Cook, DuPage, Lake and Kendall Counties.

Hearing dates have not been confirmed but will be published to notify the public, he said.

THE HEARINGS will be to bring out the present and future needs for water and to learn how present water users are measuring and keeping account of the amount they withdraw, Guillo said.

"One of our responsibilities is to allocate water in the best interest of people in the Northeastern Illinois area," Guillo said.

As a result of a 1959 U.S. Supreme Court suit brought against Illinois for withdrawing lake water, the state is now limited to diverting 3,200 cubic feet of water per second, averaged over a five-year period.

Of this limited diversion, 1,700 cubic feet per second is to go to municipalities and industries and 1,500 cubic feet per second is to go to the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) to dilute sewage it

Mrs. Inkster To Supervise Day Center

Mrs. Lois Inkster

Mrs. Lois Inkster has been named supervisor of the Clearbrook and Maine Township Day Center temporarily located in First Congregational Church in Des Plaines.

The day center serves mentally retarded and multiply handicapped children enrolled at Clearbrook Center for the Handicapped who live in Maine Township. It is part of the expanded services being offered by Clearbrook Center, located in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Inkster has been an administrator for the U.S. Health Education and Welfare Regional Office in the headstart program in Chicago. She received a master's degree in special education from Boston College.

The day center presently has openings for handicapped children living in Maine Township. For more information, interested persons should contact the social service office at Clearbrook Center.

discharges in area rivers.

GUILLOU WAS confident Wednesday the state's allocation could serve present and future water demands. He said as the MSD improves sewage processing, it would need less water for dilution.

Guillo said the division will need to know how water is to be used and disposed of. It will need to know what future demands are so the division can plan ahead, he added.

The division will be responsible for the bookkeeping on the water diversion.

The DAMP (Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine) Water Commission has requested a lake diversion of 35.9 cubic feet per second and the Tree Towns Water Commission, serving Elmhurst, Lombard and Villa Park, has requested a lake diversion of 53 cubic feet of water per second.

GUILLOU SAID that by the first of April, he should know what kind of diversion will be allocated the petitioning groups and what time schedule they will be on in receiving the water. He said the division cannot legally allocate until March 1.

The two area water commissions are considering building, either jointly or separately, water intake and treatment facilities. Because of a water table that continues to lower, DuPage County is figured to need lake water in six years, while northwest Cook County will not need lake water for 10 years.

Urge Joint Effort To Get Water Here

A meeting is to be set between two area water commissions to discuss a joint effort in getting Lake Michigan water to Northwest Cook County and Northeastern DuPage County.

Elmhurst City Mgr. Bob Palmer is to arrange the meeting between the Tree Towns Water Commission serving Elmhurst, Lombard and Villa Park and the DAMP Water Commission serving Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

Meeting Tuesday night, the Tree Towns commission also decided to investigate costs of buying Chicago water. Commissioners further considered updating a 1956 engineering study that calls for a separate Tree Towns water intake system along Lake Michigan.

It was predicted that three years is the time span in which a decision must be made on how to insure an adequate water supply to commission communities. Tree Towns has requested from the state Division of Waterways a Lake Michigan water diversion of 53 cubic feet per second.

JOHN GUILLOU, chief waterways engineer for the state, said Wednesday that hearings on the division of Lake Michigan water will be announced for mid-February. He said he expects to know by the first of April what allocation various petitioning groups will get.

The DAMP water commission issued in December a revised feasibility study on acquisition of Lake Michigan water. Although the report shows the purchase of Chicago water would be the cheapest access to Lake Michigan, the DAMP commission has recommended constructing a separate intake system to insure control over water rates.

The DAMP report further encourages a joint construction project with Tree Towns to reduce water rates through greater volume production.

Learning second hand of the DAMP report, Tree Towns commissioners Tuesday decided to discuss the proposal with their Cook County equivalents.

For purposes of cost comparison, commissioners decided to update the Tree Towns feasibility report to take into account an increase in population and a change in large-consumption customers. The engineering firm of DeLeuw, Cather and Company was asked to make a cost estimate of revising the study.

PALMER REPORTED that the commission's option on land for a filtration plant at Golf and River Roads had expired. He added the Chicago Archdiocese has offered a different 25-acre site southeast of Central and River Roads.

He said the land is appraised at $12,000 per acre and estimated it would cost $700 for the commission's own appraisal.

A representative of DeLeuw, Cather warned a new feasibility study on a separate treatment system might have to take into account a purification plant in addition to the original call for a filtration plant. A deteriorating quality of Lake Michigan water was cited as the reason for extra processing. In 1967, the cost of building was estimated at $24 million, revised upward from an $18 million estimate in 1957.

Palmer said that when the report is updated and new cost estimates presented, Tree Towns would have to re-negotiate contracts for providing communities with water. When Tree Towns originated in 1956, Addison and Bensenville contracted for water. Elk Grove Village is a part of the commission through a contract the village inherited when it bought the developer's water and sewer system.

Oak Brook may also join the commission, Palmer said.

THE DAMP REPORT estimates it would cost its communities 48 cents per 1,000 gallons of water with a separate water intake system. It shows an advantage of about 2.5 cents per 1,000 gallons by joining with Tree Towns. But buying Chicago water would be cheapest by about 3.3 cents per 1,000 gallons, the report notes.

DAMP is seeking a Lake Michigan water diversion of 35 cubic feet per second.

Both Tree Towns and DAMP began in the late 50's to develop independent systems of piping in lake water. But before plans of either commission could be implemented, six states brought suit against Illinois to prevent further diversion of lake water.

A final court decree limited Illinois to diverting 3,200 cubic feet of water per second to be allocated among all political subdivisions. The state Division of Waterways is charged with fairly allocating this allotted diversion.

TV Seeks 'Loose' Films

by RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—People interested in photography generally, and in the film business specifically, will understand the significance of the following fact:

Certain well-placed television industry figures—at the networks—believe the medium will achieve a major breakthrough, in terms of cost and creativity, when weekly entertainment series are shot regularly as 6mm rather than 35mm productions.

Television wants very much to be "with it" nowadays. It wants to attract the young, influential, buying audience. Yet it does not want to go overboard. It is conservative because it is a mass medium, and its fondest constant wish is to be forced by circumstances into steps it wants to take despite its caution.

Technological developments have therefore become almost a moral force because they bring about de facto progress that television must employ—such as satellite video and its international human benefits. Cost, too, is an inevitable, impersonal factor.

It now takes a film television series a run of several years to make money. Production costs are staggering.

There have been plenty of 16mm programs on video, with handheld cameras and otherwise—and with documentaries usually leading the way. And, in most cases, no one could tell the difference—certainly not laymen. Needless to say, the comparative ease and portability of such equipment have untold advantages, many of which—from cost to creativity—are obvious to anyone.

No one, of course, can improve bad basic story concepts with things like budget and equipment improvements. Yet most of the film entertainment series on television are so structured and uptight, from financing to content to attitude, that new ideas are urgent.

Looseness is really what is required. Looseness that comes with a less-strained cost sheet. Looseness that enables the networks to go to the bright young filmmakers they say they want to attract, and tell them to do things more their own way than they do now. It is a looseness that would visibly relax the prime time schedule each night. And the studios would come around too, for the simple reason that they would have to. They are sellers.

Anyway, this is what certain key network executives believe. And they are the buyers.

Cost of Homes To Rise Steadily

by NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Most of the nation's 40 million homeowners have made a big—although mostly illusory—profit on their houses in the past few years.

They could probably realize a substantial sum of money by selling on today's market. The catch is that it also would cost them more to obtain another house of equal size and quality either by buying or renting.

These basic economic facts are outlined in a report on the real estate market prepared by Catharine E. Martini, director of the research department of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The median sale price for existing homes rose from $18,300 in 1965 to $21,700 last year. During the same period, the median price of new homes rose from $19,600 to $26,100.

"Since the volume of new construction can be expected to fall below levels needed for family formation and urban growth, the competitive position of existing structures will be strengthened further," Miss Martini said.

Housing Secretary George Romney says the nation is in the grip of the worst housing shortage since World War II. He says a total of 2.57 million additional units are needed right now to provide adequate housing for all Americans.

The shortage was 2.08 million units at the end of 1968, 1.41 million units at the end of 1967, 932,000 units at the end of 1966 and 320,000 at the end of 1965, Romney said.

Miss Martini said the shortage, coupled with the increasing desire of Americans for more and better space "will continue to push rents and prices upward."

She said apartment rents can be expected to rise along with the cost of homeownership.

The realtor's report also indicated that 64 per cent of the nation's households are in owner-occupied homes.

Miss Martini said the ownership figure for families that include a husband, wife and at least one child is more than 75 per cent.

"Homeowners outnumber renters in all income groups," she said. "This is not surprising, for many of the lower income households are older retired individuals whose properties were bought and paid for during periods of higher income. Even among households with income below $5,000, more than half are owners."

"In the $15,000 and over class, well over four out of five own their homes."

Life Style To Improve

MOSCOW (UPI)—Things will be better for the Russian-in-the-street in the 1970s—even if they aren't that good.

Soviet citizens get what the state decides to produce for them: The market does not determine production.

Nevertheless, under Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, more effort is being made to meet the rising expectations of the Soviet people for more of the better things of life.

The minister of light industry, Nikolai Tarasov, promised in the debate in the 1970 budget the production of fabrics, clothing and footwear would go up by two billion rubles ($2.22 billion) this year.

This meant an individual could count on 392.5 square feet of fabrics—a single pair of window drapes takes about 70 square feet—106.4 square feet of knitted goods, and 2.3 pairs of shoes.

What can the average Russian hope for to improve his standard of living in the 1970s?

—A private automobile. Present minuscule production is planned to increase fivefold to one million cars a year, by 1973.

—A larger apartment. Increased housing construction has been ordered to provide an average 110 square feet.

—A room 10x11 feet—per person in 1970.

—A radio, a television set, and eventually a washing machine and a refrigerator.

—A telephone. Moscow city authorities have promised "a telephone for everyone who wants one" by 1973.

—More meat, milk, eggs, fish, vegetables and fruits in a diet which has traditionally revolved around the staples of bread and cabbage.

—Higher wages, low rents, an expanded health service.

Poles Talk Despite Hatred

by RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

WARSAW (UPI)—The former Gestapo headquarters, in the cellar of the Poles Education Ministry on Wojska Polska Ave., has been turned into one of Warsaw's most moving memorials to the inhumanity of the Nazi occupation.

By one of those accidents of history, it sits right next door to the foreign ministry where Polish diplomats map their strategy for the present trailblazing talks with the West Germans—the inheritors, according to a quarter century of Polish propaganda, of the Nazi legacy.

This cheek-by-jowl relationship of the past and present neatly symbolizes the personal and psychological problems which Poland faces in its first formal talks with the West German government.

Poland probably suffered more at Nazi hands than any other nation. Mausoleums, monuments and hundreds of tiny shrines commemorate that suffering in Warsaw and throughout the country. Movies, books, television shows and newspaper articles keep the memories fresh. No family here escaped the war's impact and few conversations can avoid a mention of the Poles' ordeal.

All this, plus a constant trumpeting in the press about "neo-Nazism" and "revanchism" in West Germany, has produced a deep fear of Bonn. Official Poles say publicly that West Germans are "disturbed." Unofficial Poles say privately that they are hated.

Against this background, the Polish government decided to move at full throttle into talks with Bonn on the "normalization" of Polish-German relations. A first step, so far as the Poles are concerned would be German recognition of Poland's western postwar frontier on the Oder and Neisse rivers. The last and long-term step, if all else goes well, could be full diplomatic relations between the two old enemies.

All this is the key to West German chancellor Willy Brandt's policy of better relations with eastern Europe. The success or failure of this policy could determine whether Europe remains divided into east and west.

These stakes are the reason the talks here are being watched closely by statesmen from all European nations.

When World War II ended, Poland, behind the might of the Red Army, assumed sovereignty over 40,000 square miles of former German territory. The area is thoroughly Polish today, but West Germany, unlike East Germany, never has recognized the Polish rule there as valid.

Polish Communist party chief Wladislaw Gomulka, in what sources here say was a deliberate attempt to influence the West German elections, called last May for West German recognition of the Oder-Neisse line. The demand was an old one, but for the first time the Poles sweetened it for the West Germans by omitting their old insistence that it be linked with Bonn's recognition of East Germany.

When Brandt came to power last autumn, he said he was willing to discuss the issue. He managed this within five months, with the talks, begun Feb. 5. This comparative speed, considering the 25 years of hostility that preceded it, has led some observers here to conclude that an agreement already has been reached privately and the talks will be no more than a formality.

Lightning Hits 17,000 Homes in U.S. in '70

CHICAGO (UPI)—Lightning caused major damage to 17,000 homes in the United States in 1969, according to the Lightning Protection Institute.

The total dollar loss to homeowners caused by lightning in 1969 was nearly $71 million. Both figures were up from 1968, the institute reports.

More new houses, inflation, and an increased value and number of television antennas and electrical appliances helped swell the 1969 totals.

Lightning-caused fires gutted or leveled 2,552 houses during the year, causing an average loss of $22,600 each time. Major damage was done to 14,464 houses, averaging $2,330 per strike.

BIG TIME SPORTS is a pressure cooker business. And the path one takes to get there can be just as pressure packed.

Tom Lundgren, whose hometown is Rolling Meadows, can attest to that fact for he has been on that rigorous road for quite a while and is just beginning to reach the most uphill part of the trip — baseball's minor leagues.

Lundgren, a former standout lefthander in the Paddock area high school and legion ball, will become a part of the California Angels' farm system this June when he puts on his first professional uniform — that of the Davenport Angels of the Midwest League.

Although this was to be considered the highest point in his young career, big Tom has also had several others — a star hurler for Forest View in notching three no-hitters (one being over defending state champion Maine West), excellent pitcher for the Arlington Legion team which won the state and regional titles, and standout southpaw for the University of Missouri.

But this latter accomplishment didn't come right away — it required a comeback. The comeback was his survival of two bitterly disappointing years both at Missouri and in summer ball.

The strange thing about his crushing comedown was that it followed what he labeled "his greatest thrill" — winning the state Legion championship. He won two key games in the tourney and relieved in the finale while striking out five of the six men he faced. He had so dominated play (40 strikeouts in 20 innings) that he was named the most valuable player of the tournament.

TOM LUNDGREN
Falcon Turned Angel

Fresh from a fine fifth place finish in the national finals, Lundgren and his parents decided that he should turn down a sizeable bonus offer from Cleveland and attend Missouri on a baseball scholarship.

"I thought that if I could do well at Missouri it would be just about the same thing as playing minor league ball," Lundgren admitted. "As it turned out, it wasn't quite as I expected."

The Tiger freshman team played just four games and Tom got to work in two of those, but it wasn't enough. So he headed for the Basin League that following summer — a mistake he admits to now because he was too young.

"What happened was that I really lost a lot of confidence because, normally, I was used to winning," he said while recalling his 1-1 record and his few innings (20) of pitching. "I went back to Missouri my sophomore year and, because of the confidence that I had lost the year before, did pretty badly."

Tom failed to get much work as a soph (20 innings again) and headed back up to the Basin League. But more adversity was waiting for him there as he failed for the first time ever to get along with a coach and was soon released from the team.

"Why I didn't do well those first couple of years was all the mental pressure," he confided. "We had 13 or 14 pitchers on the (Missouri) team and I mean they were really good. If you walked somebody, there would be two guys warming up. College coaches don't like to see that — they really go wild when they see you walk somebody."

"I've always had good control but the mental pressure — you know the mind runs the body — was so great the first couple of years at school that it was my control that was getting me in trouble."

His release that summer was "the super low point of my career," but he was lucky enough to have an old friend at Forest View who was a super guy at helping young men — Hal Sprehe.

"I would say that as far as pitching was concerned, I was more or less on my own," Lundgren said of his three years of varsity ball at Forest View. "But when it came to helping a guy accept victories and losses and living as a person, that's where Coach Sprehe helped the most. You couldn't measure in dollars the way he would really get me up when I would walk in there feeling real low."

"In those first couple of years when I wasn't doing well, he helped me build up my confidence. I couldn't say enough about him, really."

His junior year he was 2-0 in relief and he followed this up with plenty of work in the Illinois Central League. Then, his senior year he became one of Missouri's top two pitchers in leading the Tigers to a third place showing in the Big Eight Conference.

He turned down his fourth straight draft offer (Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City) from the Angels and, instead, took a job of physical education instructor at a junior high school in Janesville, Wis. last fall. But last month — in the largest such draft ever (337) — he received word that the Angels were still interested in him and he jumped at the chance this time.

"The Angels want me to go out to California and get into shape for the summer," said Lundgren while discussing his plans for the Easter break. "Some of them want to take a look at me because they've never seen me pitch."

He's been keeping in overall shape through basketball and ice hockey but he admits that his arm needs plenty of work. If the lanky lefty can get back into the form that he had as Coach Lloyd Meyer's ace, he'll be ready for this summer's big trail.

Lundgren gave much of the credit for his early pitching success to Meyer and his legion coach handed the praise right back to him by admitting that Tom was "the best" pitcher he ever coached.

"I think a lot depends on how bad Lundgren wants it," said Meyer while discussing his major league chances. "I know he's still got the potential. He can throw probably as hard as most major league pitchers."

"He's also got a real nice attitude and doesn't get the big head. I had a real good rapport with him. He used to kid me a lot in practice by mimicking the way I'd hold, but he always did it at the right times," chuckled Meyer. "He's a good kid ... the kind of guy you'd like to see make it."

"I just hope that I do some good," Lundgren said of his upcoming debut. "I'm 22 now and, according to them, I'm getting old."

Besides his parents, friends and Coach Meyer that will be pulling for him, Tom also has the teachings that Coach Sprehe (who died last June) gave him to make him a success.

And, who knows, maybe he'll make it to the big leagues and face his old teammate, Paul Splittorff, now with the Kansas City Royals.

I won't be betting against him.

Columbus High School, Indiana's perennial gymnastics powerhouse, will visit Arlington for the second consecutive year on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Last season Arlington and Columbus were defending state champions and it was Arlington coming out on top. The Cardinals repeated as Illinois' champs last spring.

The Mid-Suburban League slate, all meets tonight at 7:00, has first place Hersey at Palatine, first place Arlington at Conant, third place Elk Grove at Wheeling, Forest View at Prospect and Glenbard North at Fremd.

In another Friday non-conference meet, Hersey will travel to Glenbrook South at 7 p.m. On Saturday, Palatine will visit Lake Forest in a meet which was postponed from an earlier date.

Arlington is rated fourth in Illinois in gymnastics but the Cardinals are rapidly rising to the top in the state. The Cards have beaten third-ranked Evanston and sixth-ranked Elk Grove recently in back-to-back meets.

Columbus, as usual, is rated among the best in Indiana.

Both Arlington and Hersey must keep winning to remain undefeated in league competition in lieu of February 19th's meet between the two powers.

The Cardinals, 6-0 in the loop and 10-0 overall, will be at Conant which is 3-3 in the league and 6-5 overall.

Hersey has a 6-0 league mark and a 12-0 overall record and will encounter 3-3 Palatine. The Pirates are 5-3 overall. The Huskies' Friday opponent, Glenbrook South, is unranked in the state while Hersey holds on to second place.

Palatine and Lake Forest promises to be a close meet at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

The Grenadiers of Elk Grove hope to rebound from two high-scoring, crucial losses to Hersey and Arlington when they take on Wheeling's Wildcats. Elk Grove is 4-2 in the league, 5-2 overall and ranked sixth in Illinois. Wheeling has one win in nine outings.

Prospect reached the 500 mark in the league last week and will be out to reach that mark in its overall record against Forest View. Both teams are 3-3 in the league and Forest View is 6-3 overall.

Fremd, 1-5 in the loop, hosts winless Glenbard North tonight at 7:00. The Vikings are 3-1 overall while Glenbard North has not won in six tries.

Mid-Suburban League gymnasts are rising higher in the ratings in each event as the weeks go by.

Arlington is second and Hersey third behind Waukegan in free floor exercise. Arlington's Steve Von Ebers looks like a favorite to win his second straight title.

The Cardinals rank second to Hinsdale Central on the side horse behind Hinsdale Central. Hersey is third-ranked on the horizontal bar behind New Trier East and Evanston.

Elk Grove's trio of Neal Dorsey, Bill Helbig and Al Mitsos rates as the best in the state on the trampoline.

Hersey has the second best parallel bars squad in the state and Prospect is third. Area gymnasts are not ranked on the still rings. In all-around, Gary Morava of Hersey is rated third and Benny Fernandez of Elk Grove is fifth.

'Y' Boys Splash To Another Win

The Northwest Suburban Boys Swim Team, coached by John Eliot, remains undefeated in dual meets by winning over Elmhurst YMCA 289 - 62 at Elmhurst Saturday. Due to their great depth in all divisions, the NWS boys started out in the lead and stayed there during the whole meet, winning 11 places in 35 out of 41 events, and all ten of the relay events.

There were five team records set: The Intermediate 200 yard medley relay — Schwarting, Lemberger, Nychay, Philbin, with a time of 1:55.4; the Junior 100 yard breaststroke — Ross Peterson, with a time of 1:13.9; the Intermediate 100 yard breaststroke — Rick Schwarting, with a time of 1:12.5; the Junior 200 yard freestyle — Dave Sehnert, 2:13.0; and the 200 yard Intermediate freestyle — Rick Schwarting, 2:02.6.

Next Saturday, the NWS boys will host the tough West Suburban team, the winner of the Harvey Relays, and it should prove to be a very exciting and close meet. The meet will be held at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, Northwest Highway, Des Plaines, from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m.

It is interesting to note that although the YMCA is located in Des Plaines, the 75 members of the Boy's Swim Team come from no less than 15 different suburbs in the northwest area.

MEET RESULTS — First Placers
CADET — 100 yard medley relay — Mate, Beutler, Lucansky, Wilken, 1:25.2; 25 yard freestyle — Tom Behnke, 16.4; 25 yard butterfly — Dave Nelson, 21.6; 50 yard freestyle — Tom Behnke, 39.8; 25 yard breaststroke — John Leasniak, 26.3; 100 yard freestyle relay — Nelson, Wilken, Kalal, Behnke, 1:15.7.

INTERMEDIATE — 200 yard medley relay — Schwarting, Lemberger, Nychay, Philbin, 1:55.4; 50 yard freestyle — Screven Farmer, 28.0; 200 individual medley — Jim Smoker, 2:44.6; 100 yard butterfly — Phil Nychay, 1:02.3; 100 yard freestyle — Phil Philbin, 1:00.3; 100 yard breaststroke — Rick Schwarting, 1:12.5; 200 yard freestyle relay — Smoker, Nychay, Farmer, Philbin, 1:46.5.

Offer Youth Mat Program

Boys in the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th grades interested in wrestling are urged to sign up for the Palatine Park District wrestling program.

The program meets every Tuesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Ten dual meets and two quadrangulars are scheduled for the park district team.

Meetings and practices are held in the Palatine High School gymnasium. Rich Jesky of the Palatine Park District and Palatine High School wrestling coaches run the program. Entry fee for the program is two dollars.

Conant Wins Frosh Tourney

An outstanding Conant freshmen wrestling team outlasted 15 other entries to eke out the team championship by one point last Saturday in the 16-team Barrington Invitational frosh mat tournament.

Conant's final total of 90 points was just good enough to get past runner-up Zion-Benton's 89 in the three-day affair.

Three individuals topped championships for the Cougars and three others took second place. All six of these boys are undefeated in conference action for the year.

Keeping their records perfect on the way to titles for Conant were Guy Bedow at 115, Steve Westover at 98 and Andy Jones at 165. Also unbeaten in Mid-Suburban League scuffling and earning second-place finishes for the Cougars were Glen Komerska at 123, Jerry O'Malley at 135 and Bill Koppari at 175.

Conant's frosh will wrestle another undefeated squad, Wheeling, at home for the conference championship this Saturday.

WOLD WHIRLS through horizontal bar routine. Ron Wold of Prospect High School, one of the state's most versatile performers, performs a reach under vault on the high bar in Knight practice session. Wold, who has hit 7.50 on the high bar in Mid-Suburban action will perform tonight as Prospect entertains Forest View.

YMCA Girls Win 4th in Row

The Northwest Suburban YMCA girls swimming team won its fourth meet in a row Saturday, easily downing the Elmhurst YMCA girls, 241-92.

The Cadets and Midgets made off with every first place in all events and set new pool records in the midget relay with a 2:18.8 time for 200 yards. Little Di Francesca cut down her 50 yard breaststroke time to 39.1. As a division, the midgets have the highest point totals thus far.

Prep swimmer Lee Doehler was another time-cutter, lowering her record 50 yard backstroke time to 34.8.

Next weekend the Northwest team will travel to LaGrange to test their unbeaten six-year dual meet record against the West Suburban YMCA girls.

CADETS (8 and under) — 100 yard medley relay: Linda Eggert, Chris Takata, Nora Halvorsen, Jody Duenser. 25 yard freestyle: Ginger Moloney. 25 yard butterfly: Barb Larsen. 50 yard freestyle: Nora Halvorsen. 25 yard backstroke: Linda Eggert. 25 yard breaststroke: Chris Takata. 100 yard medley relay: Larsen, Takata, Halvorsen, Moloney.

Hawks Now 9-5

Harper in Mat Romp

Harper College had hardly a warmup wrestling meet at Wheaton College Friday.

The Hawks, under the guiding hand of Coach Ron Bessemer, romped past their hosts 30-5 in a non-conference dual. Harper would probably have posted a shutout had there been a 190-pounder to go against the Wheaton contestant.

The Hawks opened up the meet with some no-sweat matches as Jim Lynch and Conrad Martinez posted a pair of forfeits so they had to wrestle themselves!

John Florsberg (134) followed with the only pin of the night at 6:56. Mike Ferguson, Tom Neuses, Ray Vitha, Don Michener and Bruce Schott followed with decisions, the most lopsided being Vitha's 29-9 effort!

Bessemer pointed out that he had told Vitha to get a good work out so the fine 150-pounder toyed with his opponent throughout.

It was victory No. 9 for Harper against five setbacks. The Hawks will be seeking a high finish in the Northern Illinois Junior College League meet this Friday and Saturday at Triton College.

High Bar Finish Aids 'Cats

A strong finish on the high bar hiked Wheeling past Maine West 95.22 to 92.82 in a non-conference gymnastics dual conducted on the loser's floor Saturday.

Coach Wayne Selvig's crew compiled a healthy 19.2 composite on the rings to wind up the meet and moved ahead by a point and a half after trailing 72.45 to 70.85 up to that time. Rene Mathis then put the finishing touches on the triumph by outscoring his Warrior opponent in the all around competition 5.17 to 4.27.

Rick Bieg paced the rings showing with a winning 7.0 tempo while Mathis carded a 6.65 for second and Reinhard Brody tied for third at 5.55. The 'Cats also picked up blue ribbons in the floor exercise and parallel bars competition, Steve Holthaus and Mathis respectively taking the honors.

Holthaus hit a 6.95 routine in floor exercise and Mathis earned a 6.15 and Don Rainer a 4.45 to fashion a sweep in the opening event. On the p-bars Mathis' winning average was 6.5 while sophomore Bill Glenn fashioned a 5.3 to notch a third.

The visiting Wildcats also captured the frosh-oph phase of the meeting, tallying 52.0 to 38.2 for Maine.

Aukerman Dissatisfied

Falcon Swimmers Lose

"We just didn't bring enough competitors, I guess," said Gordon Aukerman, head swimming coach at Forest View, after Monday's dual meet with Lake Forest.

The Falcons — not fulfilling the expectations of their coach — suffered only their second setback of the season, 49-46, at the Lake Forest pool.

"It was a most dissatisfying meet to me," Aukerman continued. "I would say that with three exceptions, this is probably the poorest performance I have seen from these kids in the last two years. I got good performances out of three boys — John Mate, Scott Patience and Jim Johnson — and the other boys just came along for the bus ride."

Patience came up with two sound finishes in the 50 and 100 freestyle events, Mate captured a first in the 200 and a second in the 400 freestyle and Johnson took the diving.

Runnersup in the other events were Fred Westdale in both the individual medley and the butterfly and Norb Polacek in the breaststroke.

Taking thirds were Pete Lenkeit in both the 200 and 400 freestyle, Polacek in the individual medley, Dan Leitner in diving, Jim Feldhan in the butterfly, Mark Bailey in the 100 freestyle and Doug Schmitt in the backstroke.

The 400 freestyle relay team won behind the work of Westdale, Bailey, Mate and Patience. However, the Falcons lost the medley relay.

The Falcons, now 10-2 on the season, will be hoping to get back to their winning ways Friday when they return to Mid-Suburban League competition with an away meet with Elk Grove at Lively Pool. The meet will begin at 4:30 p.m.

LaGrange Passes Lincoln

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — La Grange's basketball team moved into the No. 1 slot in the 10th weekly United Press International prep coaches' poll released Tuesday.

The undefeated La Grange cagers replaced Lincoln, unbeaten in 19 games. Lawrenceville and East St. Louis Assumption, the other two unbeaten preps in the poll, moved up a notch in this week's ratings, to the ninth and 14th posts respectively. Both teams are 17-0 on the season as is No. 1 La Grange.

The top 16 teams with total votes and season's record are:

1. La Grange 17-0 214
2. Lincoln 19-0 208

3. East Moline 16-1 190
4. La Salle-Peru 17-1 171

Hoffman Boys Claim Tourney Crown

The Sexy Saints, bowling out of Hoffman Lanes, won the Bantam Boys Division in the sixth annual Elgin Junior Bowling Association tournament held Jan. 17, 18, 24 and 25 at Elgin Lanes.

Open to all American Junior Bowling Congress sanctioned bowlers in the Elgin Junior Bowling Association, a first-place finish qualifies the team for the Illinois State Junior Bowling tournament to be held in Joliet, April 11 and 12.

The five young men bowl at Hoffman Lanes in a junior program that is one of the largest American Junior Bowling Congress sanctioned programs in the state. The boys rolled an amazing 2308 scratch, adding 267 pins for handicap for their winning 2575 series.

Bowling comes naturally to them. Ted and Bill Geiersbach's father is Ted Geiersbach, Sr., president of the Paddock Classic Traveling League and secretary of the Elgin Junior Bowling Association. Kevin Koch is following in the path of his older sister, Lorrie, who is leading the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League in individual average. Mark Koss is the son of Lennie Koss, proud possessor of a sanctioned 298 game bowled at Hoffman Lanes last season. Joe Paladino's family counts eight league bowlers in its ranks.

The Geiersbachs live in Hoffman Estates. Paladino and Koss reside in Hanover Park, and Koch is from Carpentersville.

BOY WONDERS. This quartet, bowling out of Hoffman Lanes, recently won a tournament with a 2575 handicap

Falcon Finmen Record 10th Victory

The Forest View swimming team's record splashed into the double figures category at Elgin Larkin Friday afternoon.

Coach Gordon Aukerman's boys had a laugh in boosting their season dual totals to 10-1 with a 62-33 romp.

Although the hosts got into the scoring column first with a win in the medley relay, the Falcons came hustling back strong behind the swimming of John Mate and Fred Westdale. Mate captured the 200 and 400 freestyle events and Westdale won the individual medley and the butterfly.

Peter Lenkeit finished second behind Mate in both events.

Also posting first place showings were

Jim Johnson in diving, Norb Polacek in the breaststroke and Scott Patience in the 100 freestyle.

In the runnerup spots in other events were Patience in the 50 freestyle, Polacek in the individual medley, Jim Feldhan in the butterfly and Mark Bailey in the 100 freestyle.

Taking thirds were Bailey in the 50 freestyle and Doug Schmitt in the backstroke.

The final victory came in the 400 freestyle relay went the steady combination of Westdale, Bailey, Mate and Patience prevailed.

The sophomores of Forest View upped their record to 4-7 overall with a similar romp — 62-32.

The Way We See It

Here Is How You Can Help

How much do you care about helping other people?

Enough to talk about it, or enough to do something about it?

The measure of caring is in action, and that is the traditional stumbling block of so many of us with good intentions.

Sometimes it's because of lack of commitment or sincerity. We talk compassion, but it's only an exercise, and we become the ones who really need help.

But sometimes it's just because we don't know how to help. We want to do well, but we don't know what we can do, who we can help, how we can extend ourselves, what role we can play, even if small.

For that kind of compassion in search of direction, there is not only hope, but now the specific means to put it into action.

A year ago, and then again last week, groups were formed in these suburbs with the sole intent of helping people help each other.

The first was the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County, formed after a survey of the need by a special subcommittee of the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship. It was the special project of the Rev. Leon Haring of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Bonnie Genrich of Buffalo Grove and Mrs. Lois Moore of Arlington Heights, who now has to leave the group because of her husband's job transfer.

The bureau went in search of volunteers to give help wherever it is needed — in schools, health and welfare agencies, social agencies. Their assignment: to provide assistance in any field in which they had a special talent, whether it be as teacher aids, clerical work, dental services, working with the deaf, lecturing, sewing, ceramics work, acting as a receptionist.

The bureau does the recruiting, interviewing and placing of all volunteers, who can give as much or as little time as they want in their specialized field.

More than 300 persons have been placed in volunteer jobs already, and the bureau has added three branch offices to aid its main headquarters at John Hersey High School.

More personal help may come from FISH, the growing national organization which opened a chapter last week to serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights, and anyone in the surrounding area who's interested.

It works basically through a phone service, taking calls and providing help for things as fundamental as emergency babysitting and transportation, and as deeply personal as alcoholism. Sometimes help is provided directly; sometimes referrals are made.

If you need help, call the Volunteer Service Bureau (392-6051) or FISH (392-2300). If you want to give help, volunteer.

City Beat

No Family Flicks?

by JUDY BRANDES

On and off for the past six years, residents of Rolling Meadows have tried to get family-type movies shown at the local theater.

The company which schedules movies through the theater has said there aren't enough family entertainment movies being made to show them continually in local theaters.

Last summer teens in the city even passed a petition seeking action by the city council to bring different types of films to Rolling Meadows. A semi boycott is in effect right now.

Judy Brandes

Whether or not the boycott is intentional, Rolling Meadows residents are not the majority of patrons at the theater in their city. In a check of vehicle stickers on cars in the parking lot, most city stickers are those of surrounding towns.

Recently Mayor Roland J. Meyer told a citizen appearing at a council meeting the city council is not in the business of legislating morals. He suggested the citizens organize a group or arouse interest among church parishioners to exert pressure on local theaters to bring decent movies to the suburbs.

The city council is in no position to take action against movies considered indecent by the general Rolling Meadows populace. In view of U.S. Supreme Court cases and an attempt about a year ago by a suburban city council to confiscate a film, the Rolling Meadows city council can do little to censor the type of movies shown within the city.

CHURCH GROUPS, whose parish members often cross town boundaries, can do something. Local parishes could launch local campaigns. But more importantly, their national organizations could easily organize campaigns to inform their church members of movie content, pressure movie makers to produce more family films, and support active local campaigns.

Everyone talks about the bad films and refuses to send their children to see them. What needs to be seen is a visible expression of discontent over the movies being shown in the suburban theaters. If people are upset about their local theater and feel it detracts from an otherwise clean, healthy atmosphere their children are growing up in, they should do something about it. Legally, there is little recourse. Practically, no theater is going to continue to operate if it can't make money.

The economic principle of supply and demand works here. Producers won't supply the bad films unless there is a demand for them. Decrease the demand for bad films, and the type of movies people want to see will be produced.

Last week would have been a good time to begin an active, visible campaign against showing indecent films in local theaters. This week isn't. John Wayne, the good guy, is appearing in Rolling Meadows and almost all of his films are for general audiences.

Help Needed Is HELP Available

by SUE CARSON

A helping hand.

To an insecure teen coping with all the emotional upsets that come with growing up, a friendly smile and a talk with an understanding adult can be greatly appreciated.

Sue Carson

Too often, however, youth are unable to find an adult to whom they can turn when troubled.

MANY ARE UNABLE to communicate with their parents. They may find school personnel authoritarian or look on them as "informers."

So their problems remain, and they sometimes turn to drugs, alcohol or destructive acts as a consequence.

In Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, a group of enlightened and concerned residents has recognized that youth problems exist in the community and is trying a new approach to solve them.

The new group is HELP. The initials stand for Help Eliminate Local Problems.

HELP is headed by the Rev. Bruce Wheeler, pastor of St. Hilary's Episcopal Church in Prospect Heights. The group is composed of individuals from a variety of backgrounds — parents, school personnel, civic leaders, policemen, students and simply interested residents.

ALTHOUGH THE fledgling organization is just beginning to get its feet off the ground, members are discussing the possibility of setting up a teen center in the community.

Trained, responsible adults would be present at the center, to talk with teens if they were asked to.

Recently the group met with Emerson Thomas of the Palatine Township Youth Committee to discuss a similar project in that community.

The idea is a good one. And it deserves the support of the entire community.

A teen center would enable youth to have their own place to congregate. It would help solve the problem of youth gathering in the parking lots of drive-in restaurants or standing on street corners because "there's no where else to go."

And a little friendly advice from an older person, if requested, could possibly do a great deal toward alleviating the youth problems of the community.

YOUTH PROBLEMS in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are no more severe than in any other community in the area.

Yet Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, unlike some other communities, are willing to admit that these problems do exist and that conventional methods of solving them have not been too successful.

Although still in the formative stages, it is evident that HELP has some pretty ambitious plans up its sleeve. The problems this committee is tackling are complicated ones which cannot be solved overnight.

Yet, this group could accomplish a great deal for the community.

HELP deserves the support of the entire community.

Housing Law a Local Tool

I have read with interest Judy Brandes' City Beat column in the Jan. 29 Herald. I frankly am singularly unimpressed with her conclusions. I think she missed a point, just as we feel the Rolling Meadows City Council missed a point when it failed to act on our proposed open housing ordinance.

From our standpoint, the ordinance was not just to have a piece of paper to wave around.

An open housing ordinance would represent a demonstration of the attitude of the community, and a recognition of the significance of the social change that is occurring in our country today. There some day may be a problem in Rolling Meadows, and it is far better to have a manner of handling such a problem rather than try to cope with the problem under the pressure of the moment. I think perhaps most overlooked was that local open housing legislation provides a means to handle problems on a local basis.

She commented at length on the efforts of the mayor and the city council in connection with substandard housing. The City of Rolling Meadows apparently did not concern itself with this problem before Lt. Governor Paul Simon, "discovered one of the substandard houses visited... was in Rolling Meadows." Further, I see no evidence of concern prior to the Elk Grove substandard housing fiasco. Now, for the mayor and city council to fail to move following the Lt. Governor's visit would have indeed been truly embarrassing. In other words, what choice had the city but to respond.

I DO NOT denigrate the financial assistance and other assistance offered, but I wonder if it will be there when a black family has a problem buying a home in Rolling Meadows. Buying a home, not merely renting an apartment.

She was on the scene rather late as far as our efforts in connection with seeking an open housing ordinance, but I dare say the attitudes expressed by certain members of the city government could not go unnoticed by you. There were those who were constructive, but there were also those who demonstrated defensiveness and suspicion.

I think the "welcome mat" is yet to be tested. As a resident of Rolling Meadows, I do hope it's there, but on the other hand, I've seen little to demonstrate that it really is.

Leisure Activities Leave Us Limp?

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

Leisure has to fight for survival in Hanover Park Leisure, as presented by the park district in recreation programs, just doesn't excite most residents.

The park district isn't untypical of other area districts. It has little money that must be stretched to do gigantic tasks of development. Donations are what really saves the district. Donations have given residents Ahlstrand Park and Fieldhouse, the Longmeadows Recreation Center and the community swimming pool scheduled for completion this summer.

TO UTILIZE THE fieldhouse and center, the park directors seasonally schedule recreation programs. They schedule things like judo, sewing, bridge, men's basketball, flag football, archery and even piano and voice lessons. The park district even pays to have brochures printed outlining the programs and delivers them to all homes in the village.

So what happens? Nobody is interested in the programs, and the dejected park board drops the programs. Pres. Harold Humphreys, who has given yooman's service to the district for a number of years, said this fall, "No matter how hard we try, we're not getting to the people or they're not interested in what we offer."

Since the "selling" program wasn't working, the park directors tried the "marketing" approach to the problem. They made a public interest survey, sending questionnaires to all local families.

About the only thing that excited those returning the questionnaire were outdoor and indoor pools. Most of the residents either indicated they were opposed or had no opinion to the park district providing tennis courts, picnic areas, lighted parks, shelters at parks, a par 3 golf course, a regulation golf course and basketball and baseball facilities and programs.

THAT'S PRETTY discouraging and a little hard to understand. Maybe golf isn't a popular pastime with Hanover Park residents, but picnic facilities and lighted parks aren't considered essential either.

What then are Hanover Park residents interested in? Besides the pools, which also received a high percentage of negative votes, residents suggested babysitting service, bowling alley and roller skating rink, a library, a movie theater and more local restaurants.

The suggestions aren't much help to the park board, but maybe businessmen will recognize the potential market in the Hanover Park area. Meanwhile, maybe the park board should direct its energies to other pursuits and offer only recreation programs that residents specifically request and show they will support.

Gift: Little City

The W. W. Grainger Foundation, Wilmette, has contributed $65,000 for the construction of a new food service building, at Little City, a residential training center for mentally retarded children at Palatine. News of the generous gift was announced by Joseph A. Power, president of the Little City Foundation.

The new facility, which will be known as the Grainger Food Service Building, will be centrally located, accessible to all of the other buildings, so Little City's chefs can easily prepare all the meals for the children in the residential cottages.

The new kitchen will have the latest innovations for preparing complete on-premise meals, including the modern cooking unit previously donated by the Grainger Foundation.

IN ADDITION to a new kitchen, the food service building will have a faculty dining room, where members of Little City's professional and volunteer staff can enjoy their meals as well as conduct conferences and meetings.

The new food service building will be contemporary in design and adaptable to meet the needs of mentally retarded children. Groundbreaking and construction dates will be announced later.

Little City opened its doors in 1959 on 60 acres of land near Palatine. It is not an institution, but, as its name implies, Little City is a non-profit, non-sectarian residential community especially created and geared for the training, treatment, education and rehabilitation of mentally retarded children.

Urban League Head to Talk At Park Ridge

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, will discuss the "Black Revolution" at Maine South High School in Park Ridge Feb. 10, at 8 p.m. He will speak to the audience via a special telephonic hook-up from Washington, D.C.

Combined with Whitney Young's interview and discussion through the telephone, will be a "live" lecture by Ashby Smith, Director of Economic Development and Employment for the Chicago Urban League. There will also be a visual presentation showing ghetto life and the basis for the current "Black Revolution."

The lectures by Whitney Young and Ashby Smith are the sixth in the current series on "The American Identity Crisis" presented monthly by the Forest Hospital Foundation and the Maine Township Adult Evening School.

According to Alexander Kruzel, coordinator of the Maine Adult Evening School, the Feb. 10 lectures will "describe the Black Revolution in a variety of ways — social, political, economic, moral, or a combination of each. Young and Ashby will discuss the forces and directions being taken by the black man to reduce his frustrations and overcome his problems."

Morris B. Squire, the administrator of Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, will serve as moderator of the program.

Maine South High School is located at 1111 Dee Road in Park Ridge.

Hospitalization: Part-Time Basis

By the Staff of Forest Hospital

What does the harried housewife do if her psychiatrist recommends hospitalization and she has a husband and children to attend to?

The answer is part-time hospitalization. Dr. Rudolph G. Novick, medical director of Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, says part-time hospitalization holds great hope for the wage earner who cannot take time off from the job to be hospitalized, as well as the homemaker.

"There are many patients who really could achieve the restoration of functioning that we aim at through the hospitalization, even without spending a full 24 hours a day for a certain number of days in the hospital," says Dr. Novick. "Depending upon the particular difficulties that a person is having, he or she could benefit from spending, say, the daytime or the nighttime in the hospital, especially when this hospitalization is covered by major health and hospitalization insurers."

THERE ARE well-accepted reasons for sending a person to a psychiatric hospital. One is the removal from a distressful situation. This removal may not be therapeutic in itself, but it does allow for a halting of the process in the patient's environment.

Another reason is to provide for new experiences that, amazing as it may seem, life today may not provide.

One thinks of the housewife who is confined for months, almost 24 hours a day, in her home with the children. Sometimes the husband is traveling, and she never has the chance to talk with many adults. She thus finds herself almost isolated or at least in a monotonous type of situation.

The psychiatric hospital can provide for her a variety of new experiences that are rejuvenating psychologically. Even spending her nights, or weekends, at the hospital while her husband is with the children — and she is with them at the other times — can give her both the change of scene and the therapy she requires.

THE SAME holds true for the man. He can spend the day on the job, some time with his family, and then to the hospital for treatment, either at night or during the weekend. He thus continues to be the breadwinner while undergoing his psychotherapy.

There will be greater emphasis on this hospitalization after work or hospitalization during a weekend, Dr. Novick believes. Psychiatrists will pay more attention to selecting the cases when this part-time hospitalization may be indicated.

Psychiatrists "cut the cloth to fit the patient." Some patients only need day care or night care. Some patients need full-time hospitalization. Some people only require psychotherapy on an out patient basis.

WE PROGRAM OUR MORNINGS TO FIT YOUR MORNINGS

6 TO 6:30

We know. It's that snuggle-back-down-again time of the morning. The World and BENSON & RUSSELL are just beginning to dawn on you. Softly. So we keep the talk down and the music nice to lull-a-wake-up-to.

6:30 TO 7

But don't try to go back to sleep. That old morning routine is still lurking on the other side of the covers. So BENSON & RUSSELL pick up the pace a little. Like reminding you what time it is... every few minutes or so. Not pushy, mind you. A little nudgy maybe.

News. Weather. Sports. 10 full minutes of what's happening at 7. Because whether you're ready or not, the world is. (But just so we don't miss you, we've got another 10 minutes of news at 6 and 8.)

This is Spunky, our li'l chopper. It's nice to know he's up there route-ing for you. Mornings between 6:30 and 9:15.

All the traffic will bare, it bares to Spunky fastest.

7:10 TO 7:30

Up tempo. Up beat. And up to you to get the family moving. With a little help from BENSON & RUSSELL of course. They tell you how to dress the kids. With weather information when you need it most. Before you send them out.

7:30 TO 8:30

Ah, that maddest part of the morning scramble (or do you prefer sunnyside up?). We keep it cooking. And tasty. ✱ With the sounds of Herb Alpert. Glen Campbell. Pet Clark. And a dash of Tom Jones. ✱ But when there's something you need to know. We break in. ✱ With news bulletins. Weather changes. Traffic up-dates. Sports. And another full 10 minutes of News at 8. All together. To get you through the Scurries.

BENSON AND RUSSELL might even help to light a fire under the kids. Just to get them flying... off to school.

8:45

You know the feeling. The old ooze and ahs. That one magic moment of exquisite exhaustion. We know the feeling too.

Don't worry. We wouldn't let you do the dishes alone. Just add BENSON & RUSSELL to the water.

It's sort of like the WIND throwing caution to you.

9 TO 10

Finally. Sit back and relax. Enjoy a cup of coffee (Benson takes cream and sugar).

We'll keep it light and cheerful. To fit the mood we try to help you have all day.

AND THAT'S WHAT'S IN THE MORNING WIND. RADIO THAT'S IN TUNE WITH YOU.

From Her Bride Days

Recipes She Can Count On

by LOIS SEILER

With seven years of cooking experience now behind her, Mrs. Alvin F. Hattendorf still favors those recipes she first made as a bride.

"They've proven themselves over the years, and I can always count on them to be successful," she said.

An avid reader of Gourmet magazine, this young homemaker has tried many new recipes, experimented with a variety of foods and already earned the reputation of being a good cook. But she has greatest confidence in the old standbys.

Three of these make elegant luncheon fare: a main dish tuna mold, homemade refrigerator rolls and a different and delicious spice cake.

"The tuna mold is simple to prepare, yet looks so pretty and tastes so good," Lynn commented.

SHE USES FOUR cups tuna fish in this recipe, combining it with mayonnaise (no substitutes, please!) and unflavored gelatin. Pickle relish adds zip, while onions and celery give texture and additional flavor.

Lynn makes this a day ahead, pouring the mixture into a fish mold. Before serving, she unmolds it on a lettuce-lined platter, using pickle slices to decorate the fins and olive slices for the eyes. At each corner of the platter are placed lettuce cups filled with relishes such as radishes, olives and two kinds of pickles.

With this rich and attractive mold, she serves potato chips and hot rolls.

Her homemade rolls are made by an unbelievably easy method; no milk need be added, nor is any kneading involved.

AFTER THE INGREDIENTS are mixed together, the dough may be used immediately or stored in the refrigerator up to five days.

Lynn simply forms the dough into balls, placing three in each cup of a muffin tin to make cloverleaf rolls. Left to rise until double, they take only 15 minutes to bake.

"With the dough all ready, it is so easy to have fresh rolls any time for a luncheon or dinner," she explained.

This good cook has also frozen baked rolls and reheated them in foil before serving, with equally good results.

"The aroma of fresh rolls baking seems to whet the appetite of my guests," Lynn remarked. "And their light texture and good flavor are appealing with any lunch or dinner."

Another appetizing aroma is that which comes from her unusual spice cake which contains both raisins and cherries.

"THIS SPICE CAKE is full-flavored but not overpowering," Lynn commented.

Made from an old family recipe, it calls for cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Lynn bakes it in two layer tins, or doubles the recipe to fill three large layers. An unusual icing, which is more like a glaze, is used to fill and frost the cake.

Moist in texture, this is a delightful dinner dessert and excellent for a coffee party as well.

Lynn enjoys entertaining and laughingly remarked that she loves to eat as much as she loves to cook. To counteract the calories in the good food that she prepares, she belongs to TOPS, which helps her keep her weight down.

A FORMER ICE skating teacher, she still enjoys this sport as well as swimming, and likes to bowl with the Early Bird League at the Elk Grove Bowl.

Her three children, Todd, 6; Tracy, 5; and Terri Ann, 1½, also keep her active, and she belongs to the PTA and the Queen of the Rosary Church.

The family lives at 265 Mimosa Lane in Elk Grove Village.

MAIN DISH TUNA MOLD

2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
4 small cans tuna fish
1 pint mayonnaise
½ cup sweet pickle relish
½ cup celery, chopped fine
½ cup finely-chopped onions

In a large bowl, soften gelatin in cold water. Stir well. Add boiling water. Let cool. Add remaining ingredients and mix well.

Pour into an oiled fish mold or any Jello mold. Refrigerate overnight.

Unmold on lettuce-lined platter. Decorate fins with pickle slices and use sliced olives with pimiento for eyes. Arrange lettuce cups at each corner of the platter and fill with relishes such as radishes, olives and pickles. Serves 4 to 6.

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

1 cup lukewarm water
¼ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1 package dry yeast
1 egg
2 tablespoons soft margarine
¾ to 1½ cups flour

Mix together the lukewarm water, sugar, salt and yeast; stir until dissolved. Add the egg and margarine. Sift in the flour and work ingredients together until a soft dough is formed.

Grease the top of the dough, cover with waxed paper and a damp cloth. It may be stored in the refrigerator up to five days or can be used immediately.

One-and-a-half hours before baking, form the dough into cloverleaf rolls by the following method: roll pieces of dough into the size of walnuts and place three into each greased cup of muffin tins. Cover with a tea towel and let rise in a warm place until double.

Bake at 400 degrees about 15 minutes. Makes about 18 rolls.

SPICE CAKE

½ cup white raisins
1 cup hot water
½ cup butter

1 cup sugar
2 well-beaten eggs
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
12 maraschino cherries, diced fine

About a half-hour before starting to mix the cake, soak the raisins in hot water to soften them. Drain well before using.

Cream butter and sugar. Add beaten eggs.

Combine flour and baking soda and spices. Add to the creamed mixture in thirds, along with 1/3 of the buttermilk, 1/3 of the drained, softened raisins and 1/3 of the cherries. Repeat until all is used up, beating well after each addition.

Turn into two greased and floured, 8-inch layer tins. (A double recipe will make three 9-inch layers.)

Bake in a 325 degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes. When cake is cool, fill and frost with the following icing:

1 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Enough milk to make it spread

½ cup chopped pecans

Combine ingredients to make a very thin icing, similar to a glaze. Spread between layers on the top and sides of cake.

(Double the icing recipe when doubling the cake recipe.)

28 Ways To Say 'I Love You'

by MARY KAY MARSH

Playing cards the other night, a friend mentioned a book of a year or so ago that listed a different idea for every day of the year to show someone you loved him. She didn't remember the book title or the author, but she did remember one of the projects: fill his car with blown-up balloons.

Well, our husband drives the children to school and somehow we don't think he would appreciate rushing out some morning and trying to cram four kids into a VW already full of inflated balloons. Still, the basic idea is a good one, so we spent a little time figuring out ways to adapt it to our side — the wrong side — of the generation gap. Here are a few suggestions that might inspire you to spell out L-O-V-E, family style, during the loveliest month of all:

1. MAKE A BATCH of sugar cookies. Sprinkle with dry gelatin dessert crystals before baking, for a rainbow of colors.
2. Tighten up the buttons on your husband's coat before they fall off.
3. Take your children out to supper — one at a time.
4. Smile until after breakfast.
5. Teach your youngsters a game you liked as a child. Play it with them.
6. Darn your husband's socks.
7. Buy the cereal with the most-coveted premium, and to heck with cost-per-ounce.
8. Have your hair done, preferably in a different way. Treat your family to a new and different you.

9. Take your family on a trip tonight — to Spain perhaps, with a new recipe for paella. Yes, you probably would look silly with a rose between your teeth. But a bit of music and a few props will put a lot more atmosphere into your foreign dinner.

10. TUCK A LITTLE love note in your gradester's (or your husband's) lunchbox. Add a cupcake or other favorite treat, just to show you mean it.

11. Write "I love you" on the bathroom mirror to cheer your early risers.

12. Let your youngsters make place-cards for a Lincoln's birthday supper, drawing a log cabin or taping shiny Lincoln-head pennies on each one.

13. Bake cookies for children's Valentines. Personalize with the squirt-on frosting that comes in a pressurized can. Or use evaporated milk, tinted with food coloring. (Paint before you bake.)

14. Think Pink for Valentine's. Bake a party cake and set a pretty table.

15. Find a "good news" story in the paper. Talk about it at supper.

16. Devote at least half an hour of exclusive, concentrated time to your middle youngster.

17. Go through the whole day without raising your voice once.

18. Check your paper for a concert, exhibit, lecture or something new and different to attend. Attend.

19. SAY SOMETHING nice about everybody in the family.

20. Darn those socks.

21. Invite somebody new over for dessert and coffee.

22. Bake a cherry pie in honor of Washington's birthday.

23. Invite your early gradester to invite a friend home after school. Plan a special treat, or have something different for them to do.

24. Write for literature on some vacation spot you've all talked about as a possibility for next summer. Or paste last summer's vacation snapshots in the family scrapbook.

25. Blow up a cluster of balloons to brighten up the supper table.

26. Pay your husband at least one heartfelt compliment.

27. Make a pan of fudge, or pull a batch of taffy.

28. Resolve to darn those socks next month. Or live a little: buy him new ones.

Hello Hostess

Celery: Dieter's Friend

Once people had to make do with what could be most easily preserved for the long winter's wait. Now there are huge winter growing areas, such as the fields of Florida, which produce an abundance of fine, fresh vegetables — corn, celery, pole beans, for example.

Florida leads in supplying the nation with fresh vegetables during the winter months. On an annual basis it ranks next only to California, Texas, Arizona and New York follow, but rank well behind Florida. In fact, Florida's giant agribusiness surpasses even its famed tourism.

To brighten up winter menus, try this recipe that uses all three fresh Florida vegetables — sweet corn, celery and pole beans:

CORN, CELERY AND POLE BEANS TEMPURA

2 eggs
1 cup water
2 teaspoons soy sauce
¼ cup all purpose flour
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 ears fresh corn
3 ribs fresh celery
½ pound fresh pole beans

In small mixing bowl beat eggs. Add water and soy sauce. Gradually stir in flour, cornstarch, sugar, baking powder and salt; beat until smooth. Set batter aside.

CORN, CELERY and pole beans are good dipped in flavorful batter, then deep fat-fried. Good as hors d'oeuvres or as a hot vegetable.

Remove husks and silks from corn, cut into 2-inch chunks; slice each chunk in half crosswise. Cut celery into 2-inch pieces. Trim stem ends of pole beans; cut into thirds.

Dip vegetables into batter, to coat lightly. Fry, a few pieces at a time, in deep fat preheated to 350 degrees F. for 3 minutes or until lightly browned. Drain on paper toweling. Serve immediately with additional soy sauce, if desired.

As well as adding freshness to winter diets, celery is great for those trying to lose weight. From the Florida Celery Advisory Committee comes this interesting and helpful credo that all who count calories could well tuck in their billfold or tuck up on their bulletin boards.

1. Whenever I'm planning meals or reading a menu, I'll remember fresh celery — only 82 calories a full pound — only 3 for one small inner rib.

2. Whenever I long for a succulent snack in those long, long hours between meals and relaxing cocktail interludes, I'll reach for a crisp stalk of celery . . . instead.

3. Whenever I'm cooking, I'll recall that celery can help bulk out a dish, making it more flavorfully filling at a ridiculously low cost in calories.

4. In every meal I'll make sure to serve (or demand from the waiter) some crackly crisp celery — at least as a relish — because I know that reducing diets often lack the necessary crunch that celery so aptly provides.

5. At all times of diet balancing I'll also count on celery to supply useful amounts of vitamins and minerals, particularly vitamins A and C.

PREPARED A DAY ahead, this Main Dish Tuna Mold is a favorite luncheon recipe of Mrs. Alvin F. Hattendorf. Before serving it, she decorates the fish-shaped mold with sliced pickles and olives.

A Taste of Europe

by MARY ELLEN POURCHOT

There's nothing more Swiss than fondue (unless it's the music of cowbells high on the green hills). So come with me to a Swiss kitchen to learn how this traditional dish is concocted.

First, we travel to the east end of the Bodensee (which unaccountably is Anglicized as Lake Constance) and then head up the steep grade behind Rorschach. Turn sharply at the sign, "Ferienort Wiennacht," which means "holiday village at Wiennacht." Rows of housekeeping cottages — a rare find in Europe — overlook the blue lake. At the central building is the small restaurant "Treichli," named for a locally famous cow.

WE ASK TO WATCH the fondue proceedings. The cook indicates with a laugh that it's a rule that only a man can come into another's Swiss kitchen. Perhaps this is a joke, or perhaps something is lost in translation. Anyway, we are invited to the back room. Along with the waitress and two other patrons to translate the German directions for us, we make quite a crowd in the tiny kitchen.

The smell of warm wine mingles with the strong cheese scent. There is much laughter as we puzzle over German and English meanings: does she use flour or cornstarch? How much is 15-grammes of cheese? How much does a brandy glass hold?

Meanwhile the cook stirs constantly, her spoon tracing figure eights in the thick sauce. Our university student interpreter draws me a diagram to show how to cut the French bread. Each bite-size must have a crust on one side.

AT THE TABLE we are given long-handled forks to pierce the bread (from soft edge towards crust). Now dip and twirl the cube into the chafing dish of melted cheese. Cool a moment before popping the morsel into the mouth. Ummmm . . . very flavorful, very companionable . . . especially when accompanied by candlelight and a good white wine and those you love.

Our fondue friends move their chairs to our table to talk about Switzerland and ask questions about the U.S. They tell us that custom decrees that whoever loses his bread to the fondue must pay the forfeit with a bottle of wine for the table. Another custom says that if a lady lets her bread fall, men at the table may kiss her. If a man drops his bread, he may kiss any girl he chooses.

AFTER FINAL handshakes and "guten nachts" all around, we walk back to the cabin and sit in the dark with our sons. The lights of Germany twinkle from the far side of the Bodensee. Clouds drift apart, revealing the bright stars of the Big Dipper. Until then, we had felt a little lonely as strangers in this foreign land. But that night in Switzerland we felt happy contentment in gazing at the familiar stars of home.

SWISS FONDUE:

In a pan or chafing dish, put one clove of garlic, crushed. Heat in the pan ½ cup white wine (such as Reisling). Add about 6 ounces Gruyere and 6 ounces Emmentaler cheese, cut into bits (Swiss cheese may be substituted). Stir well. When the mixture starts to bubble, stir in 1 heaping teaspoon cornstarch which has been blended with 4 tablespoons Kirsch. Add one shake of Worcestershire sauce, pepper and nutmeg to taste. Serve in the same pan, keeping fondue hot over a small flame.

I HAVE REDUCED the amounts of her original ingredients for this blend which makes about 1½ pints. In a large mixing bowl or electric blender, combine 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons paprika, juice of 1 fresh lemon, 1 small red onion grated, ½ cup catsup, ½ cup vinegar and 1 cup salad oil.

Blend until sugar is completely dissolved and all ingredients are thoroughly mixed.

Store in tight covered jar. Has good keeping qualities.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Two problems confront the chef when cooking domestic duckling. First is to find complementing flavor ingredients and second to cook out the fat while preserving natural juices.

I've tried many different methods but none more to my satisfaction than this. To serve 4 people, select a 4½ to 5-pound well-proportioned duckling. Soak in cold water. Remove neck and giblets and save for another use.

With poultry shears cut the duck in half lengthwise. Season with salt and pepper. Cover the bottom of a roasting pan with foil. Place the duck cut side down on the wire rack, being careful not to prick the skin.

IN A MIXING BOWL blend 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Pour this mixture over the duck halves, coating both sides and roast as indicated above in a 325-degree oven for 4 hours. Do not turn, but baste with pan juices about every half hour.

Sisters To Wed

Janet Papastefan

Ellen
Papastefan

After Ellen Papastefan of Schaumburg became engaged to George Pilcher of Arlington Heights, her sister Janet followed suit just three months later by accepting Henri Kapelle's marriage proposal.

Now, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Papastefan, 1325 W. Norwell Lane, are announcing their daughter's engagements together, as they plan for Ellen's wedding in May and look ahead to Janet's in the Fall of '71.

ELLEN'S FIANCE, son of the Robert Pilchers of Arlington Heights, is an aviation structural mechanic third class at the U. S. Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Texas. George attended Crystal Lake High School and will enroll at the University of Illinois to major in psychology when he leaves the service.

Ellen is a graduate of Conant High School. JANET PAPASTEFAN is betrothed to Henri Kapelle, son of the Helmut Kapelles of Schaumburg. She and her fiancé are Conant High School graduates, and Janet also attended Harper Junior College.

Henri is now an apprentice tool and die maker studying at an area school.

BP & W Speaker To Tell Of Life Under the Nazis

"The Odyssey of Jessica Gavrilovich," depicting life under Nazi occupation of Yugoslavia and 10 years under Communism, will be told by Mrs. Gavrilovich next Thursday evening, Feb. 12, to members and guests of Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club. Her husband and bosses of club members will be guests at this annual VIP night at Arlington Park Towers.

The speaker, who combines drama and humor with stories about old Serbian customs and the beauty and art of her country, is declared to be a woman who has talked herself into and out of more difficult situations than the most seasoned diplomats.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Ann Petrie, world affairs chairman of the BP&W, Mrs. Gavrilovich has maintained a witty outlook on life in spite of her wearying experiences which include arguing with Tito and operating on a Yugoslav battlefield with her husband.

Jessica Gavrilovich

Wife of George R. Gavrilovich, M.D., Mrs. Gavrilovich is a member of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations and the International Platform Association.

BP&W members will be making reservations by Monday with Marian Baker, 253-5877, or Mildred Gilman, 259-3498.

Sorority Activities

ALPHA OMICRON PI

There will be only three days remaining until the night of the ball when Northwest Suburban Alpha Omicron Pi alumnae meet next Wednesday evening in the Park Ridge home of Mrs. Donald Keenan.

Members will be entertaining their friends that evening, guest night. The program, a showing of fashions for spring, will be presented by Marge LeMeilleur of Marge's Apparel Sample Shop in Arlington Heights. Assisting will be Phyllis Bloss and Lorraine Monroe, sportswear buyer for the shop.

OLD ORCHARD Country Club will be the scene the following Saturday of the benefit ball, "Reverie in Red." The dinner dance affair on Valentine's evening will begin with a buffet dinner at 8 p.m. followed by dancing to the music of The Gem Tones from 9:30 until 1:30. Reservations are available through Mrs. William Reitz of Palatine, 358-6168. Mrs. John Holmes of Arlington Heights is on the decorations committee and is working on a glittering setting of hearts, cupid and red roses.

Proceeds of the dance will benefit the Arthritis Foundation, the AOP1 national philanthropic project and other charities.

CHI OMEGA

Four husband-pleasing selections will be on the menu Sunday, Feb. 22, when Chicago Northwest Suburban alumnae of Chi Omega host their annual "Husband's Night" at the Pheasant Run Restaurant and Theater. The evening will begin with dinner at 5:30 p.m. followed by the comedy, "Don't Drink the Water," starring Jerry Lester.

Winnie the Pooh Fashions Feb. 14

Children of Junior Woman's Club members will be modeling "Winnie the Pooh" fashions from Sears Roebuck and Company at the luncheon and fashion show to be sponsored by the 7th District Junior Woman's Clubs of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs Saturday, Feb. 14, at the Arlington Park Towers, Arlington Heights.

Clubs from Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Streamwood will be working together to put on this show, "Valentines in Vogue." Proceeds will be donated to the Clearbrook School for the Handicapped in Rolling Meadows, Northwest Community Mental Health Association and the Maine Township Mental Health Association. Luncheon will be served at 1 p.m. and tickets will be available from any Junior club member or by calling Mrs. Gloria Hogan, 437-6534.

"WIVES AND LOVERS" is the romantic title of a valentine dance set for Feb. 14 by Hoffman-Schaumburg Newcomers Club. Chairman Mrs. Richard Cleary, left, Mrs. Lorrey Guarero and Mrs. Philip Simmerer check over decorations made by Mrs. Simmerer's committee. The dance will be held in the Brandywine Room of Elk Grove Holiday Inn with a buffet breakfast at midnight. Reservations can be made with Mrs. Cleary, 894-8923, or Mrs. Simmerer, 894-7409.

Genealogist, DAR Speaker

The essentials of beginning research in genealogy will be discussed by Mrs. Donald Schiffman at today's (Thursday) meeting of Eli Skinner Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. A genealogy teacher in Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints in Arlington Heights, Mrs. Schiffman's topic is "Searching with Success."

With her husband and three sons, Mrs. Schiffman moved to Arlington Heights eight years ago from Logan, Utah.

Since one of the basic requirements for membership in the DAR is to be descended from a Revolutionary patriot and to furnish proof, members of the chapter are especially interested in various methods of genealogical research, according to Mrs. Raymond Thomas, regent. Genealogy is also a favorite hobby with members.

A HIGHLIGHT of the meeting will be the presentation of DAR Good Citizenship awards, which goes to senior girls chosen for their dependability, service, leadership and patriotism. The girls, chosen by the faculty and members of the senior class, will be honored at the state conference to be held in Chicago in March. The awards will be made by Mrs. E. H. Loughlin Jr.

Mrs. James Dodds II, 920 Burton Place, Arlington Heights, will be hostess for the 1 p.m. program. Assisting her will be Mrs. Richard F. Swisher and Mrs. Allan Schoeld.

Hoffman Newcomers Plan Agenda

The Conaires, a musical group from Conant High School, will entertain the meeting of the Hoffman-Schaumburg Newcomers Club on Thursday, Feb. 12, at the Indian Lakes Country Club, 24W201 Schick Road, Bloomingdale.

Newcomers to the area and members of the club are invited. Reservations may be made with Mrs. James Lowe, 529-4138, or Mrs. Albert Wyda, 894-5094 by Friday.

WEDNESDAY FEB. 18, the club's arts and crafts interest group is planning a trip to Ann's Figurines in Westchester. The tour is opened to newcomers and guests. Mrs. James Bryant, 837-5921 and Mrs.

Thomas Marselle, 894-8542 are available for reservations.

"Ladies Day Out" will include a trip to the Field Museum Tuesday Feb. 24. The ladies will meet at the Golf Rose Shopping Center at 9 a.m. Interested newcomers may call Mrs. William King at 829-8827 for details.

Philoptochos Group Sets Lunch, Show

Final plans are being made for the "Fashions on Canvas" luncheon fashion show to be given by the Philoptochos Society of Saint John the Baptist Greek Orthodox Church in Des Plaines. The date is Saturday, Feb. 21, in the Grand Ballroom of the Marriott Motor Hotel, 8535 W. Higgins Road, Chicago.

Fashions coordinated by the Bonwit Teller store located in Chicago's John Hancock Center will be shown.

Mrs. Petros Xanthakos can be called at 823-4492 for reservations.

2-Day Mardi Gras At St. Emily's

Three Mount Prospect women are at work on final plans for St. Emily's Women's Club annual Mardi Gras. Mrs. Harold Diehlman is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Earl Spitt and Mrs. Allan Johnson. The women are arranging for all sorts of games and booths to interest children and adults.

The Mardi Gras will be held during school hours Monday and Tuesday at St. Emily Catholic Church, 1400 E. Central Road, Mount Prospect, and doors will also be open to the public Monday evening from 7 to 9. Guests are asked to use the entrance to the basement from Horner Lane, east of the church.

THERE WILL be a goldfish booth, a cake walk, a re-sale table, refreshments and a variety of games.

All proceeds are used for St. Emily's School. In recent years, the women's club has helped to buy books for the library, filmstrips and projector reaching aids and has been instrumental in obtaining an intercom system for the school.

Prospect Seniors See Film Trip of Siam

Mrs. W. E. Lowery will present slides of "Siam Land of S-miles" at the Monday, Feb. 16, meeting of Mount Prospect Senior Citizens, a group sponsored by Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club.

Mrs. Lowery, a resident of Des Plaines, spent two years in Siam learning customs and accumulating treasures of the land.

Future programs for the Seniors will include the Arlington High School German band, the Mellotone Chorus from Prospect High School and the annual potluck supper. Seniors of the area are invited to the programs the third Monday evening of each month, September through May. Further information is available by calling Mrs. Jan Hanson, 259-8691 or Mrs. Kenneth Guenther, 392-8434.

Boards Dress Up Garage Interior

Here's a quick beauty treatment for interior garage walls. Buy low-cost, knotty, rough boards of any western wood and nail them horizontally across exposed wall studs.

Then, using exterior-grade stain, finish the boards a warm gold shade. Add black-stained 1x2-inch battens vertically to cover joints where boards meet.

Four-foot lengths often go for scrap prices and are easily handled by a lone handyman.

College Seniors Say Vows

This past Christmas season meant much more to Linda Lou Piepenbrink than a respite from college classes and a long holiday at home with her family. She chose Dec. 27 for her wedding day, and that caused a great deal of advance planning before she came home in December from her senior studies at Concordia College in St. Paul, Minn.

Linda became the bride of a fellow classmate, Philip Richard Lyding of Portage, Wis., in a 3:30 p.m. ceremony in St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. Later the newlyweds were feted at a reception in the Arlington Elks Club.

THE ENTIRE Edwin C. Piepenbrink family of 1112 N. Walnut took part in the nuptials. Mr. Piepenbrink gave his daughter in marriage, he and his wife hosted the reception which followed, and the bride's three brothers served in the wedding party. Allen and Mark Piepenbrink were among the ushers, and Bruce Piepenbrink, 5, was ring bearer.

The bride entered the sanctuary wearing a white satin gown with lace applied on the V-neckline, on the long sleeves and trimming the full-length gathered skirt. The dress had a matching satin train attached at the back of the waist. A satin bow held her long illusion veil, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white roses and carnations surrounding a single white orchid.

DIANE MARX of Arlington Heights was her maid of honor, and bridesmaids included Joyce Kruger of Round Lake and two of the bride's cousins, Sue Grandt, Mount Prospect, and Chris Leonard, Des Plaines. A second cousin, Debbie Thomas, 6, of Des Plaines, was flower girl.

All of the bridal attendants were gowned alike in empire styled dresses of royal blue velvet with matching headpieces.

They carried chartreuse Starburst mums and royal blue star flowers.

Robert Luecke of LaCrosse, Wis., was best man, and Jim Lynch of Schaumburg ushered, along with the bride's brothers.

MRS. PIEPENBRINK was attired in a blue dress with gold accessories and Mrs. Lyding in a brown ensemble for the afternoon festivities. Both had pink carnations in their corsage.

After a 3-day honeymoon at Pheasant Run Lodge in St. Charles, the bridal pair returned to St. Paul to complete their senior year at Concordia. The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School, and the groom attended Portage High.

Quality Tests For Cookware

Most homemakers know what they want as far as design, color and shape is concerned when they go out to buy cookware, according to E. E. Schulenberg, general sales manager of United States Stamping Co., a division of Lisk-Savory Corp., but they are not that certain of what to look for in terms of quality.

Schulenberg says that price is normally some indicator of quality and he offers these additional factors for consideration.

Your first interest should be the heat conductivity of the material of which it's made. Heavy gauge steel is a good heat conductor and durable too.

You want ware easily cleaned. Satin-smooth ceramic exteriors are easy to clean. Look for hard-to-clean corners or crevices and see that inside joints where bottoms meet sides are gently rounded.

WHAT ABOUT handles? Not only should they be insulated for top-of-range use, but be oven-proofed and have holes or hooks for wall or peg-board hanging.

Rims should be smooth and gently rounded. Avoid cookware with sharp edges. Covers should fit snugly, too.

Finally, if you decide on ware that's dec-

Baby Feeding Tip

Traveling with baby? Pack a supply of sterile gauze pads. In addition to first aid and clean-up uses, they help keep baby's bottle unclogged during in-car feedings. Simply open 2 x 2 inch pad, put center section over bottle top, screw on cap and nipple. The pad acts as a strainer and baby feeds uninterrupted.

REG. PRICE 11^c

For One, a Day of Joy

Thousands of Catholic Masses had been said before at St. Colette's Church in Rolling Meadows. But this one was special. At least it was to Father James Heisig. He was celebrating his first Mass as a Catholic priest.

It was a day that Father Heisig would never forget. He will remember the two priests, both classmates and close friends, who celebrated the Mass with him — one a white man with a heavy black beard, the other a black man.

He will remember his good friend, Dr. Donald Tyrell of Arlington Heights, a layman who delivered the sermon.

He will remember his students from Divine Word College in Iowa singing at his Mass.

He will remember distributing Communion to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garth Heisig of Plum Grove, and to his sisters and to his brother John.

And he will remember the many relatives, classmates and friends who came to participate with him and wish him well in the life he has chosen.

Nixon in Our Environment

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

PASSES AUTHORIZING holders to witness the President's arrival from a special roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President."

GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October 1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

Here's Where Nixon Copter Will Land

Want to catch a glimpse of President Nixon at Schaumburg Airport? It's on Irving Park Road, Rt. 19, in southern Schaumburg. Plan to arrive before 8:30 a.m.

Directions for persons not living in Schaumburg Township: Follow Golf Road west to Roselle Road; take Roselle south to Devon Avenue; take Devon west to Irving Park Road and follow that west (northwest) to the airport.

Expect Throngs at Airport

When President Nixon visits this area Friday morning to tour the Metropolitan Sanitary District facility in Hanover Park, he will be landing at Schaumburg Airport on Irving Park Road.

"We have roped off an area for spectators who come to see the President's arrival near the parking lot," said Harold Magee, airport manager for Roselle Aviation. President Nixon may speak briefly to the crowd.

According to Donald Totten, Schaumburg Township Committeeman, special passes are required for access to the roped-off area. Passes have been issued to local mayors and Republican party leaders, Totten said.

"THE TOWNSHIP PRECINCT captains have been given as many passes as they want," said Totten. "If everyone who has passes shows up, there may not be enough room for them," he added.

The roped-off area can only accommodate about 50 or 60 persons, Totten indicated.

"As far as I know, President Nixon is the most important celebrity to land at Schaumburg Airport," said Harold Magee.

"The only thing we're doing is providing a landing area for the President's helicopter and parking space," Magee said. President Nixon and his party are scheduled to land on the airport's main runway about 8:30 a.m. Friday, coming from Meigs.

THE PRESIDENT'S helicopter will be parked near the auto parking lot at the airport.

According to Magee, the Schaumburg Airport is not equipped to handle the Presidential jet or similar planes, since the airport's main runway is only 2,800 feet long.

"The heaviest aircraft we can handle is about 15,000 pounds," Magee declared.

Magee stated that no fueling operations are scheduled for the President's helicopter at the local airport Friday.

President Nixon is expected to visit in the area only about one hour for his inspection of the sanitary plant in Hanover Park, since he is scheduled to be back in Chicago at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

SCHAUMBURG AIRPORT was formerly known as the Roselle Airport, but the name was changed in 1969. The airport and surrounding lands were annexed to Schaumburg in 1963.

The local airfield serves private planes and is located on Irving Park Road (Rt. 19) in southwest Schaumburg.

FIRST VISIT of a President to the Northwest suburbs while in office will occur Friday morning when Richard Nixon, first citizen of the land, arrives at Schaumburg Airport and tours a sanitary plant in Hanover Park. The President is attending a conference on pollution problems in Chicago. Although President Nixon was overlooked at Bob Hope's recent dinner in New York, the President will be getting all the attention Friday morning.

Treatment Plant Reason for Visit

A tertiary waste treatment facility in Hanover Park is the reason for President Richard Nixon's visit tomorrow.

"We are very much flattered that the President has elected to inspect the Hanover Park treatment plant as we feel this plant represents the spirit that has guided the sanitary district from its inception," said John Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD).

The $1.1 million facility was completed in the spring of 1968. Tertiary (third stage) treatment produces water from sewage that is 99 per cent pure.

It is an experimental facility designed as part of a clean-up of all inland water ways in the MSD's jurisdiction. Water receiving tertiary treatment will be fit for uses including fish and wildlife habitation, irrigation, boating and swimming.

THE PLANT HAS the capacity to handle two million gallons of water a day. During the third stage a $98,000 micro strainer removes most solids remaining after the first two stages of treatment.

Original plans called for a $200-million expansion of tertiary treatment to get under way in 1971. Much of this will be offset by federal funds, a spokesman said.

Hanover Park is one of the MSD's eight small waste water treatment plants serving 15,000 persons in the northwest area of Cook County. It operates as a supplement to the district's three major plants.

The tertiary treatment of waste water, which empties into the DuPage River, will produce effluent that children can play in, a former MSD spokesman said.

The process involves chemical and filter treatment designed to satisfy the oxygen needs of water.

THE EXPERIMENTAL PLANT operated in Hanover Park by the Metropolitan Sanitary District will be visited tomorrow by President Richard Nixon. Two million gallons of sewage can pass through the plant each day and come out 99 per cent pure. Third stage (tertiary) treatment using a $98,000 micro strainer is responsible for the effluent's quality. Above is a shot of the plant's interior which the President will tour.

Nixon Coming 'To Mountain'

If the mountain won't come to Mohammed, then Mohammed will go to the mountain, a proverb states.

And this week this saying will literally happen in Schaumburg Township.

Both Mayors Robert Atcher of Schaumburg and Fred Downey of Hoffman Estates received invitations from President Nixon to attend a national conference of city mayors in Washington, D.C. last year. Neither was able to attend, however.

Now, President Nixon is scheduled to visit Schaumburg Township Friday morning, landing at Schaumburg Airport about 8:30 a.m. And the two mayors will be among the crowd of persons there to greet the President.

THE PRESIDENT will be able to observe fish when he visits the water reclamation plant tomorrow in Hanover Park. The fish are kept in a pool filled with effluent from the plant that shows that life can exist in properly treated sewage.

'Greeting' Crowd Will be Sizeable

Donald Totten, Schaumburg Township Republican Committeeman, plans to be at the Schaumburg Airport Friday morning about 8:30 a.m. to greet the President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, along with other township GOP organization members.

Mayors Frederick Downey and Robert Atcher of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, respectively, will also be at the airport Friday for the president's arrival by helicopter. Mrs. Kay Wojcik, Schaumburg Township Clerk, will be there, too.

A special area for spectators has been roped off at Schaumburg Airport, and special passes have been issued for entrance to this area. Totten said. The township committeeman was given a supply of passes for local Republicans.

"EACH PRECINCT captain in the township was given as many tickets as he wished," Totten stated.

To Decide Pool Ownership

Future ownership and control of Hoffman Estates Community Pool will hang in the balance tonight when members of the village board meet with park directors to discuss the issue.

At present, the park board is anxious to acquire the facility and propose improvements in line with their capital expansion program scheduled for presentation to voters March 14.

Considered a controversial thorn in the side of both boards for the past four years, the pool was built and originally operated by Hoffman Estates Lions Club. Ownership of the pool was reluctantly assumed by the village in 1966 because of the club's

YMCA Announces Changes, Hirings

Three staff changes, two filling newly-created positions, have been announced by Ralph Wood, executive director of the YMCA of Greater Elgin.

The changes are needed to increase the efficiency of the YMCA as its service areas expand, Wood said.

The new positions:

- Donald E. Kemp has been named executive director of the Elgin YMCA.
- Dennis E. Johnson has been named executive director of YMCA Camp Edwards, and
- James B. Weaver has been named director of the Tri-Cities Youth Project, serving St. Charles, Geneva and Batavia.

ROBERT WILLIAMS, executive director of the Twinbrook YMCA for the last 18 months, will continue in that position. Twinbrook serves Bloomingdale, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates, Roselle, Schaumburg and surrounding areas.

The Twinbrook YMCA, which was just a dream of the future to many residents of the area three years ago, is a viable, growing organization. It has an executive director, an office manager, plans to hire another staff person and YMCA program and activities for hundreds of area residents, Wood said.

"It's initial Y-Indian Guide program got the fastest start of any in the nation."

Dignitaries to Line Up

Among the dignitaries greeting President Richard Nixon when he arrives at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning will be Illinois State Representatives David J. Regner and Eugene Schlickman of the Third District. Rep. Eugenia Chapman said yesterday she had not yet been invited.

The Third District includes Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover and Barrington townships, and parts of Northfield and Maine Townships.

"I plan to be at the airport about 8 a.m. Friday for the President's arrival," Regner said. Regner lives in Mount Prospect.

"I just received the message that the president was visiting the Third District, and I didn't know what president it was. I was really surprised the President of the United States was coming here."

"I'M VERY GLAD the President is visiting the Third District again," Regner remarked.

"It's quite an honor having Mr. Nixon visit the Third District for the second time in a little over a year," Regner added. While campaigning for the Presidency, Nixon addressed a Republican Party rally at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect in October 1968.

"I got to shake hands with Mrs. Nixon at the party rally at Prospect High," said Rep. Schlickman. "However, I didn't shake hands with the president-to-be."

Schlickman said that he understood that only persons issued passes would be able to have access to the immediate landing area at the airport.

SCHLICKMAN ADDED that most of the crowd Friday would probably be Republican party workers "doing their thing" rather than persons present due to sheer enthusiasm.

"President Nixon's reappearance is an acknowledgement of the importance of the

Security to be Tight

Tight security measures have been arranged for Friday's visit by President Richard Nixon to Schaumburg and Hanover Park for his visit to the tertiary treatment plant.

The President arrives in Schaumburg Airport where Chief Martin Conroy has coordinated protection with Cook County Sheriff's police, DuPage County Sheriff's deputies, federal officials and state police.

"I will have my full manpower out," Conroy said yesterday. Schaumburg police will primarily cover the airport area.

"NO ONE WILL be able to get to the airport without credentials," he added. There will be special areas roped off for official visitors and members of the press.

Conroy added that regular protection of the village itself will be maintained.

The President will then travel over an undisclosed route covered by full security precautions, according to Chief Sam Polotto of Hanover Park.

Polotto's men will also be working with the cooperation of state police, Cook County Sheriff's Police and with the assistance of men from the Streamwood Police Department.

"We have been taken to make the area secure," Polatto said.

"INTERSECTIONS AND the immediate area where the president is going will be covered," he added.

No one will be allowed to enter the Water Reclamation Plant where Nixon will go unless they have proper credentials, he added.

"This will in no way effect regular patrol of the village. Regular precautions will stay the same," Polotto said.

Pupils: See Nixon by Bus

President Nixon's visit to this area Friday is being observed almost like a national holiday, however Dist. 54 elementary schools will remain open.

"We are not changing our regular school schedules," said Supt. Wayne Schaible. Elementary pupils will start session at 9 a.m., as usual, Friday.

As presently planned, however, some pupils will be able to view the President's arrival by helicopter.

According to the Dist. 54 school superintendent, those elementary pupils already loaded on buses by 8:14 a.m. Friday, will be transported to Schaumburg Airport on Irving Park Road to witness the President's arrival about 8:30 a.m. The buses will then take pupils to their schools after the President departs from the airport.

DIST. 54 JUNIOR high pupils will already be in school when the President arrives.

The Schaumburg Township elementary district uses 29 buses on daily runs in transporting pupils.

Dist. 54 schools will close, however, on Feb. 12 for Abraham Lincoln's birthday anniversary.

Some parents may take their children with them Friday to witness the president's arrival.

Pupils from St. Peter Lutheran School in Schaumburg and St. Hubert School in Hoffman Estates who ride buses to school will also be excused from class Friday if their buses go to the airport, according to school officials.

DAVID REGNER, State Representative from the 3rd Dist.: "At first, I didn't know which president was visiting."

Nixon, Atcher Are Expected To Take 'Ride'

A helicopter ride with President Nixon is in the makings for Mayor Robert Atcher of Schaumburg.

Atcher said yesterday that efforts are being made to allow him to come from downtown Chicago Meigs Field to Schaumburg Airport with the nation's chief executive.

Nothing definite was arranged at the time. "We're working in the dark," Atcher said.

Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker hopes to greet the presidential delegation at the Metropolitan Sanitary District plant and possibly tour the plant with the Nixon party.

"We're proud and happy that he's coming to our community," Baker said.

"This is the first time a president has ever come to Schaumburg," Atcher said, but he gave credit where it is due. "The trip is expressly to visit the pilot reclamation plant. We will plan a welcome, but we can't make too much of his coming to Schaumburg."

"WE JUST FEEL fortunate to have an airport that the president can arrive at," Atcher added.

Atcher is the republican candidate for Cook County Clerk. Efforts to arrange the helicopter ride are being made by Floyd Fulle county central committeeman for the Republican Party.

Hoffman Estate's Mayor Frederick Downey said he intends to be on hand at the airport to welcome President Nixon. "I will express an official welcome if the opportunity arises, he said.

Downey added that plans for a welcome will be made Thursday evening when he meets with trustees for a public works committee meeting.

Dist. 54 Officials Cite Teacher Need

Dist 54 school administrators have recommended the hiring of 58 additional teachers in elementary grades for 1970-71, 16 junior high teachers, and six teachers for classes resulting from midyear growth next year.

The teaching personnel request for 1970-71 must be approved by the Dist. 54 school board before any additional teachers are hired. The district presently has a professional staff of about 500 classroom teachers and specialists.

The enrollment in Dist. 54 has been increasing about 3,000 pupils per year. The present enrollment is 11,600.

Administrators are also requesting the hiring of three principals for Armstrong, be constructed with a $1,777,000 loan from Aldrin and Collins elementary schools, to the Illinois School Building commission (ISBC).

Construction of the three new elementary schools will begin this spring and the scheduled completion date is January 1971. The schools will be built in the Hphg Point area of Hoffman Estates, Lancer subdivision in Schaumburg, and Weathersfield Unit 14, Schaumburg.

ADDITIONAL teaching specialists recommended for hiring in Dist. 54 for 1970-71 include: 3½ music teachers (one half-time), 2 additional physical education teachers at the elementary level, 2 art teachers, 2 speech teachers, 1 educable mentally handicapped teacher, 1 learning disabilities diagnostician, 1 teacher for the socially maladjusted, 1 guidance counselor, and 1 school nurse.

Dist. 54 now has three school nurses and five guidance counselors for all schools.

Scottish Folk Song Program for Students

Students from Dan Cook and Ridge schools in Elk Grove Village will see kilts and dulcimers Friday when Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong present their Scottish folk song program.

The Armstrongs, who have performed in School Dist. 59 previously, are being sponsored by the Parents Art Council's cultural program.

A WILMETTE couple, the Armstrongs have written several children's books. They will appear in Dan Cook School, 711 Chelmsford Lane, at 1 p.m. and in Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave., at 2 p.m.

In NIU Comedy

Nedd Ross of Hoffman Estates appeared in the recent Northern Illinois University production of "Barefoot in the Park."

Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Ross of 660 Greenfield Road, appeared as a deliveryman in the Neil Simon comedy.

Board Tours Schools With Eye for Expansion

The Board of Education of Elgin School Dist. U46 recently viewed vocational and technical education programs in several district schools.

According to Dr. Paul R. Lawrence, superintendent of schools, "The purpose of the tour was to view certain aspects of these programs as a basis for the expansion of vocational and technical education programs in our schools in the future."

The board viewed in-depth Larkin High School's industrial arts program, in particular power mechanics, machine shop and metals. They also spent time in the home economics area.

BUSINESS EDUCATION at Elgin High School in Elgin also received a thorough reviewing by board members. Following this the group inspected industrial arts areas including power mechanics, graphic arts and sheet metals.

Recently the Illinois State Board of Vocational Education and Rehabilitation released new guidelines and methods for funding vocational and technical education programs in the schools.

The plan gives school districts greater flexibility in planning curriculum in order to meet state requirements for reimbursement.

According to district officials there are over 15,400 students, K-12, involved in vocational and technical education.

"THE MAJOR beneficiary under this new plan is the non-college bound student," Lawrence said. He added that the district is now involved in planning curriculum in this area that looks five years into the future.

"With the new guidelines and funding the district will now be able to provide the type of vocational skills that are needed both by the students and by the community," Dr. Lawrence stated.

Reimbursement will apply to high school, junior high and elementary school programs that provide vocational and technical education.

Previously based on the number of teachers involved, the district is now eligible for reimbursement based on a basic amount plus seven weighted factors.

The basic unit of payment is 50-cents for each elementary student involved in these programs and $50 per student per unit of credit at the secondary level.

Weighted factors include such items as programs for the disadvantaged and/or handicapped student, initial programs and the relative ability of the district to pay.

Smith Supported But What Extent?

Palatine Township Republicans will deliver the vote for Senator Ralph T. Smith March 17, despite the difficulty Smith had in winning the local organization's endorsement this week.

That was the prediction of GOP Committeeman Bernard Pedersen following the two and a half hour session before Smith was endorsed.

It took five separate ballots for Smith to get the two-thirds vote needed for the endorsement over William Rentschler of Lake Forest in the March primary.

"IT WAS ROUGH," Pedersen said.

"They've got a lot of things on their minds, kind of a rebellion against taxes and everything else," he said.

Smith's endorsement means the Palatine GOP organization will work for him in the primary, but neither Pedersen nor committeewoman Mrs. Glen Ann Jicha would predict how enthusiastic that support would be.

This was the second endorsement for Smith in the northwest suburbs, while Rentschler has none. Last week, Wheeling Township endorsed the senator, giving him the enviable advantage of having the area's largest GOP organization on his side.

If Palatine Township's endorsement carries the same message that it has in the past, Smith is a sure winner. Palatine has been the only township to consistently endorse winners, including last year's endorsement of U.S. Rep. Philip Crane and the 1962 endorsement of Crane's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

On both occasions Palatine was the only township to endorse the winner.

Conant: 'Things Getting Brighter'

Next week is the birthday of Thomas Edison, whose first light bulb resembled a football in size, and members of the Conant High School Booster Club seem to have taken this into account.

Since last September they have been working hard to get night lights for the Conant High School field, and Wednesday night they came one giant step closer to financing their project.

A donation of $1,897.91 was presented to Jack Magnuson, president of the booster club, by Hank Raiston, a trustee of the Dorothy Secher Memorial Scholarship Fund at the club's regular meeting.

Dorothy Secher, the founder of the Hoffman Estates Theater Guild, who was serving as village clerk when she died last year, was active in many community organizations.

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane

Charles Hurst

Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D. C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

FROM CHURCH TO LIBRARY? A referendum for funds to change the St. Marks United Church of Christ building into a new library for the Wheeling

Public library district has been postponed until April 4. Even if the referendum passes, the library district may have difficulties selling the general obligation bonds to finance the purchase and remodeling of the building.

Referendum On Library Is April 4

It's definite now — a series of legal requirements has caused a delay in a two-part referendum by the Wheeling Public Library District.

The district will postpone its referendum until April 4. Included in the referendum are two propositions.

One ballot asks voters to approve an issue of $250,000 in general obligation bonds for the purchase and remodeling of the St. Marks United Church of Christ building in Wheeling as the district's new library.

THE SECOND proposition asks voters to increase the tax rate levied for district operations from 12 to 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The new April 4 date for the referendum will be officially approved on March 7 following a public hearing scheduled for March 3.

The public hearing, at which the library board will make final decisions on the financing, repair, remodeling and equipping of the church building, is a legal requirement which must be met before a referendum on building plans can be held.

The library district also is required to post notices at 10 different locations within the district announcing that the hearing will be held and that plans and estimates of cost for acquisition, repair, remodeling and equipping of the building are available for inspection by the public in the library.

The referendums had been planned originally for Feb. 21, but the requirements of the hearings and the notices caused the delay.

VOTERS IN WHEELING and the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove will vote on the two referendums.

However, the public hearing procedures relate only to the purchase and remodeling of a new library building, and not to the district's bid for a tax rate increase.

Polling places for the referendum will be located at Kilmer and Alcott schools in Buffalo Grove and at London Junior High School, Wheeling High School, the Wheeling Park District fieldhouse and the village fire station in Wheeling.

The library board first began looking for a new library site in spring of 1969. Attempts to purchase a site adjacent to Wheeling's new municipal building were unsuccessful, and the district then began to consider the church building as a possible location.

Currently the district has an option agreement which gives the district exclusive right to buy the building until April 7. The district's agreement calls for a $98,200 purchase price for the church building.

Optimism Over Radio Center

"A decision would probably be made before the next fiscal year" on the proposed centralized police communications center, according to Richard Decker, Buffalo Grove's village manager.

Besides Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows are considering participation in the center.

Decker is more optimistic over the possibility of a centralized police radio communications center, as the result of a meeting on the matter yesterday.

The meeting, at the Buffalo Grove village hall, lasted more than five hours. Attending were representatives from International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., the firm selling the center, as well as officials from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights.

DECKER SAID YESTERDAY, "What this thing apparently boils down to is that Buffalo Grove would be spending about $10,000 for this. This is just a guess. But, the new equipment, we would be receiving would be worth about $7,000."

Decker had said Monday he had reservations over whether or not efficiency would be increased with the new centralized system.

"My reservations on this still hold, to some degree. Though Buffalo Grove wouldn't have to actually hire two dispatchers, train them and assign them in Arlington Heights, the village would have to contribute both some manpower and some money." However, Decker said that he was "very optimistic" over the dispatcher matter.

Another reason behind Decker's reluctance over the centralized communication system was that villages would have to buy new radios for their police cars. "This problem has been solved more or less, though not quite to my satisfaction. We want to get into centralized buying. Thus, the five municipalities would get together to buy 56 new radios." Buffalo Grove would get four of those radios in order to save money. Decker said the ITT representatives planned to look into this possibility.

ANOTHER POINT made by Decker: "WITH this centralized dispatcher system some money." However, Decker said that in Arlington Heights, no police chief would be happy sitting in his office not knowing what his men are doing." Decker has suggested five monitoring radios be included in the system. These would be installed at the police stations in each of the five participating municipalities. Decker said ITT representatives agreed to look into this also.

Said Decker, "What I want them to do is to come out and state exactly what this system will do for the villages, and precisely what it will cost each municipality." Decker said as yet, this has not been done.

"WHEN I AND MY colleagues (in the other four villages considering participation in the system) get this, we can go back over our records, find out what procedures this will eliminate, and what those procedures cost in prior years."

Decker noted: "The village would make the final decision on any expenditure for the system."

Even if the referendum April 4 to buy and remodel a building for a new library passes, the Wheeling Public Library District may have an uphill battle to finance the new library.

The district can legally pay no more than 6 per cent interest on the general obligation bonds it will issue to finance the purchase and remodeling of its new building.

The problem arises because the legal limit for school and park districts' and municipalities' bonds was raised to 7 per cent during the last session of the Illinois General Assembly.

Thus, the library district will have to complete to sell its bonds with other public governmental agencies that can pay higher interest rates.

The competition looks tough. Tuesday night the library board learned the grim tale from its attorney, Roger Bjorvik, and from a financial consultant.

THE BOARD REACTED by hiring the consultant, Howard W. Voss Associates, Inc., of Kenilworth, to help sell the bonds if the referendum passes.

The bonds totalling $250,000, would be sold to pay for purchase and remodeling of the St. Marks United Church of Christ building as the district's new library.

The referendum allows voters to decide whether the district will be allowed to borrow the money for the church by issuing the general obligation bonds.

Part of the bonds would be retired each year through taxes levied especially for that purpose.

Although the library board had originally planned to retire the bonds over a 20-year period so that the tax rate increase could be kept to a minimum, the board learned Tuesday that it may be forced to have a higher rate for a smaller number of years. The shorter maturation period would make the bonds easier to sell.

FRANK FOSTER, a vice president of the consultant firm, explained to the board members that the bond market appeared to be improving, and that the board would be better off selling bonds in April than today.

Foster explained to the board that shortening the number of years in which the bonds are paid off will mean an overall savings to taxpayers overall. However, on a nine-year basis, the rate each year for those nine years will be higher.

Thus, taxpayers would pay approximately ly 6.2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation on their homes each year for nine years for the bonds instead of the 4 cents per $200 each year for 20 years.

Also, the tax rate might vary depending on the amount of bonds retired in a single year, so that one year the rate could be higher than nine cents per $100 and another year it could drop to three cents per $100.

THE LIBRARY board has to decide in how many years the bonds will be retired and the interest rates each year. The board will decide on that plan at a public hearing March 3.

Scouts to Get Certificates

A group of seventh, eighth and ninth grade Wheeling Girl Scouts will graduate tonight from a Medical Self-Help course sponsored by the Wheeling Civil Defense organization.

The girls, all members of Girl Scout Troop 142 which meets at Field School in Wheeling, were taught the four month course by Evelyn A. Moyer, registered nurse and medical director of Wheeling Civil Defense.

Approximately two thirds of the 26 girls in the course will receive certificates of satisfactory completion of the course.

THE CERTIFICATES will be presented tonight by Robert Buerger Sr., director of Wheeling Civil defense and by the course instructor, Wheeling Village President Ted

C. Scanton may also attend the ceremonies. The ceremonies will be at 8:30 p.m. in Field School.

Students Generate 'Report' Enthusiasm

At Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, students go out of their way to be "put on report." Moreover, 49 of them have made it so far.

The reason behind their enthusiasm, however, is that good behavior, not bad, results in a student's being "put on report." Under a new system, school patrol members "report" those pupils who have practiced good conduct and safety awareness.

Kids Can Hang Up Ice Skates

Hang up your skates, kids. The Wheeling Park District has called an end to ice skating for the winter because of construction on the Heritage Park Retention basin in the district's ice rink.

Construction on the basin was held off until January. Workmen began digging up the rink yesterday.

Library District Seeking Trustees

The Wheeling Public Library District is looking for trustees.

Interested citizens who live in Wheeling or the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove may run for election this spring to join the library district's board of trustees. Three members of the board are up for reelection this April. Currently there is a vacant trustee post as well.

LIBRARY TRUSTEES serve six-year terms and attend meetings once a month. Currently the board is preparing for two referendums to be held April 4.

Petitions for the April 14 trustee election with 50 signatures on them must be filed before March 1. Persons considering running for the trustee post are asked to contact the library for information.

The President's Coming

More on President Nixon's visit to the suburbs on Page 2.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg

Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

PASSES AUTHORIZING holders to witness the President's arrival from a special roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President."

GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October 1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D. C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

Security to be Tight

Tight security measures have been arranged for Friday's visit by President Richard Nixon to Schaumburg and Hanover Park for his visit to the tertiary treatment plant.

The President arrives in Schaumburg Airport where Chief Martin Conroy has coordinated protection with Cook County Sheriff's police, DuPage County Sheriff's deputies, federal officials and state police.

"I will have my full manpower out," Conroy said yesterday. Schaumburg police will primarily cover the airport area.

"NO ONE WILL be able to get to the airport without credentials," he added. There will be special areas roped off for official visitors and members of the press.

Conroy added that regular protection of the village itself will be maintained.

The President will then travel over an undisclosed route covered by full security precautions, according to Chief Sam Polotto of Hanover Park.

Polotto's men will also be working with the cooperation of state police, Cook County Sheriff's Police and with the assistance of men from the Streamwood Police Department.

"We have all the necessary precautions. They have been taken to make the area secure," Polotto said.

"INTERSECTIONS AND the immediate area where the president is going will be covered," he added.

No one will be allowed to enter the Water Reclamation Plant where Nixon will go unless they have proper credentials, he added.

"This will in no way effect regular patrol of the village. Regular precautions will stay the same," Polotto said.

FLOWER POWER is her business. Christina Iwaszk of Palatine is learning the trade as an apprentice florist at Brautigam's Flowers in the Randhurst Shopping Center. Christina, 21, was born in Belgium and moved to the United States with her parents in 1960. Designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements is her kind of flower power.

Dignitaries to Line Up

Among the dignitaries greeting President Richard Nixon when he arrives at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning will be Illinois State Representatives David J. Regner and Eugene Schlickman of the Third District. Rep. Eugenia Chapman said yesterday she had not yet been invited.

The Third District includes Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover and Barrington townships, and parts of Northfield and Maine Townships.

"I plan to be at the airport about 8 a.m. Friday for the President's arrival," Regner said. Regner lives in Mount Prospect.

"I just received the message that the president was visiting the Third District, and I didn't know what president it was. I was really surprised the President of the United States was coming here."

"I'M VERY GLAD the President is visiting the Third District again," Regner remarked.

"It's quite an honor having Mr. Nixon visit the Third District for the second time in a little over a year," Regner added. While campaigning for the Presidency, Nixon addressed a Republican Party rally at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect in October 1968.

"I got to shake hands with Mrs. Nixon at the party rally at Prospect High," said Rep. Schlickman. "However, I didn't shake hands with the president-to-be."

Schlickman said that he understood that only persons issued passes would be able to have access to the immediate landing area at the airport.

SCHLICKMAN ADDED that most of the crowd Friday would probably be Republican party workers "doing their thing" rather than persons present due to sheer enthusiasm.

"President Nixon's reappearance is an acknowledgement of the importance of the

Smith Supported But What Extent?

Palatine Township Republicans will deliver the vote for Senator Ralph T. Smith March 17, despite the difficulty Smith had in winning the local organization's endorsement this week.

That was the prediction of GOP Committeeman Bernard Pedersen following the two and a half hour session before Smith was endorsed.

It took five separate ballots for Smith to get the two-thirds vote needed for the endorsement over William Rentschler of Lake Forest in the March primary.

"IT WAS ROUGH," Pedersen said.

"They've got a lot of things on their minds, kind of a rebellion against taxes and everything else," he said.

Smith's endorsement means the Palatine GOP organization will work for him in the primary, but neither Pedersen nor committeewoman Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha would predict how enthusiastic that support would be.

This was the second endorsement for Smith in the northwest suburbs, while Rentschler has none. Last week, Wheeling Township endorsed the senator, giving him the enviable advantage of having the area's largest GOP organization on his side.

If Palatine Township's endorsement carries the same message that it has in the past, Smith is a sure winner. Palatine has been the only township to consistently endorse winners, including last year's endorsement of U.S. Rep. Philip Crane and the 1962 endorsement of Crane's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

On both occasions Palatine was the only township to endorse the winner.

She's Belgium But Is 'All-American'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Although Christina Iwaszk was born in Belgium, she's as American as apple pie.

At a time when American youths are rebelling against the establishment, 21-year-old Christina speaks frankly and sincerely about the United States. "America: love it or leave it," she said.

And the slender, brown-haired girl means every word of it. She knows from experience.

Christina, an apprentice florist for Brautigam's Flowers at Randhurst, lives in Palatine with her parents. Although she was born in Genk, Belgium, a little town near the Luxembourg border, she's Polish.

"MY MOTHER and father were born in Poland, but they were relocated in Germany during World War II. The Germans sent many Polish youths to Germany to work on the farms. My parents had no choice. They were picked up off the streets one day by the German soldiers who loaded the people into trucks.

"And my parents haven't seen their families since the day the Germans came. We don't know if our relatives are still living or what happened to them during the war. . . or after the war, since the Communists occupied Poland," she explained.

Christina's parents left Germany after the war and settled in Belgium. "My father worked in the coal mines and conditions were very bad in Europe. So they tried for more than eight years to come to the United States. That's how long it took for papers and visas. I was 11-years-old when we left Belgium and I remember very well.

"Polish friends of ours in Palatine sponsored us and my family flew to the United States in 1960. I thought America would be like the western films we saw. Cowboys and Indians and stage coaches. Europeans believe too much what they see and read about America. Many of them believe the anti-American propaganda which is too bad," she said.

CHRISTINA, A 1969 graduate of Fremd High School in Palatine, is learning about "flower power" at Brautigam's. Christina, who was enrolled in the education for employment program at Fremd, worked part time for the florist while she was in school. Now she has an eight-hour job which includes designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements.

"My parents were really surprised the day I graduated. They didn't think I could make it because school was very difficult for me when we came to America. I didn't speak English at all, and although I should have started in the fifth grade, I was held back in the fourth grade.

"English is so difficult to learn because many words are spelled differently than they're pronounced," Christina said. She is still modest, a European characteristic, about her English which is almost flawless.

Although she has lived in Palatine for 10 years and she's a product of American schools, Christina doesn't always approve of her contemporaries. At least, not this generation's rebelliousness.

"American kids have it made. They've got everything they want and they don't appreciate it. I believe in America and if you don't love it, leave it. These kids should experience the living conditions in Europe and then maybe they wouldn't be so quick to criticize this country.

"KIDS JUST don't have any respect, especially for their parents. But it's the parents' fault because they spoil their children. In my house, my father's word is law and we respect him.

"I don't approve of student marches, demonstrations, pickets and sit-ins. If people here can't have their way, they pout and throw a tantrum. There are students who defend Communism when they don't know what it's all about or they criticize the war. They should see war and Communism," she explained.

"And besides, I'm for capital punishment. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. The laws in America are not enforced. Everyone who does wrong in this country pleads temporary insanity and then nothing's done. It's not right. There's no respect for anything," she said.

CHRISTINA SAID most youths today don't even respect themselves. "Students are sloppy in the way they dress. I don't like long hair on boys because they look dirty. Even many of the girls are sloppy. They wear old bluejeans, a sloppy shirt and often don't wear any shoes. And some of them look as they've never seen a bath tub in years.

"And they have all the comforts of indoor plumbing and hot water from the tap. It's nice to be able to afford these comforts like we can in America, but not everyone in the world is as fortunate."

Students Generate

'Report' Enthusiasm

At Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, students go out of their way to be "put on report." Moreover, 49 of them have made it so far.

The reason behind their enthusiasm, however, is that good behavior, not bad, results in a student's being "put on report." Under a new system, school patrol members "report" those pupils who have practiced good conduct and safety awareness.

Dist. 23 Caucus Names Candidates

Of 30 persons interviewed for the two Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 board vacancies opening in April, the general caucus chose Donald McKay, 1016 W. Wildwood Drive, and Lorin Sarnar, 17 N. Wildwood Drive. Both are from Prospect Heights. The selections made after the caucus screening committee narrowed the number of candidates to four people.

The two candidates are hoping to fill two board positions, falling vacant at the end of Mrs. Maureen Sandstrom's and Robert LeForge's terms. Neither board member plans to run for reelection.

The caucus, composed of representatives from various local organizations, based its selections on the interviewee's interest in volunteer organizations, and his abilities in these areas, according to Bob Peterson, member of the caucus screening committee. "We were also looking for a responsible, reliable person who is willing to look at the facts before coming to a decision."

THE SCREENING committee used a master list of questions when interviewing prospective candidates. "We didn't ask all of the applicants the same questions, but used the list as a guide. We were primarily interested in how an applicant thinks out an answer before he speaks. If a person didn't know an answer, but showed an interest and desire to research the question, it did not detract from his qualifications."

Some of the questions asked are, "What is your concern over federal aid and its restrictions? What is your attitude toward modern teaching methods? What is your background in business and civic activities? Why do you think the bond referendum failed?"

An "enthusiastic participation" in school affairs and a "desire to bridge the gap in communications between people in the district and the school board; and between the school administration and the school board" were the reasons for caucus support of Mrs. Sarnar, according to Peterson.

CURRENTLY MRS. SARNAR is directing a volunteer bureau which places volunteers from the community into area schools. This activity has "kept her closely tied to school affairs," said Peterson. She also was president last year of the Dist. 23 PTA groups, a member of the Dist. 23 citizen's committee promoting the referendum and is a member of the Prospect Heights Women's Club.

Mrs. Sarnar attended the University of Minnesota for two years and the McConnell School of Merchandising. She formerly worked as a buyer of women's clothes. Her husband is now teaching at two universities.

McKay received caucus support because he "should be an asset to the board in computerizing salaries, in budgeting, and in other financial negotiations," said Peterson.

McKAY IS CONNECTED with sales for Victor Comptometer Co., which is involved with data processing and small computers. He is currently Sunday school superintendent of the Faith Lutheran Church and is involved in fund raising for educational TV channel 11. At his former residence in Columbus, Ohio he was associated with the Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce. McKay has a B.S. in accounting from Ohio State University.

Members of the caucus screening committee are Bill William, Prospect Heights Improvement Association; Carol Williams, Prospect Heights Womens Club; Bob Peterson, PTA Dun-Lake Council; Pat Southard, Sullivan and Ross PTA; Lawrence Irwin, Eisenhower PTA; Chuck Panzer, Muir PTA; Bruce Ferguson, Arlington Vista Homeowner Association; and Gene Schmidt, Arlington Terrace Homeowner Association.

School To Start Early Next Fall

School is going to start a week early for Prospect Heights children this fall.

In the past, it has been the policy of most school districts to open school after Labor Day. However, school will start on Aug. 31 this year.

THE NEW DATE was decided upon by members of the Northwest Education Council, an organization encompassing all school districts in the northwest area.

NEC agreed on a standardized school calendar, so all the children in this area will begin school on the same day and share the same holidays.

With the new calendar, Lincoln's birthday will be celebrated on the first Monday in February; Memorial Day on the last second Monday in October; and Veterans Day on the fourth Monday in October.

FROM CHURCH TO LIBRARY? A referendum for funds to change the St. Marks United Church of Christ building into a new library for the Wheeling

Public library district has been postponed until April 4. Even if the referendum passes, the library district may have difficulties selling the general obligation bonds to finance the purchase and remodeling of the building.

Library Referendum April 4

It's definite now — a series of legal requirements has caused a delay in a two-part referendum by the Wheeling Public Library District.

The district will postpone its referendum until April 4. Included in the referendum are two propositions.

One ballot asks voters to approve an issue of $250,000 in general obligation bonds for the purchase and remodeling of the St. Marks United Church of Christ building in Wheeling as the district's new library.

THE SECOND proposition asks voters to increase the tax rate levied for district operations from 12 to 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The new April 4 date for the referendum will be officially approved on March 7 following a public hearing scheduled for March 3.

The public hearing, at which the library board will make final decisions on the financing, repair, remodeling and equipping of the church building, is a legal requirement which must be met before a referendum on building plans can be held.

The library district also is required to post notices at 10 different locations within the district announcing that the hearing will be held and that plans and estimates of cost for acquisition, repair, remodeling and equipping of the building are available for inspection by the public in the library.

The referendums had been planned originally for Feb. 21, but the requirements of the hearings and the notices caused the delay.

VOTERS IN WHEELING and the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove will vote on the two referendums.

However, the public hearing procedures relate only to the purchase and remodeling of a new library building, and not to the district's bid for a tax rate increase.

Polling places for the referendum will be located at Kilmer and Alcott schools in Buffalo Grove and at London Junior High School, Wheeling High School, the Wheeling Park District fieldhouse and the village fire station in Wheeling.

The library board first began looking for a new library site in spring of 1969. Attempts to purchase a site adjacent to Wheeling's new municipal building were unsuccessful, and the district then began to consider the church building as a possible location.

Currently the district has an option agreement which gives the district exclusive right to buy the building until April 7. The district's agreement calls for a $96,200 purchase price for the church building.

Even if the referendum April 4 to buy and remodel a building for a new library passes, the Wheeling Public Library District may have an uphill battle to finance the new library.

The district can legally pay no more than 6 per cent interest on the general obligation bonds it will issue to finance the purchase and remodeling of its new building.

The problem arises because the legal limit for school and park districts' and municipalities' bonds was raised to 7 per cent during the last session of the Illinois General Assembly.

Thus, the library district will have to complete to sell its bonds with other public governmental agencies that can pay higher interest rates.

The competition looks tough. Tuesday night the library board learned the grim tale from its attorney, Roger Bjorvik, and from a financial consultant.

THE BOARD REACTED by hiring the consultant, Howard W. Voss Associates, Inc., of Kenilworth, to help sell the bonds if the referendum passes.

The bonds totalling $250,000, would be sold to pay for purchase and remodeling of the St. Marks United Church of Christ building as the district's new library.

The referendum allows voters to decide whether the district will be allowed to borrow the money for the church by issuing the general obligation bonds.

Part of the bonds would be retired each year through taxes levied especially for that purpose.

Although the library board had originally planned to retire the bonds over a 20-year period so that the tax rate increase could be kept to a minimum, the board learned Tuesday that it may be forced to have a higher rate for a smaller number of years. The shorter maturation period would make the bonds easier to sell.

FRANK FOSTER, a vice president of the consultant firm, explained to the board members that the bond market appeared to be improving, and that the board would be better off selling bonds in April than today.

Foster explained to the board that shortening the number of years in which the bonds are paid off will mean an overall savings to taxpayers overall. However, on a nine-year basis, the rate each year for those nine years will be higher.

Thus, taxpayers would pay approximately 6.2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation on their homes each year for nine years for the bonds instead of the 4 cents per $200 each year for 20 years.

Also, the tax rate might vary depending on the amount of bonds retired in a single year, so that one year the rate could be higher than nine cents per $100 and another year it could drop to three cents per $100.

THE LIBRARY board has to decide in how many years the bonds will be retired and the interest rates each year. The board will decide on that plan at a public hearing March 3.

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

Security to be Tight

Tight security measures have been arranged for Friday's visit by President Richard Nixon to Schaumburg and Hanover Park for his visit to the tertiary treatment plant.

The President arrives in Schaumburg Airport where Chief Martin Conroy has coordinated protection with Cook County Sheriff's police, DuPage County Sheriff's deputies, federal officials and state police.

"I will have my full manpower out," Conroy said yesterday. Schaumburg police will primarily cover the airport area.

"NO ONE WILL be able to get to the airport without credentials," he added. There will be special areas roped off for official visitors and members of the press.

Conroy added that regular protection of the village itself will be maintained.

The President will then travel over an undisclosed route covered by full security precautions, according to Chief Sam Polotto of Hanover Park.

Polotto's men will also be working with the cooperation of state police, Cook County Sheriff's Police and with the assistance of men from the Streamwood Police Department.

"We have all the necessary precautions. They have been taken to make the area secure," Polotto said.

"INTERSECTIONS AND the immediate area where the president is going will be covered," he added.

No one will be allowed to enter the Water Reclamation Plant where Nixon will go unless they have proper credentials, he added.

"This will in no way effect regular patrol of the village. Regular precautions will stay the same," Polotto said.

FLOWER POWER is her business. Christina Iwasyk of Palatine is learning the trade as an apprentice florist at Brautigam's Flowers in the Randhurst Shopping Center. Christina, 21, was born in Belgium and moved to the United States with her parents in 1960. Designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements is her kind of flower power.

Dignitaries to Line Up

Among the dignitaries greeting President Richard Nixon when he arrives at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning will be Illinois State Representatives David J. Regner and Eugene Schlickman of the Third District. Rep. Eugenia Chapman said yesterday she had not yet been invited.

The Third District includes Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover and Barrington townships, and parts of Northfield and Maine Townships.

"I plan to be at the airport about 8 a.m. Friday for the President's arrival," Regner said. Regner lives in Mount Prospect.

"I just received the message that the president was visiting the Third District, and I didn't know what president it was. I was really surprised the President of the United States was coming here."

"I'M VERY GLAD the President is visiting the Third District again," Regner remarked.

"It's quite an honor having Mr. Nixon visit the Third District for the second time in a little over a year," Regner added. While campaigning for the Presidency, Nixon addressed a Republican Party rally at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect in October 1968.

"I got to shake hands with Mrs. Nixon at the party rally at Prospect High," said Rep. Schlickman. "However, I didn't shake hands with the president-to-be."

Schlickman said that he understood that only persons issued passes would be able to have access to the immediate landing area at the airport.

SCHLICKMAN ADDED that most of the crowd Friday would probably be Republican party workers "doing their thing" rather than persons present due to sheer enthusiasm.

"President Nixon's reappearance is an acknowledgement of the importance of the population and growth in the area. I have to compliment who ever placed the visit to the tertiary treatment plant on the agenda. This is a new development and is something worth having the President see," Schlickman said.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman said she was not invited to welcome President Nixon but that her feeling are not hurt.

"Certainly the President is welcome whenever he wants to visit the area. I'm glad he's discovered pollution and that he's going to do something about it."

"I am sure the Metropolitan Sanitary District has something worth seeing," she said of the treatment plant.

Here's Where Nixon Copter Will Land

Want to catch a glimpse of President Nixon at Schaumburg Airport? It's on Irving Park Road, Rt. 19, in southern Schaumburg. Plan to arrive before 8:30 a.m.

Directions for persons not living in Schaumburg Township: Follow Golf Road west to Roselle Road; take Roselle south to Devon Avenue; take Devon west to Irving Park Road and follow that west (northwest) to the airport.

DAVID REGNER, State Representative from the 3rd Dist.: "At first, I didn't know which president was visiting."

FROM CHURCH TO LIBRARY? A referendum for funds to change the St. Marks United Church of Christ building into a new library for the Wheeling

Public library district has been postponed until April 4. Even if the referendum passes, the library district may have difficulties selling the general obligation bonds to finance the purchase and remodeling of the building.

Library Referendum April 4

It's definite now — a series of legal requirements has caused a delay in a two-part referendum by the Wheeling Public Library District.

The district will postpone its referendum until April 4. Included in the referendum are two propositions.

One ballot asks voters to approve an issue of $250,000 in general obligation bonds for the purchase and remodeling of the St. Marks United Church of Christ building in Wheeling as the district's new library.

THE SECOND proposition asks voters to increase the tax rate levied for district operations from 12 to 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The new April 4 date for the referendum will be officially approved on March 7 following a public hearing scheduled for March 3.

The public hearing, at which the library board will make final decisions on the financing, repair, remodeling and equipping of the church building, is a legal requirement which must be met before a referendum on building plans can be held.

The library district also is required to post notices at 10 different locations within the district announcing that the hearing will be held and that plans and estimates of cost for acquisition, repair, remodeling and equipping of the building are available for inspection by the public in the library.

The referendums had been planned originally for Feb. 21, but the requirements of the hearings and the notices caused the delay.

VOTERS IN WHEELING and the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove will vote on the two referendums.

However, the public hearing procedures relate only to the purchase and remodeling of a new library building, and not to the district's bid for a tax rate increase.

Polling places for the referendum will be located at Kilmer and Alcott schools in Buffalo Grove and at London Junior High School, Wheeling High School, the Wheeling Park District fieldhouse and the village fire station in Wheeling.

The library board first began looking for a new library site in spring of 1968. Attempts to purchase a site adjacent to Wheeling's new municipal building were unsuccessful, and the district then began to consider the church building as a possible location.

Currently the district has an option

Students Generate 'Report' Enthusiasm

At Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, students go out of their way to be "put on report." Moreover, 49 of them have made it so far.

The reason behind their enthusiasm, however, is that good behavior, not bad, results in a student's being "put on report." Under a new system, school patrol members "report" those pupils who have practiced good conduct and safety awareness.

agreement which gives the district exclusive right to buy the building until April 7. The district's agreement calls for a $98,200 purchase price for the church building.

Delay Vote On 2-Part Referendum

Even if the referendum April 4 to buy and remodel a building for a new library passes, the Wheeling Public Library District may have an uphill battle to finance the new library.

The district can legally pay no more than 6 per cent interest on the general obligation bonds it will issue to finance the purchase and remodeling of its new building.

The problem arises because the legal limit for school and park districts' and municipalities' bonds was raised to 7 per cent during the last session of the Illinois General Assembly.

Thus, the library district will have to complete to sell its bonds with other public governmental agencies that can pay higher interest rates.

The competition looks tough. Tuesday night the library board learned the grim tale from its attorney, Roger Bjorvik, and from a financial consultant.

THE BOARD REACTED by hiring the consultant, Howard W. Voss Associates, Inc., of Kenilworth, to help sell the bonds if the referendum passes.

The bonds totalling $250,000, would be sold to pay for purchase and remodeling of the St. Marks United Church of Christ building as the district's new library.

The referendum allows voters to decide whether the district will be allowed to borrow the money for the church by issuing the general obligation bonds.

Part of the bonds would be retired each year through taxes levied especially for that purpose.

Optimism On Radio Center

"A decision would probably be made before the next fiscal year" on the proposed centralized police communications center, according to Richard Decker, Buffalo Grove's village manager.

Besides Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows are considering participation in the center.

Decker is more optimistic over the possibility of a centralized police radio communications center, as the result of a meeting on the matter yesterday.

The meeting, at the Buffalo Grove village hall, lasted more than five hours. Attending were representatives from International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., the firm selling the center, as well as officials from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights.

DECKER SAID YESTERDAY, "What this thing apparently boils down to is that Buffalo Grove would be spending about $10,000 for this. This is just a guess. But, the new equipment we would be receiving would be worth about $7,000."

Decker had said Monday he had reservations over whether or not efficiency would be increased with the new centralized system.

"My reservations on this still hold, to some degree. Though Buffalo Grove wouldn't have to actually hire two dispatchers, train them and assign them in Arlington Heights, the village would have to contribute both some manpower and some money." However, Decker said that he was "very optimistic" over the dispatcher matter.

Another reason behind Decker's reluctance over the centralized communication system was that villages would have to buy new radios for their police cars. "This problem has been solved more or less, though not quite to my satisfaction. We want to get into centralized buying. Thus, the five municipalities would get together to buy 56 new radios." Buffalo Grove would get four of those radios in order to save money, Decker said the IIT representatives planned to look into this possibility.

ANOTHER POINT made by Decker: "WITH this centralized dispatcher system some money." However, Decker said that in Arlington Heights, no police chief would be happy sitting in his office not knowing what his men are doing." Decker has suggested five monitoring radios be included in the system. These would be installed at the police stations in each of the five participating municipalities. Decker said IIT representatives agreed to look into this also.

Said Decker, "What I want them to do is to come out and state exactly what this system will do for the villages, and precisely what it will cost each municipality." Decker said as yet, this has not been done.

"WHEN I AND MY colleagues (in the other four villages considering participation in the system) get this, we can go back over our records, find out what procedures this will eliminate, and what those procedures cost in prior years."

Decker noted: "The village would make the final decision on any expenditure for the system."

The President's Coming

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

More on President Nixon's visit to the suburbs on Page 2.

Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

PASSES AUTHORIZING holders to witness the President's arrival from a special

roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President."

GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October 1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

NEITHER RAIN NOR SNOW nor sleet can halt the bricklayer in his work on the new post office in Wheeling. The $491,800 building is expected to be completed in August to serve residents of both Buf-

Smith Supported But What Extent?

Palatine Township Republicans will deliver the vote for Senator Ralph T. Smith March 17, despite the difficulty Smith had in winning the local organization's endorsement this week.

That was the prediction of GOP Committeeman Bernard Pedersen following the two and a half hour session before Smith was endorsed.

It took five separate ballots for Smith to get the two-thirds vote needed for the endorsement over William Rentschler of Lake Forest in the March primary.

"IT WAS ROUGH," Pedersen said. "They've got a lot of things on their minds, kind of a rebellion against taxes and everything else," he said.

Smith's endorsement means the Palatine GOP organization will work for him in the primary, but neither Pedersen nor committeewoman Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha would predict how enthusiastic that support would be.

This was the second endorsement for Smith in the northwest suburbs, while Rentschler has none. Last week, Wheeling Township endorsed the senator, giving him the enviable advantage of having the area's largest GOP organization on his side.

If Palatine Township's endorsement carries the same message that it has in the past, Smith is a sure winner. Palatine has been the only township to consistently endorse winners, including last year's endorsement of U.S. Rep. Philip Crane and the 1962 endorsement of Crane's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

On both occasions Palatine was the only township to endorse the winner.

She's Belgium But Is 'All-American'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Although Christina Iwasyk was born in Belgium, she's as American as apple pie.

At a time when American youths are rebelling against the establishment, 21-year-old Christina speaks frankly and sincerely about the United States. "America: love it or leave it," she said.

And the slender, brown-haired girl means every word of it. She knows from experience.

Christina, an apprentice florist for Brautigam's Flowers at Randhurst, lives in Palatine with her parents. Although she was born in Genk, Belgium, a little town near the Luxembourg border, she's Polish.

"MY MOTHER and father were born in Poland, but they were relocated in Germany during World War II. The Germans sent many Polish youths to Germany to work on the farms. My parents had no choice. They were picked up off the streets one day by the German soldiers who loaded the people into trucks.

"And my parents haven't seen their families since the day the Germans came. We don't know if our relatives are still living or what happened to them during the war. . . or after the war, since the Communists occupied Poland," she explained.

Christina's parents left Germany after the war and settled in Belgium. "My father worked in the coal mines and conditions were very bad in Europe. So they tried for more than eight years to come to the United States. That's how long it took for papers and visas. I was 11-years-old when we left Belgium and I remember very well.

"Polish friends of ours in Palatine sponsored us and my family flew to the United States in 1960. I thought America would be like the western films we saw. Cowboys and Indians and stage coaches. Europeans believe too much what they see and read about America. Many of them believe the anti-American propaganda which is too bad," she said.

CHRISTINA, A 1969 graduate of Fremd High School in Palatine, is learning about "flower power" at Brautigam's. Christina, who was enrolled in the education for employment program at Fremd, worked part time for the florist while she was in school. Now she has an eight-hour job which includes designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements.

"My parents were really surprised the day I graduated. They didn't think I could make it because school was very difficult for me when we came to America. I didn't speak English at all, and although I should have started in the fifth grade, I was held back in the fourth grade.

"English is so difficult to learn because many words are spelled differently than they're pronounced," Christina said. She is still modest, a European characteristic, about her English which is almost flawless.

Although she has lived in Palatine for 10 years and she's a product of American schools, Christina doesn't always approve of her contemporaries. At least, not this generation's rebelliousness.

"American kids have it made. They've got everything they want and they don't appreciate it. I believe in America and if you don't love it, leave it. These kids should experience the living conditions in Europe and then maybe they wouldn't be so quick to criticize this country.

"KIDS JUST don't have any respect, especially for their parents. But it's the parents' fault because they spoil their children. In my house, my father's word is law and we respect him.

"I don't approve of student marches, demonstrations, pickets and sit-ins. If people here can't have their way, they pout and throw a tantrum. There are students who defend Communism when they don't know what it's all about or they criticize the war. They should see war and Communism," she explained.

"And besides, I'm for capital punishment. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. The laws in America are not enforced. Everyone who does wrong in this country pleads temporary insanity and then nothing's done. It's not right. There's no respect for anything," she said.

CHRISTINA SAID most youths today don't even respect themselves. "Students are sloppy in the way they dress. I don't like long hair on boys because they look dirty. Even many of the girls are sloppy. They wear old bluejeans, a sloppy shirt and often don't wear any shoes. And some of them look as they've never seen a bath tub in years.

"And they have all the comforts of indoor plumbing and hot water from the tap. It's nice to be able to afford these comforts like we can in America, but not everyone in the world is as fortunate."

To Christina Iwasyk, living in America is getting more than a fair chance in life.

Pact Agreement Near?

Teachers, administrators, and school board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are working to complete a professional negotiations agreement between the teachers' Educators Association and the school board before the board begins consideration salaries for the 1970-71 budget.

Meeting about once a week, the groups hope to complete their discussions soon, according to James Heath, president and spokesman for the teachers' group, the Educators Association.

Ground rules established when the board committee and the teachers' committee began meeting last summer prohibit statements about specific considerations unless the two spokesmen, Heath for the teachers and Howard Meadows, board secretary, for the school board, agree a statement should be made.

Generally, Heath feels negotiation progress is excellent and he is optimistic about reaching an agreement soon.

"I can't say when we will have an agreement, but I hope very soon," Heath said.

Negotiations between the board and the Educators Association began last summer when Board President Walter Sundling told a group of teachers attending a board meeting he would reactivate the committee to consider a professional negotiations agreement.

Earlier last spring the teachers attempted to negotiate the agreement, but found the board had already begun discussion of a salary schedule and was too involved in planning the budget to meet on a regular basis.

DISAGREEMENT on this year's salary schedule prompted the teachers to ask for a formal agreement rather than the informal one they have had for several years.

In May, the board approved a salary schedule which the teachers had, in a 6 to 1 questionnaire vote, rejected as inadequate. When a group of teachers appeared before the board at its June meeting, Sundling said he would reopen the salary discussion if state aid to the district increased. Though the formula for receiving state funds was changed, Dist. 15 did not receive an increase substantial enough to allow raises.

Teachers in Dist. 15 received a $600 increase in starting salary for this year over last year. Beginning salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience is $7,000.

CONCERN FOR keeping experienced teachers in the district was one of the reasons the EA approached the board for a change in the proposed salary schedule.

With a professional negotiations agreement, steps to be taken in salary talks between teachers and the school board will be set down. Such agreements are sanctioned by the Illinois Educators Association.

Last year the EA asked teachers to withhold returning signed contracts until the salary dispute was settled. A professional negotiations agreement would set up procedure for salary discussions to avoid a similar breach of confidence between the school board and the teachers.

The President's Coming

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

Park Plans To Show 'Moonspinners' Movie

"The Moonspinners," a Walt Disney movie, will be sponsored by the Palatine Park District on Thursday, Feb. 12.

The program will be held during the week because children will take a holiday from school to honor Lincoln's Birthday, according to Tony DiCello, director of recreation.

"Moonspinners" will be shown at St. Paul's Church, 144 E. Palatine Road, at 1:30 p.m. Admission will be 50 cents a person.

Plumbing Tools Are Stolen from Builder

The theft of between $300 and $600 worth of plumbing tools from the H. B. Fuller Construction site at 315 S. Hicks was being investigated by Palatine police yesterday.

Police said the tools were contained in a tool box belonging to the National Heat and Power Co. of Chicago which is working at the site.

The theft occurred between Jan. 27 and Jan. 30. It was not reported until Tuesday because officials were trying to determine if any of the construction workers on the site had borrowed the tools police said.

Costs Down For Building

For the second year in a row, Palatine had a more than $15 million year in building construction during 1969.

But last year's total did not quite measure up to the record setting $15,412,061.38 chalked up in 1968.

According to the December 1969, building department report, the village issued building permits totaling $15,139,702.52 for 1969 or $272,359.36 less than the 1968 total.

The final year-end report is expected to be completed within a week.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST boosts to the village's 1969 total came in December when the building department issued two commercial permits which raised that month's total more than $1 million higher than the total for December 1968.

According to building department figures, a $1,061,985 permit was issued for the construction of the Howard Johnson motel and restaurant in Willow Creek, in addition to $160,000 for a food market in the same area.

A total of $1,692,708 of permits was issued for December 1969 compared to a total of $828,960 issued in December of 1968.

Permits for 349 homes totaling $8,986,448 were issued during 1969 as compared with the 357 permits totaling $8,754,189 which were issued in 1968.

DURING DECEMBER 1969, 12 single-family residence permits totaling $278,500 were issued compared with the 25 single-family residence permits totaling $560,105 issued in December 1968.

The figures given by the building department are total building cost estimates made by applicants and accepted by the building department.

Last year's decline ended a streak of two successive years in which the village's new building jumped more than $5 million.

Construction rose a total of $5.4 million in 1966 to $10.1 million in 1967 to 1968's record high of $15,412,061.

Talent Show Set at School

Guitars, pianos, organs and horns will make music at the hands of students at Immanuel Lutheran School in Palatine at 3 p.m. Sunday in the school's talent show.

Fifty students will participate in 15 musical and theatrical arts introduced by master of ceremonies Randy Sensmeier, a member of the Immanuel Lutheran School faculty.

A comedy skit based on "The Odd Couple" will be performed by two girls who will also sing "There's a Hole in the Bucket."

Musical solos are on the French horn, organ, piano and trombone; Indian dance in authentic costume; a guitar trio and comedy skit; a baton twirler dance, and a guitar and drum playing group called the "White Label." A quartet of eighth grade boys on piano, trumpet, trombone and drums also will be on the program.

The second grade class will do a dramatic reading and fifth grade girls will portray "Peanuts" characters to complete the one-hour show.

Dale Elmshaeuser, musical director at the school, is supervising the show. The public has been invited and admission is free.

Sticker Deadline Near

Palatine residents have until Feb. 15 to buy their village vehicle tax stickers. The stickers cost $10.

Residents need not have new Illinois license plates to obtain the stickers.

Residents Rank 2nd As Hospital Patients

For the 10th consecutive year, Palatine residents have made up the second largest group of residents admitted to Northwest Community Hospital in a year.

In 1969, 17 per cent of the 13,336 patients admitted to the hospital were Palatine residents. The number of patients from Palatine has risen from 1,137 in 1960 to 2,282 in 1969.

Arlington Heights provides the largest group of admissions with 26 per cent of the hospital's admitted patients.

Four Seasons Hearing Delay

Oral arguments in the lawsuit against Four Seasons Nursing Centers of America filed by some Palatine homeowners will be heard in a month.

Yesterday, Circuit Court Judge Edward Healy requested that legal briefs be filed within 20 days and delayed the hearing until March 4, according to Richard Mugalian, who is representing the homeowners.

MEANWHILE, a temporary injunction granted by the court against the nursing home will remain in effect, Mugalian said.

The restraining order will stop any further improvements to the property or paper work concerning the nursing home.

In December, the lawsuit was filed claiming a nursing home cannot be built because property owners do not have a valid special use ordinance.

Palatine village officials in November granted special zoning and annexed the tract along South Quentin Road near Illinois Avenue.

ALTHOUGH THE suit was filed by two residents of Hunting Ridge Subdivision, it has the support of 95 per cent of the homeowners in the area, according to Mugalian. The subdivision is directly west of the proposed nursing home site.

Smith Supported But What Extent?

Palatine Township Republicans will deliver the vote for Senator Ralph T. Smith March 17, despite the difficulty Smith had in winning the local organization's endorsement this week.

That was the prediction of GOP Committeeman Bernard Pedersen following the two and a half hour session before Smith was endorsed.

It took five separate ballots for Smith to get the two-thirds vote needed for the endorsement over William Rentschler of Lake Forest in the March primary.

"IT WAS ROUGH," Pedersen said.

"They've got a lot of things on their minds, kind of a rebellion against taxes and everything else," he said.

Smith's endorsement means the Palatine GOP organization will work for him in the primary, but neither Pedersen nor committeewoman Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha would predict how enthusiastic that support would be.

This was the second endorsement for Smith in the northwest suburbs, while Rentschler has none. Last week, Wheeling Township endorsed the senator, giving him the enviable advantage of having the area's largest GOP organization on his side.

If Palatine Township's endorsement carries the same message that it has in the past, Smith is a sure winner. Palatine has been the only township to consistently endorse winners, including last year's endorsement of U.S. Rep. Philip Crane and the 1962 endorsement of Crane's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

On both occasions Palatine was the only township to endorse the winner.

Nixon Visit Called 'Great'

It's great to think President Richard Nixon is coming to the Northwest suburbs according to Palatine Township Republican Committeeman Bernard Pedersen.

He said although there's not an organized effort on the part of his organization to greet Nixon when he lands at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning, he's certain there will be several of his local party members standing in line at the gate.

Tickets for admittance to the airport were distributed among party members at Tuesday night's precinct captain meeting.

"A lot of people were taking handfuls of the tickets," Pedersen said.

"I handed out some of the tickets and everyone got pretty excited," added Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha, local GOP committeewoman.

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

FLOWER POWER is her business. Christina Iwasyk of Palatine is learning the trade as an apprentice florist at Brautigam's Flowers in the Randhurst Shopping Center. Christina, 21, was born in Belgium and moved to the United States with her parents in 1960. Designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements is her kind of flower power.

She's Belgium But Is 'All-American'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Although Christina Iwasyk was born in Belgium, she's as American as apple pie.

At a time when American youths are rebelling against the establishment, 21-year-old Christina speaks frankly and sincerely about the United States. "America: love it or leave it," she said.

And the slender, brown-haired girl means every word of it. She knows from experience.

Christina, an apprentice florist for Brautigam's Flowers at Randhurst, lives in Palatine with her parents. Although she was born in Genk, Belgium, a little town near the Luxembourg border, she's Polish.

"MY MOTHER and father were born in Poland, but they were relocated in Germany during World War II. The Germans sent many Polish youths to Germany to work on the farms. My parents had no choice. They were picked up off the streets one day by the German soldiers who loaded the people into trucks.

"And my parents haven't seen their families since the day the Germans came. We don't know if our relatives are still living or what happened to them during the war. . . or after the war, since the Communists occupied Poland," she explained.

Christina's parents left Germany after the war and settled in Belgium. "My father worked in the coal mines and conditions were very bad in Europe. So they tried for more than eight years to come to the United States. That's how long it took for papers and visas. I was 11-years-old when we left Belgium and I remember very well.

"Polish friends of ours in Palatine sponsored us and my family flew to the United States in 1960. I thought America would be like the western films we saw. Cowboys and Indians and stage coaches. Europeans believe too much what they see and read about America. Many of them believe the anti-American propaganda which is too bad," she said.

CHRISTINA, A 1969 graduate of Fremd High School in Palatine, is learning about "flower power" at Brautigam's. Christina, who was enrolled in the education for employment program at Fremd, worked part time for the florist while she was in school. Now she has an eight-hour job which includes designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements.

"My parents were really surprised the day I graduated. They didn't think I could make it because school was very difficult for me when we came to America. I didn't speak English at all, and although I should have started in the fifth grade, I was held back in the fourth grade.

"English is so difficult to learn because many words are spelled differently than they're pronounced," Christina said. She is still modest, a European characteristic, about her English which is almost flawless.

Although she has lived in Palatine for 10 years and she's a product of American schools, Christina doesn't always approve of her contemporaries. At least, not this generation's rebelliousness.

"American kids have it made. They've got everything they want and they don't appreciate it. I believe in America and if you don't love it, leave it. These kids should experience the living conditions in Europe and then maybe they wouldn't be so quick to criticize this country.

"KIDS JUST don't have any respect, especially for their parents. But it's the parents' fault because they spoil their children. In my house, my father's word is law and we respect him.

"I don't approve of student marches, demonstrations, pickets and sit-ins. If people here can't have their way, they pout and throw a tantrum. There are students who defend Communism when they don't know what it's all about or they criticize the war. They should see war and Communism," she explained.

"And besides, I'm for capital punishment. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. The laws in America are not enforced. Everyone who does wrong in this country pleads temporary insanity and then nothing's done. It's not right. There's no respect for anything," she said.

CHRISTINA SAID most youths today don't even respect themselves. "Students are sloppy in the way they dress. I don't like long hair on boys because they look dirty. Even many of the girls are sloppy. They wear old bluejeans, a sloppy shirt and often don't wear any shoes. And some of them look as they've never seen a bath tub in years.

"And they have all the comforts of indoor plumbing and hot water from the tap. It's nice to be able to afford these comforts like we can in America, but not everyone in the world is as fortunate."

To Christina Iwasyk, living in America is getting more than a fair chance in life.

This Joint Has Formed 'Bond' Among Teens

If you bought a bond from a teenager from the Joint, Palatine Township's youth organization, and you're wondering what became of it, stop wondering.

Members of the Joint, not to be confused with the Outpost of the Palatine Township

Youth Committee, a separate organization, have bought themselves a "home away from home."

For $55,000 the teens purchased a four and one-half acre site on which there is a barn and a five room house on Smith Road off of Northwest Highway.

The house will be renovated into a coffeehouse, offices, a recreational area and a meeting place. The barn will eventually be turned into a dance hall.

PRESENTLY, JOINT members are progressing on both financing the venture, and the actual renovation, according to Mrs. Lorraine LaSusa, adult advisor.

Purchase of the first three and one-half acres, the site on which the barn is situated, was completed last year. The teens have less than $8,000 mortgage, at 5 percent interest, on that parcel which sold for $40,000.

Purchase of the second parcel of property, one acre on which the house is located, was for $15,000. This parcel is contiguous to the first three and one-half acres, and teens gained possession of the land last December.

Renovation of the house has already begun. The remodeling cost will cost approximately $15,000, according to Mrs. LaSusa. Architectural plans have been drawn up by Jessen and Associates of Park Ridge and Harper Junior College students and faculty. The house should be ready for use within the next two months.

Within a year members hope water and sewer line, which will run to a nearby school site, will be connected to the barn. Annexation to the Village of Palatine is also in progress, LaSusa said.

"Besides, we need $50,000 to $70,000 to renovate the barn and we just don't have the money right now," she added.

"Mrs. LaSusa said the only things standing in the way of progress is a lack of money and know how. "With help we can realize our first home for a teen club — the first to be owned, planned, designed, built and run by teens."

Mrs. LaSusa said what the Joint needs most is advice on how to do the necessary labor themselves.

"We are willing to work with anyone willing to help us in roofing, carpentry, plumbing, heating and ventilation, and sheet metal work for heating and lighting the house.

"Realization can only begin with help, and we know, that we need to know, how to do it ourselves, she said.

Dyke Leads Boys Down Path of Life

by TOM ROBB

It's a little embarrassing to have to stop at a roadside phone booth, call S. P. Dykstra, and say, "I'm lost, can you give me directions to your house?" But young people do.

Since 1949 "Dyke," as friends call him, has been a pathfinder for the lives of thousands of boys.

For as long as it takes a newborn boy to come of age, Dyke has been leading boys along the path to manhood. Dyke is in the wholesale lumber business, he's an outdoorsman, but most of all, Dyke is a Boy Scout leader.

AS A CHAIRMAN of the camping and activities committee of the Signal Hill District, he recently received the highest award scouting has to offer — the Silver Beaver award.

It might sound a little strange, Silver Beaver, but this award stands for something that is anything but strange: distinguished service to young boys over the years.

Dyke is not the only one in his family to carry the rank of top brass. His sons share the wealth. Peter, the oldest, is Life Scout; Douglas is an Eagle Scout and John is a Star Scout. Dorothy, his wife, is also an outdoor fan.

Dyke's involvement with scouting goes back farther than when his oldest became a cub scout. "When I was a boy, I was a First Class scout in Pella City, Iowa.

"It's hard to explain why I've stayed with scouting. You like to think you're helping somebody. Years ago when I was assistant scoutmaster for a troop we had one boy who was a real troublemaker. When discipline failed, we gave him authority and leadership — he turned out to be one of the best scouts I've ever known."

At the present time, Dyke's duties involve planning outdoor activities, camping, and long-term summer camp experience for the 2,081 boys in his district.

A COUPLE OF weeks ago Dyke did his share of camping in 14-below zero weather at the Klondike Derby, Rockcut State Park. "I never ask the boys to do more than I would do," Dyke, 56, said.

"It's the experience these boys get by camping out that counts. Once we sent the boys out in patrols to hike through the woods and report back anything unusual they saw."

One patrol got lost and after sometime they returned to camp with an explanation: "They had spotted a hummingbird taking a bath in a waterfall," he said.

The main point Dyke tries to get across to his boys on a camp out is the Boy Scout motto, "Be Prepared," even in the wilderness.

And even in Dyke's home at 1750 Brookview, Palatine, a bit of the wilderness has been brought inside.

ON A KNOFFY-PINE wall above the fireplace is a 120-pound stuffed Marlin. "Fishing and hunting are two of my hobbies," said Dyke, who has fished in Mexico, hunted Moose with bow and arrow in Newfoundland, and tracked black bear in northern Wisconsin.

"But my greatest hobby is scouting. There's just something about that boy we helped years ago, the idea of engineering his destructive energies to constructive," he said. "If scouting can help one boy, I've always believed it can help others."

$1,100 Snowmobile Is Reported Stolen

Palatine police are investigating the theft of a snowmobile valued at $1,100 from the home of Henry Wardwell, 283 Firth Road, Inverness.

Police said the theft took place sometime after 1 a.m. Tuesday.

THE VEHICLE was parked about 30 feet from the Firth Road address, police said, when two men picked it up and placed it into a trailer and then drove off.

The snowmobile has a yellow body, yellow tinted windshield with black skids and frame. A two-inch towing ring is attached to the rear of the vehicle, police said.

Conant: 'Things Getting Brighter'

Next week is the birthday of Thomas Edison, whose first light bulb resembled a football in size, and members of the Conant High School Booster Club seem to have taken this into account.

Since last September they have been working hard to get night lights for the Conant High football field, and Wednesday night they came one giant step closer to financing their project.

A donation of $1,897.91 was presented to Jack Magnuson, president of the booster club, by Hank Ralston, a trustee of the Dorothy Sicher Memorial Scholarship Fund at the club's regular meeting.

Dorothy Sicher, the founder of the Hoffman Estates Theater Guild, who was serving as village clerk when she died last year, was active in many community organizations.

ALSO ATTENDING the presentation were fund trustees Robert Atcher, the Mayor of Schaumburg, and James Cannon Jr. and Sid Sicher, husband of the late Dorothy Sicher.

Magnuson said the donation will help the club considerably in reaching the estimated $36,000 cost of the lights. Presently, the club has $12,000 in the bank and several commitments.

By this summer, when construction on the lights will begin, the club expects to have a minimum of $18,000 raised, Magnuson said.

If the club is still short of their financial goal by the first football game next season, the lights will be installed and ready to use, the Roselle State Bank has agreed to pay half of the outstanding difference.

Progress is well under way on the lights, Magnuson said. Engineering plans are now being drawn up, soil testing will begin shortly, and members expect to have contracts let within 30 days.

In order to help raise the rest of the money needed for the lights, the Conant Booster Club will sponsor a carnival in May during Memorial Day weekend. Other fund raising events are now being considered, he said.

3-Ring Circus For Cub Scouts

A three-ring circus highlighted a recent meeting of Palatine's Cub Scout Pack 239. Den 1 did magic tricks, Den 2 performed acrobatics and Den 3 presented a side show.

Jack Eiler and Bobby Blanke, members of the Delores Eiler School of Dancing, provided a special treat for the scouts, by turning cartwheels and walking up the stairs on their hands while Delores Eiler narrated.

The highest award in Cub Scouting, the Arrow of Light, was presented to Gunnar Collins.

Richard Neufeld, Patrick Butler and Richard Krueger were welcomed into Webelos.

WOLF AWARDS went to Billy Molway, Pat Butler, Charles Kern, Bill Poll, Tom Poll, Tim Bell and Blaise Knoll.

Bear awards went to Bill Garrels, Tom Jeschke, Steve Zenner, Ty Kouros, Pat Butler and Steve Witczak.

Tony Mays received a one-year service pin.

John Augdahl and Don Price were named new Bobcats in Pack 239.

Valentine Party Of Club to be Planned

The "young at heart" of the Palatine Leisure Club will each bring a Valentine card to their next meeting at which plans for an upcoming party and an early Spring trip to Wisconsin will be discussed.

The meeting will be held at 11 a.m., Tuesday, Feb. 10 in the Community Room of the Savings and Loan Bank, 100 W. Palatine Road.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 24.

Sanborn PTA To Hear Talk On Drug Abuse

Parents of students at Gray M. Sanborn and Joel Wood schools in Palatine will be able to learn about drug abuse and what they, as parents, can do about it at the Feb. 10 meeting of the PTA in Sanborn School.

Officer Robinson of the Arlington Heights police department will speak on drug abuse at 8 p.m. and discussion will follow. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

THAT'S THE SILVER BEAVER scouting leader S. P. Dykstra is holding. Dykstra recently received the award, which is the highest honor the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council can bestow, for his continuous service to the scouting cause since 1949.

Countryside 'Y' Swim Teams Score Victories

Countryside YMCA boy's and girl's swim teams both added another victory to their records at their most recent meets.

The girl's swim team defeated Indian Boundary with a score of 231 to 114, and the boy's team came out on top over Washington Park, 162 to 107.

This gives the girls an 8-2 standing, and the boys boast an 8-1 record for this season. This weekend the girl swimmers will meet South Chicago of the Blue League, with the boys at Indian Boundary for the Red League championship.

Results of the girl's meet against Indian Boundary were:

The cadets, midjets and juniors won their medley relays, and the freestyle relays were completely dominated by Countryside.

IN THE CADET division, Linda Stahnke came in first in the 25 yard freestyle, while Darcy Dee took a first and Tracy Hibbs a second in the 25 yard butterfly stroke.

In the backstroke Susan Winslow took second and Tracy Hibbs third place. Cheri Branch won second place in the 50 yard freestyle, Tracy Hibbs took second and Linda Stahnke took third in the 25 yard breaststroke.

Stobahn Rafferty came in first, with Ann Rettie, third in the 50 yard butterfly stroke. In the 50 yard backstroke Charla Blair took a first, followed by Gretchen Fricke, second.

A first also went to Stobahn Rafferty in the 100 yard freestyle. Kim Holcombe finished second, and Marie Spiczka third in the 50 yard breaststroke.

Swimming for preps, Dana Joseph won first place, and Carol Howland, third, in the 50 yard freestyle. Sue Enander won the 100 yard individual medley.

ALSO IN THE prep division, Cindy Wolfe took second place and Colleen McGivney third in the 50 yard butterfly stroke. Miss McGivney also took first place, with Sue Enander following with second place in the 50 yard backstroke.

Kay Blair took second place in the 100 yard freestyle, with Deanne Joseph second, and Sue Enander third in the breaststroke.

The junior division came out ahead in every event but the backstroke.

Kay Corbett was first, and Sandy Adams third in the 50 yard freestyle. In the 200 yard individual medley Kay Corbett took first and Caryl Cannis second.

Denise Rafferty took first and Sue Stahnke third in the 100 yard butterfly. Andy Hibbs was second, with Kay Nielsen third for 100 yard backstroke.

CAROL CANNIS won the 100 yard freestyle. While in the 100 yard breaststroke Sue Stahnke took first and Caryl Cannis second.

The 200 yard freestyle went to Denise Rafferty, with Tracy Dutton trailing a close second.

The intermediate division took first in all events except the breaststroke. In the 50 yard freestyle Kim Corbett took first and Sue Chips second.

In the 200 yard individual medley Pat Lazarus was first, and Carla Gormsen third. Barb Kolin won first place, with Jill Rettie in third for the 100 yard butterfly stroke. In the 100 yard backstroke Barb Kolin took first and Carla Gormsen second.

SHEILIA RAFFERTY won first place, with Kim Corbett in second for the 100 yard freestyle. Pat Lazarus came in second and Chris Pedersen third for the 100 yard breaststroke. Sheila Rafferty took first, and Sue Chips second in the 200 yard freestyle.

Results of the Washington Park meet for the boy's team are:

In the cadet division Carl Abrahamson took two first in the 20 yard freestyle and the 20 yard butterfly stroke. He also tied for first in the 40 yard freestyle with Paul Lenz finishing third in that event.

Jim Voght came in first, followed by Jay Bleeker in second, in the 20 yard backstroke. Carl Rieger finished second in the 20 yard breaststroke.

In the midjet division John Kugleman came in first in the 40 yard freestyle. Brian Murphy took second in the 80 yard individual medley.

RONNIE TURCOTTE took second, and Kurt Nielsen was third in the 40 yard butterfly stroke. In the 40 yard backstroke Kurt Nielsen came in first, with Brad Byker in second place.

In the 100 yard freestyle Mike Gackowski came in first, followed by Tom Rieger in second place. Chris Crouch finished first, and Jay Bruce second in the 40 yard breaststroke.

In the prep division, first place in the 40 yard freestyle went to Frank Krasovec. Danny Spaulding finished second, with Greg Pierce third in the 80 yard individual medley.

Jim Martin came in first in the 40 yard butterfly. In the 40 yard backstroke Tom Ladwig was first, and Greg Pierce second. Mark Winslow finished third in the 100 yard freestyle.

IN THE JUNIOR division Glen Spaulding came in first in the 40 yard freestyle. Scott Crouch took first, and L. Gackowski second place in the 80 yard individual medley. Gackowski also took second place in the 100 yard butterfly stroke.

Tod Dutton took first, and Scott Crouch second place in the 100 yard backstroke. The 100 yard freestyle went to Kurt Jacobsen, and the 100 yard breaststroke to Scott Byker. Kurt Jacobsen and Joe Vatalaro were first in the 200 yard freestyle.

Drug Talk for Women's Club

There may be a genetic predisposition to narcotics addiction in the genes and chromosomes of the body, the Palatine Junior Women's Club has learned.

Meeting in the Gray Sunborn School, 101 N. Oak, Palatine, the club heard John Pleas, the community development director of St. Leonard's House describe addiction as a medical problem as well as a social and psychological problem.

St. Leonard's, at 2100 Warren Blvd., Chicago, is a halfway house for ex-convicts sponsored by the Episcopal church. It also operates a narcotics addiction service center at 210 W. Madison, which assists about 300 addicts a year.

"SOME NEUROLOGISTS contend that drugs affect the central nervous system and cause the sheath of nerve ending to be pushed back," Pleas said.

"This may be speculation and conjecture," he added, "but there is no question that addiction is a medical problem.

"In 1965," he continued, it was estimated there were 7,000 addicts in the City of Chicago. Personally, I would say 50,000 would be a better estimate. Most of them have a host of medical problems."

Pleas pointed to three areas related to addiction with which health practitioners should be concerned.

He said the young should be made aware of a number of accidental deaths reported from overdoses of narcotics, the possibility of infection arising from the use of dirty needles and the dangers of hepatitis resulting from drug use.

"Your own sons and daughters could be among future victims," Pleas said. "Narcotics is no longer strictly an inner-city problem. It is all around you, in the suburbs as well as in the ghetto. Don't let your children be victimized."

YMCA 'Coo(l)ing' For All Swimmers

"Everybody in the pool," that seems to be the message of Countryside YMCA officials who have announced that registrations may now be made for the Spring Aquatic program.

Classes range from instruction for the wee ones to recreational swimming for the adults. Those interested may sign up at the Leadership Center, 115 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Aquatic classes will meet at the St. Victor High School pool, Arlington Heights. Swimmers need suits, towels and those with long hair are required to wear a bathing cap.

Scout and community groups may arrange swims by calling the YMCA several weeks in advance. There is no charge for one group swim a year.

FOR THE TOTS, 6 months through 2 years of age, classes will meet from 10:15 to 10:45 a.m. on Saturdays, April 11 through May 23.

For three through 6-year-olds, classes will be held from 7 to 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays, April 16 to May 28; from 9:45 to 10:15 a.m. on Saturdays, April 11 to May 23; and from 11:30 to noon on Saturdays, April 11 to May 23.

Classes for beginners, 7 through 13-year-olds, will take place from 7:30 to 8:15 p.m. on Thursdays, April 16 to May 28; from 9:45 to 10:15 a.m. on Saturdays, April 11 to May 23; and from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays, April 11 to May 23.

Intermediate and advanced classes, for those children between the ages of 7 and 13 who are comfortable in deep water, will meet from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays, April 11 to May 23.

AND, SWIMMING FOR adults, 14-years-old and up, will be held from 8:15 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays, March 4 to May 23.

A life saving class for youth and adults will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the classroom, and from 8:30 to 9 p.m. in the pool on Mondays, March 2 to May 4.

Other classes available are scuba diving, aquatic instructor's certification course and recreational family swim, and the Countryside YMCA boys and girl's swim teams.

Further information may be obtained by calling the YMCA.

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D. C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

HEARTS AND HARDBALLS will decorate the gymnasium of Sacred Heart of Mary High School Valentine's Day for the annual Rolling Meadows Boys Baseball dance. Mothers of the Little League players, left to right, Mrs. Donald Klemp, Mrs. Thomas Alt, Mrs. Earl Walter and Mrs. Dick Davis, have spent the last couple of weeks working on decorations for the fund raising dance Accord On Pact Closer?

Teachers, administrators, and school board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are working to complete a professional negotiations agreement between the teachers' Educators Association and the school board before the board begins consideration salaries for the 1970-71 budget.

Meeting about once a week, the groups hope to complete their discussions soon, according to James Heath, president and spokesman for the teachers group, the Educators Association.

Annual Dance Eyed Another 'Fun Fair'

Rolling Meadows Baseball Association parents expect this year's annual dance to be another "fun affair" Feb. 14, with hearts and Valentines replacing last year's George Washington theme.

MUSIC FOR the dance which begins at p.m. will be provided by the Ray Boughen ensemble.

Proceeds from the dance are used to finance the summer baseball program for Rolling Meadows boys. The public is invited to attend.

Tickets can be obtained at the door.

Ground rules established when the board committee and the teachers' committee began meeting last summer prohibit statements about specific considerations unless the two spokesmen, Heath for the teachers and Howard Meadows, board secretary, for the school board, agree a statement should be made.

Generally, Heath feels negotiation progress is excellent and he is optimistic about reaching an agreement soon.

"I can't say when we will have an agreement, but I hope very soon," Heath said.

Negotiations between the board and the Educators Association began last summer when Board President Walter Sundling told a group of teachers attending a board meeting he would reactivate the committee to consider a professional negotiations agreement.

Earlier last spring the teachers attempted to negotiate the agreement, but found the board had already begun discussion of a salary schedule and was too involved in planning the budget to meet on a regular basis.

DISAGREEMENT on this year's salary schedule prompted the teachers to ask for a formal agreement rather than the informal one they have had for several years.

In May, the board approved a salary schedule which the teachers had, in a 6 to 1 questionnaire vote, rejected as inadequate. When a group of teachers appeared before the board at its June meeting, Sundling said he would reopen the salary discussion if state aid to the district increased. Though the formula for receiving state funds was changed, Dist. 15 did not receive an increase substantial enough to allow raises.

Teachers in Dist. 15 received a $600 increase in starting salary for this year over last year. Beginning salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience is $7,000.

CONCERN FOR keeping experienced teachers in the district was one of the reasons the EA approached the board for a change in the proposed salary schedule.

With a professional negotiations agreement, steps to be taken in salary talks between teachers and the school board will be set down. Such agreements are sanctioned by the Illinois Educators Association.

Last year the EA asked teachers to withhold returning signed contracts until the salary dispute was settled. A professional negotiations agreement would set up procedure for salary discussions to avoid a similar breach of confidence between the school board and the teachers.

Set Registration At St. Colette

In setting forth the purposes and aims of a Catholic school education, the Vatican Council declared the Catholic school has several distinctive purposes, including a goal to create a school atmosphere enlivened by a gospel spirit of freedom and charity.

St. Colette Catholic School in Rolling Meadows tries to provide a religion program which emphasizes personal development as it relates to everyday life, as well as an academic program of studies, Sister Clare, principal says.

PARENTS WHO ARE planning to register their students for the fall term at St. Colette should contact Sister Clare during one of the registration periods Saturday from 9 to noon, and Monday through Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

St. Colette's provides classes for third through eighth grades. Families from outside the area should bring transfer forms to the school when they register their students.

The President's Coming

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road. In Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

PASSES AUTHORIZING holders to witness the President's arrival from a special roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President."

GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October

1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

Nixon Visit Called 'Great'

It's great to think President Richard Nixon is coming to the Northwest suburbs according to Palatine Township Republican Committeeman Bernard Pedersen.

He said although there's not an organized effort on the part of his organization to greet Nixon when he lands at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning, he's certain there will be several of his local party members standing in line at the gate.

Tickets for admittance to the airport were distributed among party members at Tuesday night's precinct captain meeting.

"A lot of people were taking handfuls of the tickets," Pedersen said.

"I handed out some of the tickets and everyone got pretty excited," added Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha, local GOP committeewoman.

Security to be Tight

Tight security measures have been arranged for Friday's visit by President Richard Nixon to Schaumburg and Hanover Park for his visit to the tertiary treatment plant.

Sticker Deadline Near

Rolling Meadows residents should remember to buy their city vehicle tax stickers at city hall after they obtain new Illinois license plates. Deadline for having the stickers affixed to the corner of the right front windshield is Feb. 15.

When applying for the $5 passenger car sticker, people must register the car serial number, the 1970 Illinois license plate number and the number of their 1969 Rolling Meadows vehicle sticker.

deputies, federal officials and state police. "I will have my full manpower out," Conroy said yesterday. Schaumburg police will primarily cover the airport area.

"NO ONE WILL be able to get to the airport without credentials," he added. There will be special areas roped off for official visitors and members of the press.

Conroy added that regular protection of the village itself will be maintained.

The President will then travel over an undisclosed route covered by full security precautions, according to Chief Sam Polotto of Hanover Park.

Polotto's men will also be working with the cooperation of state police, Cook County Sheriff's Police and with the assistance of men from the Streamwood Police Department.

"We have all the necessary precautions. They have been taken to make the area secure," Polotto said.

would predict how enthusiastic that support would be.

This was the second endorsement for Smith in the northwest suburbs, while Rentschler has none. Last week, Wheeling Township endorsed the senator, giving him the enviable advantage of having the area's largest GOP organization on his side.

If Palatine Township's endorsement carries the same message that it has in the past, Smith is a sure winner. Palatine has been the only township to consistently endorse winners, including last year's endorsement of U.S. Rep. Philip Crane and the 1962 endorsement of Crane's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

On both occasions Palatine was the only township to endorse the winner.

Four Seasons Hearing Delay

Oral arguments in the lawsuit against Four Seasons Nursing Centers of America filed by some Palatine homeowners will be heard in a month.

Yesterday, Circuit Court Judge Edward Healy requested that legal briefs be filed within 20 days and delayed the hearing until March 4, according to Richard Mugalian, who is representing the homeowners.

MEANWHILE, a temporary injunction granted by the court against the nursing home will remain in effect, Mugalian said.

The restraining order will stop any further improvements to the property or paper work concerning the nursing home.

In December, the lawsuit was filed claiming a nursing home cannot be built because property owners do not have a valid special use ordinance.

Palatine village officials in November granted special zoning and annexed the tract along South Quentin Road near Illinois Avenue.

ALTHOUGH THE suit was filed by two residents of Hunting Ridge Subdivision, it has the support of 95 per cent of the homeowners in the area, according to Mugalian. The subdivision is directly west of the proposed nursing home site.

Residents Rank Third As Hospital Patients

For the fifth consecutive year Rolling Meadows residents have made up the third largest residential group admitted to Northwest Community Hospital in a year.

In 1969 10.7 per cent of the hospital's 13,336 patients listed their residence as Rolling Meadows. The number of patients from Rolling Meadows has risen from 801 in 1969 to 1,427 in 1969.

Arlington Heights and Palatine provide the largest number of patients admitted with 26 per cent from Arlington Heights and 17 per cent from Palatine.

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

FLOWER POWER is her business. Christina Iwasyk of Palatine is learning the trade as an apprentice florist at Brautigam's Flowers in the Randhurst Shopping Center. Christina, 21, was born in Belgium and moved to the United States with her parents in 1960. Designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements is her kind of flower power.

She's Belgium But Is 'All-American'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Although Christina Iwasyk was born in Belgium, she's as American as apple pie. At a time when American youths are rebelling against the establishment, 21-year-old Christina speaks frankly and sincerely about the United States. "America: love it or leave it," she said.

And the slender, brown-haired girl means every word of it. She knows from experience.

Christina, an apprentice florist for Brautigam's Flowers at Randhurst, lives in Palatine with her parents. Although she was born in Genk, Belgium, a little town near the Luxembourg border, she's Polish.

"MY MOTHER and father were born in Poland, but they were relocated in Germany during World War II. The Germans sent many Polish youths to Germany to work on the farms. My parents had no choice. They were picked up off the streets one day by the German soldiers who loaded the people into trucks.

"And my parents haven't seen their families since the day the Germans came. We don't know if our relatives are still living or what happened to them during the war... or after the war, since the Communists occupied Poland," she explained.

Christina's parents left Germany after the war and settled in Belgium. "My father worked in the coal mines and conditions were very bad in Europe. So they tried for more than eight years to come to the United States. That's how long it took for papers and visas. I was 11-years-old when we left Belgium and I remember very well.

"Polish friends of ours in Palatine sponsored us and my family flew to the United States in 1960. I thought America would be like the western films we saw. Cowboys and Indians and stage coaches. Europeans believe too much what they see and read about America. Many of them believe the anti-American propaganda which is too bad," she said.

CHRISTINA, A 1969 graduate of Fremd High School in Palatine, is learning about "flower power" at Brautigam's. Christina, who was enrolled in the education for employment program at Fremd, worked part time for the florist while she was in school. Now she has an eight-hour job which includes designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements.

"My parents were really surprised the day I graduated. They didn't think I could make it because school was very difficult for me when we came to America. I didn't speak English at all, and although I should have started in the fifth grade, I was held back in the fourth grade.

"English is so difficult to learn because many words are spelled differently than they're pronounced," Christina said. She is still modest, a European characteristic, about her English which is almost flawless.

Although she has lived in Palatine for 10 years and she's a product of American schools, Christina doesn't always approve of her contemporaries. At least, not this generation's rebelliousness.

"American kids have it made. They've got everything they want and they don't appreciate it. I believe in America and if you don't love it, leave it. These kids should experience the living conditions in Europe and then maybe they wouldn't be so quick to criticize this country.

"KIDS JUST don't have any respect, especially for their parents. But it's the parents' fault because they spoil their children. In my house, my father's word is law and we respect him.

"I don't approve of student marches, demonstrations, pickets and sit-ins. If people here can't have their way, they pout and throw a tantrum. There are students who defend Communism when they don't know what it's all about or they criticize the war. They should see war and Communism," she explained.

"And besides, I'm for capital punishment. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. The laws in America are not enforced. Everyone who does wrong in this country pleads temporary insanity and then nothing's done. It's not right. There's no respect for anything," she said.

CHRISTINA SAID most youths today don't even respect themselves. "Students are sloppy in the way they dress. I don't like long hair on boys because they look dirty. Even many of the girls are sloppy. They wear old bluejeans, a sloppy shirt and often don't wear any shoes. And some of them look as they've never seen a bath tub in years.

"And they have all the comforts of indoor plumbing and hot water from the tap. It's nice to be able to afford these comforts like we can in America, but not everyone in the world is as fortunate."

To Christina Iwasyk, living in America is getting more than a fair chance in life.

This Joint Has Formed 'Bond' Among Teens

If you bought a bond from a teenager from the Joint, Palatine Township's youth organization, and you're wondering what became of it, stop wondering.

Members of the Joint, not to be confused with the Outpost of the Palatine Township Youth Committee, a separate organization, have bought themselves a "home away from home."

For $55,000 the teens purchased a four and one-half acre site on which there is a barn and a five room house on Smith Road off of Northwest Highway.

The house will be renovated into a coffeehouse, offices, a recreational area and a meeting place. The barn will eventually be turned into a dance hall.

PRESENTLY, JOINT members are progressing on both financing the venture, and the actual renovation, according to Mrs. Lorraine LaSusa, adult advisor.

Purchase of the first three and one-half acres, the site on which the barn is situated, was completed last year. The teens have less than $8,000 mortgage, at 5 per cent interest, on that parcel which sold for $40,000.

Purchase of the second parcel of property, one acre on which the house is located, was for $15,000. This parcel is contiguous to the first three and one-half acres, and teens gained possession of the land last December.

Renovation of the house has already begun. The remodeling cost will cost approximately $15,000, according to Mrs. LaSusa. Architectural plans have been drawn up by Jensen and Associates of Park Ridge and Harper Junior College students and faculty. The house should be ready for use within the next two months.

Within a year members hope water and sewer line, which will run to a nearby school site, will be connected to the barn. Annexation to the Village of Palatine is also in progress, LaSusa said.

"Besides, we need $50,000 to $70,000 to renovate the barn and we just don't have the money right now," she added.

Mrs. LaSusa said the only things standing in the way of progress is a lack of money and know how. "With help we can realize our first home for a teen club — the first to be owned, planned, designed, built and run by teens."

Mrs. LaSusa said what the Joint needs most is advice on how to do the necessary labor themselves.

"We are willing to work with anyone willing to help us in roofing, carpentry, plumbing, heating and ventilation, and sheet metal work for heating and lighting the house.

"Realization can only begin with help, and we know, that we need to know, how to do it ourselves, she said.

Dyke Leads Boys Down Path of Life

by TOM ROBB

It's a little embarrassing to have to stop at a roadside phone booth, call S. P. Dykstra, and say, "I'm lost, can you give me directions to your house?" But young people do.

Since 1949 "Dyke," as friends call him, has been a pathfinder for the lives of thousands of boys.

For as long as it takes a newborn boy to come of age, Dyke has been leading boys along the path to manhood. Dyke is in the wholesale lumber business, he's an outdoorsman, but most of all, Dyke is a Boy Scout leader.

AS A CHAIRMAN of the camping and activities committee of the Signal Hill District, he recently received the highest award scouting has to offer — the Silver Beaver award.

It might sound a little strange, Silver Beaver, but this award stands for something that is anything but strange: distinguished service to young boys over the years.

Dyke is not the only one in his family to carry the rank of top brass. His sons share the wealth. Peter, the oldest, is Life Scout; Douglas is an Eagle Scout and John is a Star Scout. Dorothy, his wife, is also an outdoor fan.

Dyke's involvement with scouting goes back farther than when his oldest became a cub scout. "When I was a boy, I was a First Class scout in Pella City, Iowa.

"It's hard to explain why I've stayed with scouting. You like to think you're helping somebody. Years ago when I was assistant scoutmaster for a troop we had one boy who was a real troublemaker. When discipline failed, we gave him authority and leadership — he turned out to be one of the best scouts I've ever known."

At the present time, Dyke's duties involve planning outdoor activities, camping, and long-term summer camp experience for the 2,061 boys in his district.

A COUPLE OF weeks ago Dyke did his share of camping in 14-below zero weather at the Klondike Derby, Rockcut State Park. "I never ask the boys to do more than I would do," Dyke, 56, said.

"It's the experience these boys get by camping out that counts. Once we sent the boys out in patrols to hike through the woods and report back anything unusual they saw."

One patrol got lost and after sometime they returned to camp with an explanation: "They had spotted a hummingbird taking a bath in a waterfall," he said.

The main point Dyke tries to get across to his boys on a camp out is the Boy Scout motto, "Be Prepared," even in the wilderness.

And even in Dyke's home at 1750 Brookview, Palatine, a bit of the wilderness has been brought inside.

ON A KNOTTY-PINE wall above the fireplace is a 120-pound stuffed Marlin. "Fishing and hunting are two of my hobbies," said Dyke, who has fished in Mexico, hunted Moose with bow and arrow in Newfoundland, and tracked black bear in northern Wisconsin.

"But my greatest hobby is scouting. There's just something about that boy we helped years ago, the idea of engineering his destructive energies to constructive," he said. "If scouting can help one boy, I've always believed it can help others."

Sanborn PTA To Hear Talk On Drug Abuse

Parents of students at Gray M. Sanborn and Joel Wood schools in Palatine will be able to learn about drug abuse and what they, as parents, can do about it at the Feb. 10 meeting of the PTA in Sanborn School.

Officer Robinson of the Arlington Heights police department will speak on drug abuse at 8 p.m. and discussion will follow. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Conant: 'Things Getting Brighter'

Next week is the birthday of Thomas Edison, whose first light bulb resembled a football in size, and members of the Conant High School Booster Club seem to have taken this into account.

Since last September they have been working hard to get night lights for the Conant High football field, and Wednesday night they came one giant step closer to financing their project.

A donation of $1,897.91 was presented to Jack Magnuson, president of the booster club, by Hank Ralston, a trustee of the Dorothy Sicher Memorial Scholarship Fund at the club's regular meeting.

Dorothy Sicher, the founder of the Hoffman Estates Theater Guild, who was serving as village clerk when she died last year, was active in many community organizations.

ALSO ATTENDING the presentation were fund trustees Robert Atcher, the mayor of Schaumburg, and James Cannon Jr. and Sid Sicher, husband of the late Dorothy Sicher.

Magnuson said the donation will help the club considerably in reaching the estimated $36,000 cost of the lights. Presently, the club has $12,000 in the bank and several commitments.

By this summer, when construction on the lights will begin, the club expects to have a minimum of $18,000 raised, Magnuson said.

If the club is still short of their financial goal by the first football game next season, the lights will be installed and ready to use, the Roselle State Bank has agreed to pay half of the outstanding difference.

Progress is well under way on the lights, Magnuson said. Engineering plans are now being drawn up, soil testing will begin shortly, and members expect to have contracts let within 30 days.

In order to help raise the rest of the money needed for the lights, the Conant Booster Club will sponsor a carnival in May during Memorial Day weekend. Other fund raising events are now being considered, he said.

3-Ring Circus For Cub Scouts

A three-ring circus highlighted a recent meeting of Palatine's Cub Scout Pack 239. Den 1 did magic tricks, Den 2 performed acrobatics and Den 3 presented a side show.

Jack Eiler and Bobby Blanke, members of the Delores Eiler School of Dancing, provided a special treat for the scouts, by turning cartwheels and walking up the stairs on their hands while Delores Eiler narrated.

The highest award in Cub Scouting, the Arrow of Light, was presented to Gunnar Collins.

Richard Neufeld, Patrick Butler and Richard Krueger were welcomed into Webelos.

WOLF AWARDS went to Billy Molway, Pat Butler, Charles Kern, Bill Poll, Tom Poll, Tim Bell and Blaise Knoll.

Bear awards went to Bill Garrels, Tom Jeschke, Steve Zenger, Ty Kouras, Pat Butler and Steve Witzzak.

Arrow awards went to Bill Garrels, Tom Jeschke, Steve Zenger, Ty Kouras, Steve Witzzak, Tom Rogers, Dan Sullivan, Billy Molway, Charles Kern, Bill Poll, Tom Poll, Tim Bell and Blaise Knoll.

Tony Mays received a one-year service pin.

John Augdahl and Don Price were named new Bobcats in Pack 239.

Valentine Party Of Club To be Planned

The "young at heart" of the Palatine Leisure Club will each bring a Valentine card to their next meeting at which plans for an upcoming party and an early Spring trip to Wisconsin will be discussed.

The meeting will be held at 11 a.m., Tuesday, Feb. 10 in the Community Room of the Savings and Loan Bank, 100 W. Palatine Road.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 24.

$1,100 Snowmobile Is Reported Stolen

Palatine police are investigating the theft of a snowmobile valued at $1,100 from the home of Henry Wardwell, 283 Fifth Road, Inverness.

Police said the theft took place sometime after 1 a.m. Tuesday.

THE VEHICLE was parked about 30 feet from the Fifth Road address, police said, when two men picked it up and placed it into a trailer and then drove off.

The snowmobile has a yellow body, yellow tinted windshield with black skids and frame. A two-inch towing ring is attached to the rear of the vehicle, police said.

THAT'S THE SILVER BEAVER scouting leader S. P. Dykstra is holding. Dykstra recently received the award, which is the highest honor the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council can bestow, for his continuous service to the scouting cause since 1949.

ONE SILVER BEAVER, small but significant, was awarded to John Dancer, 519 N. Emerson Street, Mount Prospect, for long and dedicated service to the Boy Scouts. Presently serving as an adviser for Explorer Scout Post 267, Dancer received the award last week from the members of the North Star District of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council.

This 'Dancer' Wears Beaver

by DAVE PALERMO

And he wears it around his neck.

Dancer, 41, who resides with his wife and 19-year-old son Ross at 519 N. Emerson Street in Mount Prospect, received the Silver Beaver Award last week for his dedication and long length of service to the promotion of Boy Scouts.

THE AWARD, which is a medal that can be hung around one's neck, is the highest award given to an adult by the North Star District of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council.

It didn't surprise many of those persons affiliated with the Boy Scouts that Dancer got the award. He's been highly successful in working with the youngsters since he moved here from Michigan in 1958.

In 1964, as scout master for Troop 53, he was so successful in organizing the previously inactive group of boys that they were selected to fly to Valley Forge, Penn., to participate in the Boy Scout Derby. This was the first time an area troop was selected to participate in such an event.

Two years later he became adviser for Explorer Post 287, which was also a stagnant organization. A year later they flew out to the Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, N.M., for a week of hiking and camping.

Since then his post has also made two canoe trips into Canada from upper Minnesota and just last week the approximately 15 boys went to Michigan for a weekend of skiing.

Dancer comes from a long line of Boy Scouts.

IN FACT, JUST about every other limb on the Dancer family tree has an Eagle Scout perched on it.

His son, 19-year-old Ross, became an Eagle Scout in 1966.

His father, Clarence Dancer, also received the Silver Beaver Award in 1958.

"It's a family tradition," said Dancer. "Scouting runs in the family."

"I had a whale of an experience when I was a kid. I worked under the best scout master in the world in 1943. I really enjoyed it."

Dancer, who is chairman of the North Star District and a member of the explorer committee, likes being an adviser on the post level.

A Boy Scout troop is open to youngsters between the ages of 11 and 17 while a post, which consists of Explorer Scouts, is open to boys at least 14-years-old or freshmen in high school.

Because members of a post are nearing adulthood, Dancer feels an adviser must give them a large amount of freedom.

"IN MY OPINION, scouting on the post level is one of the finest opportunities a boy has of developing leadership qualities," he explained. "The adults keep their noses out of things. The post has an adviser and that's all he is — an adviser."

"In this affluent society there are 15,000 different organizations a young man can join — like baseball for instance," he continued. "You're a shortstop. But what opportunities do you have to develop leadership qualities?"

"The boys elect a unit leader among themselves and they're going to relate to each other. The unit leader is a catalyst who'll let a guy run until he sees the guy's going over a cliff. Then he'll reach out and grab him."

"I feel a young man can learn from his own mistakes. If it will not cause him physical or financial harm, then let him do what he wants."

Dancer, who has been energetically involved in scouting since he was a Boy Scout in 1941, feels that scouting has changed very little over the years.

"I CAN'T HONESTLY see any changes in youths except they're smarter and sharper. They still beam with delight when they collectively pull off a blue ribbon at an event."

Working solely as a volunteer without pay, Dancer is content with the self-satisfaction that comes from working with youngsters.

"After we returned from one camping trip late at night one of the fathers came to the door and said 'John, I really don't know how to thank you,'" explained Dancer. "He said his son kept him up until three in the morning telling him about the trip."

"So, as I say, it's the satisfaction you get from the job," Dancer concluded. "So what if there's no pay."

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

Charles Hurst

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

The President's Coming

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

PASSES AUTHORIZING holders to witness the President's arrival from a special roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President."

GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October 1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

Meet Susan, Fiance Of Bill Teichert

They say a stranger is a friend you haven't met yet.

And Mount Prospect is one friend richer, although she's probably still a stranger to most of the town.

HER NAME IS Susan Dempke of Grafton, N.D. Mayor Bob Teichert made her an honorary citizen of Mount Prospect at the village board meeting Tuesday.

Miss Dempke is a student at Jamestown College, Jamestown, N.C.

And she also happens to be the fiance of Teichert's son, Bill, who is attending the same college.

Zimmermann Bonus Nixed

Penny wise and dollar foolish? It all depends who's passing the buck.

And this time Village Atty. John Zimmermann wasn't on the receiving end.

The Mount Prospect Village Board voted Tuesday to deny a motion from Trustee Daniel Ahern to award Zimmermann a $150 bonus for services which he performed as acting village manager last summer.

ZIMMERMANN, who was appointed acting village manager by the board following Robert Moore's resignation, was paid $2,700 for the 18-week job in addition to his salary of $12,300 a year as village attorney.

But village trustees didn't see eye-to-eye with Ahern and defeated his motion by a vote of 4 to 1. Trustees George Reiter, Robert Soderman, Donald Furst and Jack Kilroy opposed Ahern's recommendation, while Trustees Lloyd Norris passed since he was just recently appointed to the board.

TRUSTEES SAID Zimmermann had already received his check for the job and a bonus would have to be considered under next year's budget. An appropriation of funds in addition to his salary is out of the question this year, trustees said.

The village manager's salary is $18,700 a year.

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

ically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

Teichert... 'Just Good PR'

Mayor Bob Teichert of Mount Prospect is pessimistic about the local value of President Nixon's trip tomorrow to Schaumburg.

The President is expected to arrive in Schaumburg Friday by helicopter and tour an MSD plant in Hanover Park.

"I didn't get a ticket, so I won't be going," said Teichert.

"I think it's great he's doing this, but I don't think it's going to resolve anything locally. Thousands of people are going to be there and they'll be more concerned with seeing him, than in sitting down to work out any solutions to the pollution problem. It's just good PR."

"I WISH HE'D COME over to Mount Prospect and take a tour of Weller Creek.

Then maybe he'd say, 'By Gosh, you have a problem here. Let's do something about it.'"

"There's nothing unique about pollution. It's everywhere. What can come out of a brief visit to this area? It's hard enough to work these things out over a longer period of time with a small group of seven, I know."

"I don't think he'll be able to tell us anything about our pollution problem we don't know already. But I'm glad he's interested. We all are."

"I heard a commentator on the news the other night. Another word has been added to motherhood, flag and apple pie... pollution. It's everyone's problem," said Teichert.

Years of Expansion Bring Continual Problems

(Editor's note: In this, the first part of a series dealing with the annexation issue in currently unincorporated Prospect Heights, the history of the community as well as some of the current issues in Prospect Heights are examined.)

by BETSY BROOKER

It started as a small housing development 33 years ago.

And today, Prospect Heights, although it remains unincorporated, is an established suburban area.

Although populations and area statistics are hard to quote for Prospect Heights, based on school district figures the community is made up of approximately 12,000 to 17,000 persons living in an area of seven to 10 square miles.

In 1936, during the depression, a man named Carlton Smith built the "Country Club Acres" subdivision portion of what is now called "Old Town" Prospect Heights.

HOUSES IN COUNTRY CLUB Acres sold for about $6,000 with FHA mortgages available. In 1938, one of the same houses on Elmhurst Road sold for $20,400.

Smith retired after 20 years in Prospect Heights, and, in turning over his interests to others, he stated, "These young men are essentially in the same position as I was 20 years ago in relation to the future growth of Prospect Heights."

For Prospect Heights the 50s were a decade with headlines reading: "School Gets Five New Pupils Per Week," "Request For Rezoning For Motel and Restaurant," "PHIA Reports 28 Out of 85 Wells Contaminated," "Wheeling Commences Land Grab Into Prospect Heights For Industrial Expansion" and "Superhighways To Surround Prospect Heights."

From 1960 to 1965, the growth and some of the problems intensified: "Commonwealth Edison Builds Power Line," "Plans For Randhurst Announced," "Flooding Caused By Heavy Rains," "Development of Palatine Road Junior Expressway Sited," "Arlington Vista Annexed By Arlington Heights," "Prospect Gardens Annexed by Wheeling" and "First Apartment Building Under Construction."

In recent years, residents have read: "Country Garden Sanitary Sewer System Completed," "Prospect Heights Park District Purchases Lions Aquacenter," "School Bus Struck on Palatine Road," "Residents Police Neighborhood on Halloween," "Firemen Threaten To Resign If Land Rezoned For Five-Story Apartment Building" and "Prospect Heights Plan Commission Opposes Golf-Rand Expressway."

EACH STEP IN expansion has brought additional problems to the community. Some of these problems have been carried through the residents' initiative. One example is the construction of a $900,000 sanitary system to break ground next year, designed to end years of trouble with faulty septic tanks and contaminated well.

However, fire protection, police protection, construction of sidewalks, maintenance of McDonald Creek and recreation for youth are all situations the residents are "making do with" although they can't always improve them. The situation is due at least partly to the lack of tax revenue to finance these services and to the absence of a local governing body to oversee the services.

Residents have rallied many times to protest attempts to rezone for high-rises, in an effort to maintain the "one-story character" of the community.

Police protection provided by the Cook County sheriff's police may be adequate in quality, but the quantity falls far short. Currently, only one policeman patrols Prospect Heights along with other unincorporated areas during an eight-hour watch. Sheriff Joseph Woods has requested residents to petition the county to increase funds for the police in the county budget.

In addition, state legislation has opened the door to "contract policing" which permits townships to contract with the county or village for patrol service in unincorporated areas.

SIDEWALKS HAVE BEEN a subject of concern recently, after the death of a boy hit by a car on his way to MacArthur Junior High School. School Dist. 23 board member John Stull has suggested a district-wide referendum or a community-wide drive sponsored by local organizations to raise funds to construct sidewalks at all of the schools.

Flooding caused by improper maintenance of McDonald Creek has also been a problem to residents during heavy rains. The state has completed an engineering plan for improvement of the creek, but work has not begun. Meanwhile the creek is a problem and some residents in the Eisenhower School have resorted to cleaning the creek out themselves.

Vista Village Has 'Growth Lag'

by DAVE PALERMO

Like any growing village, Mount Prospect is experiencing its problems.

There is a "growth lag" between a steadily increasing population and the village's limited ability to provide for it.

The problems the village is going through are not unique. They include the deterioration of the downtown area, the lack of parking facilities, the lack of public transportation, and an increase in traffic congestion at just about every major intersection in the village.

The growing pains the village is going through could be soothed more easily when the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce becomes a more powerful and influential organization.

And what time will come. WITH A PRESENT membership of 100 area merchants, the organization is breaking away from the stereotype chamber of commerce whose sole concern is whether or not the sidewalks in the business district are swept clear of debris.

They are growing in numbers and they are becoming involved. An involvement which will effect every resident in the community — whether they be members of the organization or not.

Paul Dasso, the recently-elected president of the organization, is resourceful, energetic, intelligent, and carries the strength to continue the chamber's recent tendency to become more involved in public issues.

He said something the other day which I found interesting and important. He said, "A business is only as successful as the community it operates in."

IF HE CAN instill this idea in the minds of the members of the organization, and double its membership as he hopes to do by the end of the year, the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce could become a strong arm in helping village officials get things done.

Dasso said he would like to see better mass public transportation in the village and he thinks by doing so, it would ease the parking problems in the community.

With the chamber serving as an effective fact-finding recommending body for the village administration, problems like public transportation and parking can be solved much quicker.

The merchants have a stake in the success of the village and the residents can only benefit from their resourcefulness.

Dignitaries to Line Up

Among the dignitaries greeting President Richard Nixon when he arrives at Schaumburg Airport Friday morning will be Illinois State Representatives David J. Regner and Eugene Schlickman of the Third District. Rep. Eugenia Chapman said yesterday she had not yet been invited.

The Third District includes Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Hanover and Barrington townships, and parts of Northfield and Maine Townships.

"I plan to be at the airport about 8 a.m. Friday for the President's arrival," Regner said. Regner lives in Mount Prospect.

"I just received the message that the president was visiting the Third District, and I didn't know what president it was. I was really surprised the President of the United States was coming here."

"I'M VERY GLAD the President is visiting the Third District again," Regner remarked.

"It's quite an honor having Mr. Nixon visit the Third District for the second time in a little over a year," Regner added. While campaigning for the Presidency, Nixon addressed a Republican Party rally at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect in October 1968.

"I got to shake hands with Mrs. Nixon at the party rally at Prospect High," said Rep. Schlickman. "However, I didn't shake hands with the president-to-be."

Schlickman said that he understood that only persons issued passes would be able to have access to the immediate landing area at the airport.

SCHLICKMAN ADDED that most of the crowd Friday would probably be Republican party workers "doing their thing" rather than persons present due to sheer enthusiasm.

"President Nixon's reappearance is an acknowledgement of the importance of the population and growth in the area. I have to compliment who ever placed the visit to the tertiary treatment plant on the agenda. This is a new development and is something worth having the President see," Schlickman said.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman said she was not invited to welcome President Nixon but that her feeling are not hurt.

"Certainly the President is welcome whenever he wants to visit the area. I'm glad he's discovered pollution and that he's going to do something about it."

"I am sure the Metropolitan Sanitary District has something worth seeing," she said of the treatment plant.

Appeal Directors And Officers Set Session

The newly-elected officers and board of directors of the Mount Prospect Combined Appeal will meet today at 8 p.m. in the village hall.

Gordon Wood is appeal president. Other new officers are Frank B. Newton, vice president; Harry Bruhl, treasurer, and Mrs. Allan Julin, secretary.

Other elected board members for 1970-71 are Mrs. Miltzi Vavra, Albert Smedley, William Lebsack, Ben Baldwin, Mrs. Phyllis Hanna, Mrs. Marcella Kokes, Mrs. Lola Karcher, Rev. Randy Bosch and Henry Graef, all of Mount Prospect.

According to Wood, new committees will

Three to Enter Military School

Gary Abramson, a senior at Forest View High School, likes math. He has been thinking about becoming a teacher someday.

Mutual County Insurance Co. Elects Officers

The Mutual County Fire Insurance Co. held its annual meeting last week and elected new officers and a board of directors.

Those elected to serve on the board of directors for a three-year term are: Elmer L. Meyer, William Morler and Clarence L. Wille.

Newly elected officers are: Robert Ranz, president; Henry J. Schroeder, vice president; George L. Busse, secretary-treasurer, and George R. Busse, assistant secretary.

The company, located at 12 E. Busse Ave., Mount Prospect, was formed in 1875 and serves Cook (except Evanston and Chicago), Lake, McHenry, Kane, DuPage and Will Counties.

The company insures houses, household contents, farm buildings and farm personal property under standard or package policies. The amount of insurance in force is $38.6 million.

Gregory Padovani, a classmate of Abramson, would rather sail a boat across Lake Michigan.

Michael Ryder, a John Hersey High School senior, spends his time playing — or thinking about — football.

Not much resemblance there.

About the only thing the three of them have in common is that they live in Mount Prospect and they've been nominated to attend the armed forces academy of their choice next fall.

Also, they all made the decision to take on the disciplinary rigors of a military education on their own. There was no parental coaching from the sidelines.

ALL THREE OF their fathers served during World War II, but none of them attended a military school.

The three were nominated by Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th Dist., last week.

Their decision to attend a military academy was made for primarily the same reason — to obtain a good education.

"The idea of the education being so far superior made it well worth going to," said Abramson, who lives at 903 Tower Drive, Mount Prospect.

Abramson, who chose the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., said he wanted to attend an academy, whether it be the Air Force Academy or not.

Padovani, who resides at 807 South Waverly, has been sailing since he can remember, and made the choice of attending the U.S. Naval Academy in his freshman year of high school.

HIS FATHER, Gregory Padovani, is a dentist who likes to spend his spare time sailing on Lake Michigan. His son adopted the love he had for the sport.

"I wanted to be in the Navy since I was a little kid," said the younger Padovani. "I like the sea . . . the ships, and it seemed to be the best thing to do."

Ryder, who lives at 920 Tamarack Lane in Mount Prospect, was a varsity letterman in football at John Hersey High School for two years and was All-Area in his senior year.

WHEN ASKED why he chose the naval academy, he said quickly, "I want to play football."

"The education is good," he added. "Things there may not be as disciplined as it was years ago, but as far as academics are concerned, it's as rigorous as ever."

The three young men made applications to the academies on their own, writing their congressmen and state representatives for applications for nominations.

Crane made 18 nominations to the U.S. Naval Academy from the 13th Dist., and 10 nominations from the district were made for the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Each of the students took two civil service examinations and, along with that, Scholastic Aptitude Tests and College Board Examinations.

The admittance committee at each institution will evaluate the scores and there will be stringent physical and college entrance examinations before the students are finally admitted.

NOTIFICATION FOR acceptance to the schools will come sometime between the months of April and June and a summer-long orientation program will begin on June 25.

"It'll definitely be a lot stricter than in a state-supported school," said Abramson. "You won't have the free time."

"I've talked to a few cadets and they said if you do what you're told, you'll be all right," said Padovani. "If you give them static, you're in trouble."

"Discipline is good in a way," said Ryder. "It's the kinda life I like. It keeps you in line and won't let you slack off."

Smith Supported But What Extent?

Palatine Township Republicans will deliver the vote for Senator Ralph T. Smith March 17, despite the difficulty Smith had in winning the local organization's endorsement this week.

On both occasions Palatine was the only township to endorse the winner.

That was the prediction of GOP Committeeman Bernard Pedersen following the two and a half hour session before Smith was endorsed.

It took five separate ballots for Smith to get the two-thirds vote needed for the endorsement over William Rentschler of Lake Forest in the March primary.

"IT WAS ROUGH," Pedersen said. "They've got a lot of things on their minds, kind of a rebellion against taxes and everything else," he said.

"Smith's endorsement means the Palatine GOP organization will work for him in the primary, but neither Pedersen nor committeewoman Mrs. Glen-Ann Jicha would predict how enthusiastic that support would be.

This was the second endorsement for Smith in the northwest suburbs, while Rentschler has none. Last week, Wheeling Township endorsed the senator, giving him the enviable advantage of having the area's largest GOP organization on his side.

If Palatine Township's endorsement carries the same message that it has in the past, Smith is a sure winner. Palatine has been the only township to consistently endorse winners, including last year's endorsement of U.S. Rep. Philip Crane and the 1962 endorsement of Crane's predecessor, former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld.

Faculty Play Slated

A faculty play entitled "The World of Carl Sandburg" will be presented tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Prospect High School's Little Theater.

Fourteen teachers are included in the cast.

Tickets for the single performance will be available at the door for $1.

ONE SILVER BEAVER, small but significant, was awarded to John Dancer, 519 N. Emerson Street, Mount Prospect, for long and dedicated service to the Boy Scouts. Presently serving as an adviser for Explorer Scout Post 267, Dancer received the award last week from the members of the North Star District of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council.

This 'Dancer' Wears Beaver

And he wears it around his neck.

Dancer, 41, who resides with his wife and 19-year-old son Ross at 519 N. Emerson Street in Mount Prospect, received the Silver Beaver Award last week for his dedication and long length of service to the promotion of Boy Scouts.

THE AWARD, which is a medal that can be hung around one's neck, is the highest award given to an adult by the North Star District of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council.

It didn't surprise many of those persons affiliated with the Boy Scouts that Dancer got the award. He's been highly successful in working with the youngsters since he moved here from Michigan in 1958.

In 1964, as scout master for Troop 53, he was so successful in organizing the previously inactive group of boys that they were selected to fly to Valley Forge, Penn., to participate in the Boy Scout Derby. This was the first time an area troop was selected to participate in such an event.

Two years later he became adviser for Explorer Post 267, which was also a stagnant organization. A year later they flew out to the Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, N.M., for a week of hiking and camping.

Since then his post has also made two canoe trips into Canada from upper Minnesota and just last week the approximately 15 boys went to Michigan for a weekend of skiing.

Dancer comes from a long line of Boy Scouts.

IN FACT, JUST about every other limb on the Dancer family tree has an Eagle Scout perched on it.

His son, 19-year-old Ross, became an Eagle Scout in 1966.

His father, Clarence Dancer, also received the Silver Beaver Award in 1953.

"It's a family tradition," said Dancer. "Scouting runs in the family."

"I had a whale of an experience when I was a kid. I worked under the best scout master in the world in 1943. I really enjoyed it."

Dancer, who is chairman of the North Star District and a member of the explorer committee, likes being an adviser on the post level.

A Boy Scout troop is open to youngsters between the ages of 11 and 17 while a post, which consists of Explorer Scouts, is open to boys at least 14-years-old or freshmen in high school.

Because members of a post are nearing adulthood, Dancer feels an adviser must give them a large amount of freedom.

"IN MY OPINION, scouting on the post level is one of the finest opportunities a boy has of developing leadership qualities," he explained. "The adults keep their noses out of things. The post has an adviser and that's all he is — an adviser."

"In this affluent society there are 15,000 different organizations a young man can join — like baseball for instance," he continued. "You're a shortstop. But what opportunities do you have to develop leadership qualities?"

"The boys elect a unit leader among themselves and they're going to relate to each other. The unit leader is a catalyst who'll let a guy run until he sees the guy's going over a cliff. Then he'll reach out and grab him."

"I feel a young man can learn from his own mistakes. If it will not cause him physical or financial harm, then let him do what he wants."

Dancer, who has been energetically involved in scouting since he was a Boy Scout in 1941, feels that scouting has changed very little over the years.

"I CAN'T HONESTLY see any changes in youths except they're smarter and sharper. They still beam with delight when they collectively pull off a blue ribbon at an event."

Working solely as a volunteer without pay, Dancer is content with the self-satisfaction that comes from working with youngsters.

"After we returned from one camping trip late at night one of the fathers came to the door and said 'John, I really don't know how to thank you,'" explained Dancer. "He said his son kept him up until three in the morning telling him about the trip."

"So, as I say, it's the satisfaction you get from the job," Dancer concluded. "So what if there's no pay."

No Rush Trouble Is Seen

Charles Hurst

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST is president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D. C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

The President's Coming

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

PASSES AUTHORIZING holders to witness the President's arrival from a special roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President."

GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October 1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

Meet Susan, Fiance Of Bill Teichert

They say a stranger is a friend you haven't met yet.

And Mount Prospect is one friend richer, although she's probably still a stranger to most of the town.

HER NAME IS Susan Dempke of Grafton, N.D. Mayor Bob Teichert made her an honorary citizen of Mount Prospect at the village board meeting Tuesday.

Miss Dempke is a student at Jamestown College, Jamestown, N.C.

And she also happens to be the fiance of Teichert's son, Bill, who is attending the same college.

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

Teichert... 'Just Good PR'

Mayor Bob Teichert of Mount Prospect is pessimistic about the local value of President Nixon's trip tomorrow to Schaumburg.

The President is expected to arrive in Schaumburg Friday by helicopter and tour an MSD plant in Hanover Park.

"I didn't get a ticket, so I won't be going," said Teichert.

"I think it's great he's doing this, but I don't think it's going to resolve anything locally. Thousands of people are going to be there and they'll be more concerned with seeing him, than in sitting down to work out any solutions to the pollution problem. It's just good PR."

"I WISH HE'D COME over to Mount Prospect and take a tour of Weller Creek.

Then maybe he'd say, 'By Gosh, you have a problem here. Let's do something about it.'"

"There's nothing unique about pollution. It's everywhere. What can come out of a brief visit to this area? It's hard enough to work these things out over a longer period of time with a small group of seven, I know."

"I don't think he'll be able to tell us anything about our pollution problem we don't know already. But I'm glad he's interested. We all are."

"I heard a commentator on the news the other night. Another word has been added to motherhood, flag and apple pie... pollution. It's everyone's problem," said Teichert.

Zimmermann Bonus Nixed

Penny wise and dollar foolish? It all depends who's passing the buck.

And this time Village Atty. John Zimmermann wasn't on the receiving end.

The Mount Prospect Village Board voted Tuesday to deny a motion from Trustee Daniel Ahern to award Zimmermann a $450 bonus for services which he performed as acting village manager last summer.

ZIMMERMANN, who was appointed acting village manager by the board following Robert Moore's resignation, was paid $2,700 for the 18-week job in addition to his salary of $12,300 a year as village attorney.

But village trustees didn't see eye-to-eye with Ahern and defeated his motion by a vote of 4 to 1. Trustees George Reiter, Robert Soderman, Donald Furst and Jack Kilroy opposed Ahern's recommendation, while Trustee Lloyd Norris passed since he was just recently appointed to the board.

TRUSTEES SAID Zimmermann had already received his check for the job and a bonus would have to be considered under next year's budget. An appropriation of funds in addition to his salary is out of the question this year, trustees said.

The village manager's salary is $18,700 a year.

Years of Expansion Bring Continual Problems

(Editor's note: In this, the first part of a series dealing with the annexation issue in currently unincorporated Prospect Heights, the history of the community as well as some of the current issues in Prospect Heights are examined.)

by BETSY BROOKER

It started as a small housing development 33 years ago.

And today, Prospect Heights, although it remains unincorporated, is an established suburban area.

Although populations and area statistics are hard to quote for Prospect Heights, based on school district figures the community is made up of approximately 12,000 to 17,000 persons living in an area of seven to 10 square miles.

In 1936, during the depression, a man named Carlton Smith built the "Country Club Acres" subdivision portion of what is now called "Old Town" Prospect Heights.

HOUSES IN COUNTRY CLUB Acres sold for about $6,000 with FHA mortgages available. In 1938, one of the same houses on Elmhurst Road sold for $20,400.

Smith retired after 20 years in Prospect Heights, and, in turning over his interests to others, he stated, "These young men are essentially in the same position as I was 20 years ago in relation to the future growth of Prospect Heights."

For Prospect Heights the 50s were a decade with headlines reading: "School Gets Five New Pupils Per Week," "Request For Rezoning For Motel and Restaurant," "PHIA Reports 28 Out of 85 Wells Contaminated," "Wheeling Commences Land Grab Into Prospect Heights For Industrial Expansion" and "Superhighways To Surround Prospect Heights."

From 1960 to 1965, the growth and some of the problems intensified: "Commonwealth Edison Builds Power Line," "Plans For Randhurst Announced," "Flooding Caused By Heavy Rains," "Development of Palatine Road Junior Expressway Slated," "Arlington Vista Annexed By Arlington Heights," "Prospect Gardens Annexed by Wheeling" and "First Apartment Building Under Construction."

In recent years, residents have read: "Country Garden Sanitary Sewer System Completed," "Prospect Heights Park District Purchases Lions Aquacenter," "School Bus Struck on Palatine Road," "Residents Police Neighborhood on Halloween," "Firemen Threaten To Resign If Land Rezoned For Five-Story Apartment Building" and "Prospect Heights Plan Commission Opposes Golf-Rand Expressway."

EACH STEP IN expansion has brought additional problems to the community. Some of these problems have been corrected through the residents' initiative. One example is the construction of a $900,000 sanitary system to break ground next year, designed to end years of trouble with faulty septic tanks and contaminated well.

However, fire protection, police protection, construction of sidewalks, maintenance of McDonald Creek and recreation for youth are all situations the residents are "making do with" although they can't always improve them. The situation is due at least partly to the lack of tax revenue to finance these services and to the absence of a local governing body to oversee the services.

Residents have rallied many times to protest attempts to rezone for high-rises, in an effort to maintain the "one-story character" of the community.

Police protection provided by the Cook County sheriff's police may be adequate in quality, but the quantity falls far short. Currently, only one policeman patrols Prospect Heights along with other unincorporated areas during an eight-hour watch. Sheriff Joseph Woods has requested residents to petition the county to increase funds for the police in the county budget.

In addition, state legislation has opened the door to "contract policing" which permits townships to contract with the county or village for patrol service in unincorporated areas.

SIDEWALKS HAVE BEEN a subject of concern recently, after the death of a boy hit by a car on his way to MacArthur Junior High School. School Dist. 23 board member John Stull has suggested a district-wide referendum or a community-wide drive sponsored by local organizations to raise funds to construct sidewalks at all of the schools.

Flooding caused by improper maintenance of McDonald Creek has also been a problem to residents during heavy rains. The state has completed an engineering plan for improvement of the creek, but work has not begun. Meanwhile the creek is a problem and some residents in the Eisenhower School have resorted to cleaning the creek out themselves.

U.S.: 'Love It or Leave It'

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Although Christina Iwasyk was born in Belgium, she's as American as apple pie. At a time when American youths are rebelling against the establishment, 21-year-old Christina speaks frankly and sincerely about the United States. "America: love it or leave it," she said.

And the slender, brown-haired girl means every word of it. She knows from experience.

Christina, an apprentice florist for Brautigam's Flowers at Randhurst, lives in Palatine with her parents. Although she was born in Genk, Belgium, a little town near the Luxembourg border, she's Polish.

"MY MOTHER and father were born in Poland, but they were relocated in Germany during World War II. The Germans sent many Polish youths to Germany to work on the farms. My parents had no choice. They were picked up off the streets one day by the German soldiers who loaded the people into trucks.

"And my parents haven't seen their families since the day the Germans came. We don't know if our relatives are still living or what happened to them during the war. . . or after the war, since the Communists occupied Poland," she explained.

Christina's parents left Germany after the war and settled in Belgium. "My father worked in the coal mines and conditions were very bad in Europe. So they tried for more than eight years to come to the United States. That's how long it took for papers and visas. I was 11-years-old when we left Belgium and I remember very well.

"Polish friends of ours in Palatine sponsored us and my family flew to the United States in 1960. I thought America would be like the western films we saw. Cowboys and Indians and stage coaches. Europeans believe too much what they see and read about America. Many of them believe the anti-American propaganda which is too bad," she said.

CHRISTINA, A 1969 graduate of Fremd High School in Palatine, is learning about "flower power" at Brautigam's. Christina, who was enrolled in the education for employment program at Fremd, worked part time for the florist while she was in school. Now she has an eight-hour job which includes designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements.

"My parents were really surprised the day I graduated. They didn't think I could make it because school was very difficult for me when we came to America. I didn't speak English at all, and although I should have started in the fifth grade, I was held back in the fourth grade.

"English is so difficult to learn because many words are spelled differently than they're pronounced," Christina said. She is still modest, a European characteristic, about her English which is almost flawless.

Although she has lived in Palatine for 10 years and she's a product of American schools, Christina doesn't always approve of her contemporaries. At least, not this generation's rebelliousness.

"American kids have it made. They've got everything they want and they don't appreciate it. I believe in America and if you don't love it, leave it. These kids should experience the living conditions in Europe and then maybe they wouldn't be so quick to criticize this country.

"KIDS JUST don't have any respect, especially for their parents. But it's the parents' fault because they spoil their children. In my house, my father's word is law and we respect him.

"I don't approve of student marches, demonstrations, pickets and sit-ins. If people here can't have their way, they pout and throw a tantrum. There are students who defend Communism when they don't know what it's all about or they criticize the war. They should see war and Communism," she explained.

"And besides, I'm for capital punishment. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. The laws in America are not enforced. Everyone who does wrong in this country pleads temporary insanity and then nothing's done. It's not right. There's no respect for anything," she said.

CHRISTINA SAID most youths today don't even respect themselves. "Students are sloppy in the way they dress. I don't like long hair on boys because they look dirty. Even many of the girls are sloppy. They wear old bluejeans, a sloppy shirt and often don't wear any shoes. And some of them look as they've never seen a bath tub in years.

"And they have all the comforts of indoor plumbing and hot water from the tap. It's nice to be able to afford these comforts like we can in America, but not everyone in the world is as fortunate."

To Christina Iwasyk, living in America is getting more than a fair chance in life.

FLOWER POWER is her business. Christina Iwasyk of Palatine is learning the trade as an apprentice florist at Brautigam's Flowers in the Randhurst Shopping Center. Christina, 21, was born in Belgium and moved to the United States with her parents in 1960. Designing corsages, bouquets and floral arrangements is her kind of flower power.

Village Has 'Growth Lag'

by DAVE PALERMO

Like any growing village, Mount Prospect is experiencing its problems.

There is a "growth lag" between a steadily increasing population and the village's limited ability to provide for it.

The problems the village is going through are not unique. They include the deterioration of the downtown area, the lack of parking facilities, the lack of public transportation, and an increase in traffic congestion at just about every major intersection in the village.

The growing pains the village is going through could be soothed more easily when the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce becomes a more powerful and influential organization.

And that time will come.

WITH A PRESENT membership of 100 area merchants, the organization is breaking away from the stereotype chamber of commerce whose sole concern is whether or not the sidewalks in the business district are swept clear of debris.

They are growing in numbers and they are becoming involved. An involvement which will effect every resident in the community — whether they be members of the organization or not.

Paul Dasso, the recently-elected president of the organization, is resourceful, energetic, intelligent, and carries the strength to continue the chamber's recent tendency to become more involved in public issues.

He said something the other day which I found interesting and important. He said, "A business is only as successful as the community it operates in."

IF HE CAN instill this idea in the minds of the members of the organization, and double its membership as he hopes to do by the end of the year, the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce could become a strong arm in helping village officials get things done.

Dasso said he would like to see better mass public transportation in the village and he thinks by doing so, it would ease the parking problems in the community.

With the chamber serving as an effective fact-finding recommending body for the village administration, problems like public transportation and parking can be solved much quicker.

The merchants have a stake in the success of the village and the residents can only benefit from their resourcefulness.

A Look at People from the Passing Suburban Scene

by JOAN KLUSMANN

"Little children ask questions from morning to night. This natural curiosity shouldn't be lost as a child progresses through school."

Mrs. Marilyn Marier of Arlington Heights once told a local school administrator she would not object to a change in the length of math periods or the introduction of new teaching methods. But, she added, "If my child comes home and says he doesn't like school, then you will hear from me."

The official sought Mrs. Marier's opinion on the hopes and goals of parents in the area because she has represented the community often in school functions.

SHORTLY AFTER moving to Arlington Heights four years ago she began attending School Dist. 25 board meetings. "At that time the Herald reporter and I were the only other persons at the board meetings," she says. She is delighted that today several homeowners groups and PTAs are represented at the board sessions.

A bright woman, she can cut through mental red tape rapidly to recognize the real problems underneath. She laughs easily and has a sparkling personality which appeals to many.

She believes creativity must be the motivator in instilling a desire to learn in suburban kids. Maintaining that the suburban child today is not spurred onward by the hope of future economic gain, she says a child should always feel he has an "open end," that the knowledge he just acquired can be used for other projects and goals.

SHE THINKS college students, now in the midst of advanced studies, should be consulted to see what activities in the lower grades could be added to help a student later in life.

She said the feelings of alienation and "not being able to control their surroundings" is not reserved to urban residents, looking hopelessly out ghetto windows. Their suburban counterparts share the situation to some extent. "A resident can look out his window at a busy corner and see the need for a stop sign," she explains, "but he may not know who to call or what to do."

Recommending action on issues should be taken before a crisis develops or hysteria sets in, she says residents should pitch in and help with small needs. "We all have a civic debt to discharge. Local issues are important because you can get to know them well; you can also apply what you learn to larger and broader problems."

She practices what she preaches. School education chairman for the Arlington Heights Council of PTAs, she served on the Caucus nominating committee to select school board candidates. Active with the League of Women Voters, she was on the school and local government committees and is now vice president of the organization.

AS CHAIRMAN OF the Americans Abroad committee of the American Field Service, she recently interviewed 15 students from the area who had a desire to live with families in other countries, and as a Great Books leader, she has worked with children as well as adults.

STACKS AND STACKS OF cars, lined up like bowling balls, fill the intersection of Euclid and Northwest Highway. The cars are sometimes headed for the car wash, the post office, or maybe just trying to get through the intersection.

Post Office: Nice... Once You Get There

by JAMES VESELY

Once you get there, it's not a bad place at all.

But on a Saturday morning, or at the rush hour, or when the trains are running, or when the car wash is full, the best way to get to the new Arlington Heights Post Office is by parachute.

ALTHOUGH IT IS gleaming and bright and it provides more working space and better equipment than the antiquated post office building on Wing Street, the new post office on Euclid has developed into a cause and recipient of some of the worst traffic jams in Arlington Heights.

Getting to the new post office is difficult. From Euclid, a driver has two choices. He may enter the post office lot at the north side of the building, or turn onto Kennicott at the west of the building and then drive into the post office lot. There is one mail box for deposit from a car. It is inside the west lot and drivers must get off Euclid, swing around the lot and then try to get back on Euclid.

The post office has a courtesy box at the north end of the building's front wall, but drivers must park their cars in the lot. There is no mail deposit box on Euclid itself for drivers because Arlington Heights Police feel that such a box would delay traffic on Euclid excessively.

MRS. VIRGINIA DODGE, postmaster at the new building, agrees that the traffic is sometimes heavy in the area, but that the benefits of the new post office for the distribution of mail too beneficial to dismiss lightly.

"Everything is new here," she said. "We have a lot of new equipment and new facilities. With that old post office over on Wing, I don't know how we would have gotten through the last Christmas. There is no question that this is a better facility."

Mrs. Dodge said the location of the new building doesn't mean too much to the postal workers who spend their days inside the building and she admitted that she often leaves the building along Kennicott rather than going out onto Euclid and Northwest Highway.

On the opposite side of the street, the manager of the Northwest Car Wash is not at all pleased with the state of traffic at the intersection.

Manager Glenn Duncum said that police will not allow his customers to line up on Euclid street while waiting to get into the car wash. Duncum feels this has an adverse affect on his business and he has compiled a petition of some 500 names which shows that his customers agree with him.

"The biggest problem with the corner," Duncum said, "is the synchronization of the lights at Northwest Highway and Euclid."

THE MANAGER SAID he has seen traffic lined up for two blocks at the intersection because of the light synchronization.

Asked what he will do with his petition of 500 names, Duncum said he may turn it over to his lawyer.

The police department has its own side of the matter.

Chief L. W. Calderwood said yesterday that "the carwash has to keep the cars on their own property." There is an ordinance prohibiting parking or standing along that section of Euclid and the police department is compelled to enforce the ordinance.

According to one member of the force, the police do not ticket car wash customers on Euclid until they either receive a complaint or if officers see that the traffic situation is getting out of hand. The police then issue warnings by a public address system and then ticket individual drivers who do not comply.

"The car wash wants us to direct their traffic for them," one policeman said. "They must keep those cars off a public thoroughfare."

The situation concerning the lights at Northwest Highway and Euclid is actually the problem of the State of Illinois. The state highway department maintains and controls that intersection.

AN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police officer said that there is an electrical malfunction of the lights at that intersection, but that the malfunction cannot be fixed until spring. In the meantime, complaints about the intersection multiply.

New post criticism has extended from the old office location to the delivery of mail that is coming out of the new building.

A woman resident of Greenbrier said yesterday that her neighborhood is getting mail delivered only every other day. She said a spokesman for the post office said the local office is short of carriers and thus could not promise mail delivery the next day.

"I'm tired of that," the woman said. "Greenbrier isn't exactly the north '40," you know."

Caucus Backs Powell, Beck

BULLETIN

The Caucus Committee named R. J. Schlott, 415 S. Evergreen, as its third candidate for the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 School Board last night.

H. Robert Powell and William Beck were nominated last night by the Caucus Committee for School Dist. 25 to run in the school board election in April.

Three board seats are at stake in this spring's election, but by late last night the committee had not reached a decision and still was voting on the nominee for the third post.

The bylaws of the Caucus Committee provide that each candidate receive a majority vote before receiving caucus support.

Powell of 110 S. Kennicott Ave., is the only incumbent candidate running for reelection this year. A graduate of the University of Illinois, he holds a doctorate in economics. He served as president of Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 before joining the Dist. 25 board.

BECK, OF 305 S. Windsor Drive, is a management engineer with Honeywell, Inc., and a member of the Stonegate Association.

The 10 men and one woman who were in last night's race spoke briefly to the 78 delegates who represent Arlington Heights PTAs and other local organizations. Delegates also were guided by detailed reports prepared by a nine-member subcommittee that interviewed each nominee individually during the last two weeks.

The reports, marking those nominated in 11 categories, included ratings on understanding the function of the school board, comprehension of problems confronting the board, and the candidate's ideas concerning the goals of education.

OTHER NOMINEES for the school board posts were Charles Anderson, James Hoffnagle, J. R. Mascarella, Jay Master, Ross Scherer, Joseph Schiffhauer, R. J. Schlott, Donald Underwood and Mrs. George McKenzie.

The nominating committee is made up of two delegates from approximately 50 organizations within the school district. Participating groups must be nonpolitical, nonreligious and have been operating with elected officers for the past two years.

Recommendations for candidates may be submitted only by committee delegates. Petitions were circulated last night for those already nominated. The caucus has successfully backed candidates in the school district's election for the past 16 years.

Sidewalks: Who's Going to get Stoned?

A volcano of protest will probably erupt tonight, covering members of the Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) with burning comments from irate property owners.

To say that BOLI members aren't looking forward to tonight's meeting is an understatement. They are looking forward to it with about as much joy as a prisoner looks forward to his execution.

THE INFORMAL HEARING will begin at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road. The topic of sidewalk installation in certain areas of the east side of the village is expected to draw a capacity crowd.

Russell Colvin, BOLI president, said he has received many calls from residents involved in the project. Other board members said they heard that petitions of protest will be presented at the meeting.

Comments from BOLI members ranged from "You'd better get here early to find a parking place" to "Watch out for residents carrying stones into the room."

About 200 property owners involved in the project have already been notified of the informal hearing. BOLI members said Tuesday night during a special meeting that there was a lot of "misinformation" circulating about the proposed project.

The hearing will include informing owners about the improvement and special assessment procedures. Since the project is in its formative stages, only the locations of the improvements are known.

AT A SECOND formal hearing, plans and an estimate of costs will be reviewed. The time lapse between the informal and formal hearings can stretch out for months.

Recommendations of the owners are heard during the hearings. After the formal hearing, BOLI votes on whether to recommend the village board's approval of the ordinance allowing a special assessment to proceed.

BOLI members estimate the cost of sidewalks to be about $6 per lineal foot for property owners involved in the proposed sidewalk project. This cost is based on the sidewalks being put in by special assessment.

If property owners agree to put in the sidewalks voluntarily by a private contract, the price could drop below $4 per lineal foot. BOLI members said these figures were merely averages and did not take into account additional expenses for correcting grade problems that some individual property owners might have.

Two focal points in the protest movement are two of the "Sacred S" subdivisions, Stonegate and Scarsdale. The two subdivisions and the westside area of Sherwood were built without sidewalks, thus enhancing the "country atmosphere." Residents of the subdivisions maintain that sidewalks would spoil the aesthetics of their neighborhoods.

TENTATIVE PROPOSALS include installing sidewalks on Rockwell Street, Dryden Place and Park Street in Scarsdale near the area of Dryden School.

Also, BOLI member Harold Klingner had advocated the installation of sidewalks along Windsor Drive in Stonegate. Since the project is in formative stages, Windsor could potentially be included in the final proposal.

Although protest petitions have reportedly been circulated in Scarsdale, Mrs. Leonard Decker said she was in favor of sidewalks along Rockwell. Her husband is the president of the homeowners group in Scarsdale.

Mrs. Decker stated she would rather drive her children to school than let them walk along the sidewalkless streets in the area. When it snows, icy piles border the streets and children can slip into the street while trying to walk to school.

SIDNEY ROSENFELD, past president of the Stonegate homeowners group and present member of the Arlington Heights Cultural Commission, plans to attend the meeting to protest if the board intends to put sidewalks along Windsor Drive in his subdivision.

Dist. 25 plans to send a representative to the BOLI meeting. In relation to the proposal for sidewalks that are on main thoroughfares going to schools, "We're backing BOLI 100 per cent," said James Monroe, director of buildings and grounds for Dist. 25.

Even for residents of other areas, the sidewalk issue hits home. Property owners have to pay for the sidewalks and if you have a 75 foot lot, that means about $450 to go across your front yard if the project is put in by special assessment. If you happen to live on a corner lot where sidewalks are proposed for both sides, the expense is multiplied.

PROFILE

Her work with students has convinced her that children need someone to really listen to what they are saying. "Some parents can't do this, teachers don't have time for everyone's problems, and by the time the child is grown he is bottled up—he can't communicate anymore."

Her plans for the future include a recommendation to the PTA to bring together classroom teachers and representatives from teachers colleges. She explains that students are not learning about team teaching in the colleges and may be adrift for awhile when they join a school district which uses the team approach.

She also urges all local PTA school education chairmen to attend school board meetings. "This can and should serve as an opportunity for an adult to catch up on changing concepts of education and is one of the most neglected jobs in the PTA."

ATTENDANCE AT local board meetings would also help the women who say they want to know more about decisions in the community before they are made, she said. While happy with the idea of women serving on boards themselves, she thinks any sort of quota system would be wrong. "Besides, it doesn't make any difference to me if sound opinions come out of the mouth of a man or a woman."

She thinks community development should be planned. Planned around the individual people in it with their individual needs and problems. After taking part in a session in sensitivity training with a church group, she said, "It made me see how estranged from one another we have become and how exciting it is to be truly aware of someone else and to trust them implicitly."

If the property owners of a 75-foot lot agree to voluntary installation, the price could drop below $300.

The sidewalk projects already completed included the northwest and southwest quadrants of the village. These projects and the proposed east side project are part of the implementation of the village's sidewalk policy.

THE POLICY WAS established by a resolution passed by the village board in March, 1966.

The resolution states that sidewalks will be required within one-half mile of any park or school, on certain major and through streets, abutting all commercial and multiple-zoned property and in any gap between existing sidewalks.

The policy includes the following statement which protects the exclusively sidewalkless Scarsdale, Sherwood and Stonegate. "Subdivisions whose 'country character' is enhanced by a lack of sidewalks are specifically exempted."

By Murray Dubin

Let's Cool Hot Embers

The smoldering embers of discontent were quite evident Tuesday night as village firemen presented their proposal for a salary increase to the finance committee of the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

Firemen want a top salary of $12,800 after three years of experience. They are currently making $10,400 after three years and Village Mr. L. A. Hanson's 1970-71 budget provides an increment to $11,200. The blue-coated firemen feel this is not enough.

Hanson pointed out the only areas with higher top salaries are Chicago, Des Plaines and Evanston and that all other neighboring communities had lower wages for top firemen. Phil Cappitelli, president of the firemen's association, argued that some of Hanson's figures were out of date.

EXPLAINING WHY they want a higher salary than Chicago firemen, Cappitelli said, "These men seated here are more versatile than Chicago firemen."

"A suburban fire department can't be compared to a large city department."

Cappitelli also asked for a $200 clothing allowance for each man and added that some towns offer firemen health insurance and other services free. Responding to the requested clothing allowance, Hanson adamantly said, "This absolutely won't work. We got away from it 10 years ago."

When asked what Arlington firefighters would do if they didn't get a raise, Cappitelli said, "We don't know at this time but we'll have to talk about it."

THE WORD STRIKE hasn't been mentioned yet. Neither has "blue flu." But the 20 firemen at Tuesday's meeting seemed solidly behind the $12,800 figure and Rudy Hanson isn't known to change his mind too often.

Finance Committee chairman Frank Palmatier told the firemen, "We are going to definitely review this area of the budget further down the line."

I agree with Hanson when he says $12,800 isn't a realistic figure when compared to other suburban communities and to the realities of the coming budget. But the firemen's assertion that $11,200 isn't enough can't be taken lightly by the finance committee.

Let's hope both sides bend a little and a compromise salary is agreed on. Tempers were cool and hidden Tuesday night but things may get hotter if a settlement isn't reached. That kind of heat we don't need.

Push Con-Con Involvement

Junior high school students in Arlington Heights hope to get involved in Con-Con proceedings.

School Dist. 25 pupils have asked delegate John Woods for a place on the afternoon agenda of the Feb. 11 Con-Con hearing at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

If permission is granted, Cindy Hayes of Miner Junior High School will speak briefly, giving views of all eighth-grade students as they emerged from social studies discussions.

ACCOMPANYING Cindy to the hearing will be Paul Craig, Miner Junior High; Liz Pokora and Darrel Cox, Rand Junior High; Bruce Palmatier, Julie Nichols and Melanie Hillman, South Junior High and Babette Larson and John Geertz, Thomas Junior High.

Students in each school chose their own student representatives to visit the Con-Con meeting. The representatives in turn elected Cindy to do the talking. All views given at the hearing are those of the students.

Faculty Play Slated

A faculty play entitled "The World of Carl Sandburg" will be presented tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Prospect High School's Little Theater.

Fourteen teachers are included in the cast.

Tickets for the single performance will be available at the door for $1.

PRESIDENT NIXON is scheduled to make the first visit of a chief executive to the Northwest suburbs, Schaumburg and Hanover Park specifically, tomorrow. His brief visit will be part of the antipollution conference being held in Chicago.

Richard Who Will Be Here?

President Richard Nixon will be in the Northwest suburbs tomorrow but no one in Arlington Heights seems to know anything about it.

The President is expected to spend about an hour in Hanover Park after landing at the Schaumburg Airport. When told of his arrival, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said he knew nothing about it and "would be minding the store Friday morning."

Village Pres. Jack Walsh, who spent most of yesterday out of town, told the Herald that he wasn't aware of the President's stopover in the suburbs. He added that no one invited him to the airport nor told him of the President's arrival.

Walsh pointed out that if invited he would surely go.

The President's Coming

President Richard Nixon will visit the Northwest suburbs tomorrow morning, and Republican party officials are hoping to attract a large crowd to greet him.

The President is coming to suburban Republicanland to visit a Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), plant in Hanover Park. Nixon is attending a conference on environmental pollution in Chicago.

Legislators, mayors, Republican party officials, and Nixon fans are planning to greet the President Friday at Schaumburg Airport when he and his party arrive by helicopter about 8:30 a.m. From the airport Nixon will go to Hanover Park to tour the MSD plant.

THE ENTRANCE to the Schaumburg Airport is on Irving Park Road, west of Roselle Road, in Schaumburg. The airport is on the northern edge of DuPage County.

Republican party leaders have been sounding the rally cry to party members every township in the Third District are expected to witness Nixon's suburban visit, including state representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman; Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher; GOP candidate for county clerk; Mayor Frederick

Good 'See-President' Turnout Predicted

About "45 to 50 Wheeling Township residents" will be on hand tomorrow morning to see President Nixon land at Schaumburg airport, according to Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen.

COWEN SAID YESTERDAY that he had not yet received passes for entrance into the "restricted" area inside the airport, but that local members of the organization will probably have no trouble going out to meet the President.

Downey of Hoffman Estates; Mrs. Virginia Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk; Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker; and several GOP precinct captains and their wives.

No Problem Seen When Rush Talks

A college president and Black Panther party leader will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria in Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights.

Dr. Charles Hurst and Bobby Rush will appear in the third part of a series known as Sidewalk Academy sponsored by Educational Laboratories.

A sell-out crowd is predicted by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, president of the sponsoring organization.

HURST IS president of Malcolm X. Shabazz Community College, formerly Crane Junior College on Chicago's West Side. He formerly was at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

He will speak on white racism: institutional, cultural and personal.

Rush is the deputy minister of defense for the Illinois Black Panther Party and considered to be its leader since the death of Fred Hampton.

He will speak on: The politics of change and the work of the Black Panthers in Illinois.

Brooks said he did not anticipate any difficulty with Rush's appearance.

Rush became involved in the controversial death of Hampton in a shoot out last December in Chicago with state's attorney's police.

HE WAS SOUGHT by police, eventually surrendering to the Afro-American Patrolman's Association, a group of black policemen within the Chicago Police Department.

Brooks said of the speakers, "At no time do I know of where we will have two such dynamic speakers so knowledgeable and committed to change."

Brooks said he hopes by bringing Black speakers to the suburbs residents will obtain a "better understanding of the society in which we live."

Donations will be used to pay the motel bills of several Mexican-American families who were evicted from substandard homes in Elk Grove Township.

Donations are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

Tire Store Issue Snags Plan Board

The location of a tire, battery and accessories store (TBA) in the planned 17-acre K-Mart Shopping Center at the northeast corner of Algonquin and Golf roads was one of several points that the Arlington Heights Plan Commission agreed needed further study and review.

Last night the commission held its first hearing on the planned development and various members questioned the presence of the TBA.

Jim McGrath asked, "What about the noise generated by the TBA facility for the residents living on Kennicott Avenue?"

"Most TBAs are located in a shopping center's parking lot."

MRS. ALICE HARMS, a plan commissioner, agreed saying, "I can't see why the TBA has to fall so close to the residential."

McGrath added, "With those pneumatic drills going, I can't imagine a worse noise for the people near by."

Attorney Howard Borde, a representative from Arthur Rubloff and Co., the developers, pointed out that the high screening would block the TBA from residents on Kennicott Avenue and muffle the noise.

The board also questioned the development's landscape.

Russell Colvin said, after looking at the developers plans, "I see a squiggle at one end of the map and a squiggle at the other and an asphalt parking lot in between."

"WHAT ARE YOUR landscaping plans for the parking lot?"

Borde and the developer's representatives agreed to do what the village wanted concerning landscaping.

Robert Melroy, president of the Surrey Ridge West Civic Association, told the board, "The one problem that we are really concerned with is traffic."

"We do not want access to the center from Kennicott Avenue. It will cause more traffic coming through the residential area. We want the board to seriously consider elimination of the entrance on Kennicott."

MELROY ADDED THAT if an entrance on Kennicott is agreed on his association would like to see a traffic light at Kennicott and Algonquin.

Plan Commissioner O. V. Anderson suggested that the entire matter be referred to a committee. William Hamnum, plan commission chairman, referred the planned development of the K-Mart shopping center to the plat and subdivision committee of the commission. The petitioner will appear before the plan commission again on March 23.

ness the President's arrival from a special roped-off spectators' gallery have been distributed by Republican committeemen. The passes are required for access to this area.

"The President is coming to this area to show his concern about pollution," said Rep. Schlickman, "and I think party to come out in the morning and greet the President. GOP officials and party workers from members feel an obligation to come out and show their support of the President's concern."

Nixon last visited this area in October 1968 when he addressed a GOP rally in Mount Prospect while campaigning for the presidency.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
